THREE MORE HOTELS SEE WAITERS STRIKE

As Men Go Out at the Waldorf Strikebreakers Descend from the Roof.

PROPRIETORS SURRENDERING

Workers to Get Practically Every Demand—Walkouts at The Breslin and Rector's, Too.

The embattled waiters struck three blows at the worried hotel proprietors just before the dinner hour last evening and a heavy loss of comfort and convenience was reported. The victims selected were the Waldorf-Astoria, the Breslin, and Rector's, and from these establishments a big majority of the dining room and kitchen force walked out in a burst of union sentiment. These signs of hostility were manifested less than two hours after the news had begun to trickle through the world of hotels that the Executive Committee of the Hotel Men's Association had met and voted—strike or no strike—to grant practically all the boons which the waiters have been seeking. When it made this decision it spoke for the association's 110 members, representing all the leading hotels of the city. It did not speak, however, for James B. Regan of the Knickerbocker Hotel, for yesterday morning he and the association parted company and Mr. Regan is fighting the strikers alone.

The one boon withheld by the proprietors is recognition of the International Hotel Workers' Union, and there's the rub. The union leaders swear that they will call a strike in every hotel in the city before they will yield on that point. The hotel men are equally obdurate, and will watch the next few days to see how well the union holds together after they have drawn the teeth of the leaders by removing the grievances which helped to bring the union into existence.

The strike at the Waldorf was smoothly and courteously managed, and after the men and boys had gone out old standbys among the patrons could be seen congratulating George C. Boldt, the proprietor, upon his generalship. Early in the afternoon, before the luncheon hour, Manager Oscar summoned all the waiters and "buses" before him and made them a little speech that ended in assurances that they would stick by him. Still the rumor grew that the Waldorf-Astoria was lively with union sentiment, and that it was likely to be waiterless at any minute.

Urbanity in Waldorf Strike.

When Mr. Boldt returned from the meeting of the Hotel Men's Association, he took the new schedule of wages and other concessions and read them to the assembled help. It was then a little before 6 o'clock, and he told them that if they must go they would better go then and quietly. He knew the union leaders were besetting them. He knew they were excited and all that. If they were going, let them go quietly. Let them take their pay which was ready in their envelopes and depart before the dinner hour and they would not be blacklisted, but could return with the return of discretion. They thanked him. They assured him that the Waldorf was a grand old place to work and that he was kindness itself, but that they were union men and had their union responsibilities. So with many protests of affection on both sides Mr. Boldt parted with some 350 of his employes, 80 per cent. of the waiters, several cooks, and a few bell boys.

None was foolish enough to stay till the appointed hour, 7:15 o'clock, and desert on a signal that would mean the blacklist. They filed out in orderly fashion, leaving behind the Captains and not a few of the old hands who do not stand for this new fangled unionism.

Mr. Boldt was forearmed in more ways than one. He not only had the pay cage up for just such an emergency, but he had carefully sequestered on the roof of the Waldorf some 126 strike breakers, men that he had assembled from every quarter of the country and had been keeping in waiting for more than a week. When his men deserted the signal was given, and down trooped the strike breakers, comparatively inexperienced, many of them, but stout-hearted apparently, and so many of them Irish that the orchestra was inspired to strike up "The Wearing of the Green," and it was with a good deal of appreciative hilarity that the Waldorf people settled down to enjoy their dinners. Of course, it is not the old force and it is by no means the full force, but the Waldorf thinks it will worry along and forbearance is asked. As a last stroke of preparedness Oscar was ready on the dot with printed cards explaining everything. These were installed at the various places before the strikers were fairly out of the building. They read:

> The management begs to inform its patrons that it has made every effort to reach an amicable understanding with its employes, but regrets to announce that after repeated efforts, it has come to the conclusion that at the present time further negotiations and concessions will be of no avail.
>
> The management is determined not to ally itself with any union and will maintain an open shop. In making this announcement it is but fair to state that a great many of our employes would remain at work were it not for agitators and intimidators.
>
> We apologize for our shortcomings in our service for the time being. We will do our best to re-establish order and discipline at the earliest possible moment.

Waiters Desert the Breslin.

Fifty waiters deserted the Breslin at 7:15 o'clock. There was no warning, but Assistant Manager Nobles saw them watching the clock and knew in his heart what was coming. It came, and the walkout was perfectly orderly. The management got into immediate touch with a crew of 25 strike breakers it had in storage around the corner, and expects to serve meals to-day. The evening meal is not the Breslin's heavy hour, and the management was not much disturbed last evening.

The strike at Rector's came at 7:20 o'clock, and was a clean sweep. The 70 waiters resigned as one. The guests finished the food that they had already taken possession of, but the doors were barred to further patronage, and the management began hasty arrangements for new waiters. The hotel lost many of its cooks later in the evening, and the restaurant was dark when the theatre crowd came out. The Breslin lost no cooks. There the dining room is famous for its Indian curries, prepared with the centuries of culinary wisdom in the head of Hassam Smile, a Hindoo chef, who was blandly impervious to all union suggestions and wouldn't be offended at the "scab" epithet, for he simply would not understand it.

There was the threat of a strike at the Gotham last evening, but it fizzled. Discontent is brewing there, and last evening Manager Spooner's heart sank into his boots when he saw a cluster of his waiters at a window hearkening to some secret message from without. But there was no walkout. The agitation was the work of a discharged captain. There is a fear of trouble there for this evening. A walkout was also averted at the Fifth Avenue Restaurant when a committee of strikers visited the place yesterday afternoon, but the management spoke soft words and nothing came of it.

The first walkout yesterday—but it really didn't count—was at Drake's restaurant, 111 West Forty-fourth Street, a comparatively small establishment open all day and all night. The managers had occasion to discipline a waiter for disputing with a pantry girl, and he immediately

PINNED UNDER TOWER TRUCK

Electric Light Employe Fell from Tall Seat When Truck Turned Over.

Joseph Gillespie, a driver employed by the United Electric Light and Power Company attempted, in the rainstorm yesterday afternoon, to drive an automobile tower truck, used for repairing overhead electric wires, around the corner from 147th Street into St. Nicholas Avenue at a higher rate of speed than the slippery pavement would permit. The truck skidded into the curb and toppled over.

Richard Owen, an assistant to Gillespie, was seated on top of the tower, and was hurled with it to the sidewalk, where he was found in the wreck.

Several women who saw the peculiar accident screamed, while men came from all directions. Owen was pinned underneath the wreckage. Gillespie fled. A dozen men attempted to lift the tower structure so that they could free Owen, but they were unable to do so. In the meantime the engine continued to throb, while the rear wheels of the truck were revolving in the air. Some one succeeded in reaching the levers by which the power could be shut off, and then another attempt was made to lift the tower. This time, with a score of men to help, the structure was tilted upward and Owen was lifted out.

Dr. Meyers, of the Washington Heights hospital, found that Owen was suffering from a fractured jaw, broken ribs, and internal injuries which, it is feared, may prove fatal.

The automobile truck is one of several put into use for emergency work by the United Electric Light and Power Company. Its tall tower gave it a large amount of weight. The truck, after being righted, was found to be so little damaged that it could be driven under its own power.

GIRL DIES IN AUTO WRECK.

Occupied Car That Plunged Over Sea Embankment at Manchester, Mass.

Special to The New York Times.

MANCHESTER, Mass., May 29.—The most serious automobile accident ever known in Manchester-by-the-Sea happened this afternoon when Miss Helen Bean of Malden was instantly killed.

G. A. Ramsdell and Miss Bessie Emerson, also of that city, occupants of the car with Miss Bean, escaped with minor injuries. The car, which is owned by Mr. Ramsdell, was being operated by Miss Emerson. Mr. Ramsdell was seated beside her. Miss Bean occupied the tonneau.

The accident occurred on a dangerous point on the Smith Point Road. The car was proceeding up a steep hill and on a sharp curve, immediately on the left, was a stone wall on the edge of a short declivity to the sea. The brakes failed on the steep grade and the car ran back, demolishing some of the wall, and plunged over the embankment, but some 15 to 18 feet below was checked by a growth of trees and bushes. The car struck bottom upward, pinning all three of the occupants under it.

Mr. Ramsdell and Miss Emerson were rescued with difficulty. Miss Bean, who was about 20 years of age, was found dead with her neck broken and lacerated head and shoulders.

BOMBS ARE COURT EXHIBIT.

Shown with Rifles in Inquiry Into Industrial Workers of the World.

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 29.—The special session of the Federal Grand Jury to-day continued the investigation of the Industrial Workers of the World organizations, and further witnesses from San Diego and from the local police department were heard. In addition to the rifle provided with a Maxim silencer exhibited yesterday, the Government to-day submitted as exhibits three more such rifles which have been taken from the Industrial Workers' headquarters. Seven bombs discovered in a similar manner were exhibited. Steve O'Donnell, a witness, received a warning to-day that unless he left town at once he would be killed.

At San Diego to-day there was a decided lull in the disturbances pending the holiday to-morrow. An undercurrent of feeling is that the Memorial Day parade in a measure will be a tribute to the G. A. R. for the stand the veterans have taken in matters pertaining to the Industrial Workers. John L. Selon, Superintendent of Police, has issued an appeal to citizens asking that no participation in the troubles be taken, either by individuals or committees.

Judge W. R. Guy of the Superior Court refused to-day to order the issuance of a complaint against Chief of Police Wilson, charged by attorneys representing many Industrial Workers with complicity in the alleged abduction of their stenographer, W. S. Rawlins, from San Diego May 16.

JAILS EXPENSIVE DAUGHTER.

Father Complains That She Orders Clothing in His Name.

Declaring that his daughter's extravagance had been a constant source of annoyance to him for several years, Isaac Roseman of 3,819 Third Avenue, a shopkeeper, had her arraigned before Magistrate Butts in the Tombs Court yesterday. He said his daughter, who is 17 years old, had a mania for fancy dresses and had gone to wholesale dealers and ordered clothing worth $500 in his name.

Miss Roseman appeared in court in a white serge suit and large picture hat.

"My daughter is mad about pretty clothes," said her father, "and while I hate to come here as complainant against her, I feel that I am unable to control her actions."

Two weeks ago, he said, he had a quarrel with her over the frequent visits of a young man and he told her not to allow him to call upon her in the future. She refused to tell the youth not to call and insisted that she be allowed to receive him. Roseman was firm and the next day his daughter left the house. Shortly after this, Roseman says, bills for goods began to arrive from the wholesale dealers.

Roseman said that he hoped his daughter would be sent away to some institution where she would be broken of her "extravagant ideas." Magistrate Butts then held Miss Roseman in $1,000 bail for the Grand Jury, and as she was unable to furnish bail she was locked up in the Tombs Prison.

LIGHTNING HITS LOCOMOTIVE.

Turns It Over, Kills a Man, and Fatally Hurts Four Others.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, May 29.—One man was killed and four were so badly injured that they will die when a bolt of lightning to-night struck a locomotive attached to a freight train on a stretch of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad tracks near Seventh Street and Oregon Avenue. The engine was hurled into a ditch, imprisoning members of the train crew underneath it.

Daniel Edwards of Frankford, the conductor, was killed instantly. Elmer Wright of 2034 South Third Street, a fireman; William L. Millward of 6,727 Woodland Avenue, a brakeman; Thomas McCullen of 6044 Greenway Avenue, engineer of the wrecked locomotive, and John Kane of 1240 South Market Street, a brakeman, were fatally injured.

ARMY FEUD MAY END IN A COURT-MARTIAL

Political Strife in War Department Adds to the Campaign Troubles of President.

FIRST CASE OF ITS NATURE

Major Gen. Ainsworth Accused of Political Activity in Fight on Gen. Wood, Chief of Staff.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—The feeling that has been engendered by the radical amendments reported by the conferees on the Army Appropriation bill is becoming so strong that it is likely to develop into a demand for an official threshing out in some way of the facts that are involved in the feud between Major Gen. Ainsworth, former Adjutant General of the Army, and Major Gen. Wood, Chief of Staff.

The situation is peculiar and has not been paralleled in many years. As it stands, the War Department has been grievously outgeneraled and finds itself outside the breastworks sorely wounded and helpless to protect itself.

In the House the Democratic majority under the daring and relentless leadership of Representative James Hay of Virginia, who has had long years of service on the Military Committee, will pass any sort of legislation reported from the conferees with marked disregard for the War Department. In the Senate, where for so many years Senator Warren of Wyoming has been a tower of strength to the War Department, the Administration finds itself simply abandoned.

Warren is standing with his back to the wall, ready to fight the President and the War Department to a finish because Secretary Stimson has proposed to sell Fort Russell in Warren's State and abandon it as a military post. The Government has spent more than $5,000,000 on this fort, and Senator Warren regards it as his monument. Senator du Pont of Delaware, Chairman of the committee, under Warren's tutelage and for other reasons that might be found, is arrayed against the President and the Secretary and the Administration is forced to look to Senators Lodge and Root for championship.

Behind their adversaries, it is charged, is Major Gen. Ainsworth, full of knowledge of all that has been done, and keen for the satisfaction of getting even with those who have had a hand in getting him out of the army.

To him is attributed the clause that has been reported to the House and Senate for the removal of Gen. Wood from the position of Chief of Staff on March 4, 1913. So sure are the friends of Gen. Wood that it is Gen. Ainsworth who is doing all that is being done against him, that they have begun to talk of having the former Adjutant General court-martialed. It was charged by Mr. Hay in the report that he filed recently as the majority report of his committee that Gen. Ainsworth resigned to avoid trial by court-martial. Also it was stated by Secretary Stimson when he recommended the acceptance of Gen. Ainsworth's resignation and when Senator Warren went to see President Taft as the representative of Gen. Ainsworth, that there must be a gentleman's agreement by which Gen. Ainsworth was to have immunity from trial in consideration of his resignation without any further trouble to the men with whom he was contending.

Now it is urged that if there was a gentleman's agreement it is time to forswear such an absurdity when Gen. Ainsworth is using his knowledge of inside affairs in the army and the War Department to hurt the Administration in the middle of a critical campaign. The report to-day was that the President would be advised when he resumed consideration of public business following his fortnight in the political campaign to proceed against Gen. Ainsworth for his political activity, that being an offense by statute.

This ground would be a new one, and the old offense of using language in correspondence that was unbecoming an officer would not have to be relied on. There is some doubt if what Gen. Ainsworth is doing can be termed political activity. It would seem if the charges are in any degree true that the offense is legislative activity and whether this is an offense in a retired army officer or not is doubtful. It is clearly impossible to order Gen. Ainsworth before a court for political activity under existing law.

Officers on the active list are prohibited by law from engaging in politics. But those on the retired list are permitted by law to hold civil office, to represent constituency in Congress, and to engage in political activities in campaigns. In 1896 the late General Alger, Secretary of War in the first McKinley Administration, and afterward Senator from Michigan, took what was celebrated as "the General's train" all over the country to arouse the Grand Army vote for McKinley.

Major Gen. Daniel Sickles of New York, a retired officer, was on that train, and so was Major Gen. O. O. Howard, another well known retired officer, for a considerable part of the tour, together with several others of less note, who were retired army officers. Gen. Sickles, it will be remembered, was elected to Congress several times while still on the retired list. There is no doubt that a retired army officer might hold a seat in Congress.

The embroilio over the Army bill will reach its crisis when the bill is before President Taft for his approval. There are many features in the "conspiracy of amendment" that it will be hard for him to accept. Whether he will regard the situation so bad as to justify ordering a court to try out the question whether Gen. Ainsworth has been guilty of advising members of Congress how they can push thorns in the side of the President and his Secretary of War and Chief of Staff remains to be seen.

It may be that Mr. Taft will realize smilingly that he has troubles enough of his immediate own and let the matter drift. But there are many who counsel an airing of the whole matter, even at the risk of not quite making out a case.

MEAT PRICES JUMP AGAIN.

Highest Since the War and Higher in Chicago Than in New York.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 29.—Meat advanced today to the highest price known since the civil war. Retail butchers began charging from 4 to 5 cents a pound more for prime cuts of beef, veal, and mutton than a week ago.

Although Chicago is the meat-producing centre of the country, the prices here today average from 1 to 2 cents higher than butchers are charging in New York City. No explanation of this condition was offered by the packers.

Many Chicago housewives declared that unless meats soon take a tumble they will be forced to follow the example of the Jewish women on the West Side and confine their table fare to fish, fowl, and vegetables.

The packers blame the prohibitive cost of meat to the shortage of cattle, due to a scarcity of corn. All meats to-day cost from 3 to 6 cents more than they did at the same time last year.

"We are compelled to charge these prices for our meats because the packers have continued to increase the wholesale prices," the retail butchers say.

The kosher boycott on the West Side continued to-day with all of the Jewish meat shops in the city closed.

LAWYERS' CASH SENT ARCHBALD TO EUROPE

Attorney Who Subscribed Tells How Commerce Court Judge Got a Vacation Abroad.

CLERK SOLICITED MONEY

Helm Bruce, Counsel for Louisville & Nashville Road, Testifies as to "Additional Brief" He Filed.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—Members of the bar who practiced before Judge Robert W. Archbald of the Court of Commerce when he was United States District Judge in Scranton, Penn., contributed to a fund for a vacation trip to Europe for the Judge, according to testimony given the House Committee on Judiciary to-day by John T. Lanihan of Wilkesbarre, a former member of Congress. Mr. Lanihan contributed $10 or $25, he could not remember which, at the solicitation of E. W. Searle, clerk of Judge Archbald's court. Another law firm in Wilkesbarre, he said, did likewise.

That Judge Archbald received the money, Mr. Lanihan was convinced. He said he received a letter from the Judge from Europe thanking him for his contribution.

Another phase of the inquiry was brought out through Helm Bruce of Louisville, Ky., counsel for the Louisville & Nashville Railroad. Mr. Bruce produced letters which showed that Judge Archbald sought information from the attorney and permitted him to file what was conceded to be an "additional brief" after an important case had been submitted to the court for decision and to Judge Archbald for the written opinion.

The case was known as the New Orleans Board of Trade case. It involved freight rates from New Orleans to Montgomery, Ala., via Mobile. It was one of the first appeals from the Inter-State Commerce Commission to the newly created Court of Commerce and its chief point was a question of jurisdiction.

Mr. Bruce read a letter from Judge Archbald asking him to see C. G. Compton, traffic manager of the Louisville & Nashville, and get from him what he meant by an answer he had made in his testimony to a Commissioner. Judge Archbald's letter pointed out that Mr. Compton's answer did not conform with the context of the testimony. Mr. Bruce also read his letter of reply to Judge Archbald, containing a statement that Mr. Compton said he was erroneously reported and that his answer should be directly opposed to that contained in the record.

Later Judge Archbald wrote Mr. Bruce from Florida, where he was sojourning on a houseboat, and asked for an amplification of a statement contained in the Louisville & Nashville brief which seemed at variance with testimony. Mr. Bruce replied with a 4,000 word letter. It set forth the Judge's questions and answered each in detail and at length.

Mr. Bruce admitted that his letter was an argument, a kind of brief, and that so far as he knew, it had not been submitted to opposing counsel.

Representative Webb asked Mr. Bruce if he had ever known a Judge to ask for such information before. Mr. Bruce said he had known of Judges who consulted counsel.

"Was this not an unusual proceeding?" asked Mr. Webb.

"I think it was unusual," answered the railroad attorney.

Mr. Bruce also wrote a letter to Judge Archbald thanking him after the decision was rendered. This decision was favorable to the railroad and against the Inter-State Commerce Commission. He also produced Judge Archbald's reply, which was highly complimentary to the attorney.

Former Representative Lanihan also told the committee of an effor by W. W. Kissinger, whom he had represented in a case before Judge Archbald, to get him to discount a note for $2,500.

"I asked him what he wanted with the money," said Mr. Lanihan. "He told me that he was interested with Judge Archbald in a Honduras gold mine, and wanted to use the money there. I would not grant his request because I did not think the Directors of my bank would lend the money for such an investment."

Albert H. Walker, an attorney, testified to his part in the proceedings in New York when Judge Archbald accepted the nolo contendere pleas of officials of the so-called Wire Trust and fined each of them $1,000.

Mr. Walker said he had written to Judge Archbald after this decision, warning him against such small fines for big offenders. He also said he declined an appointment as an attorney to institute impeachment proceedings against Judge Archbald at that time.

G. A. Richardson of New York, Vice President of the Hillside Coal and Iron Company and Vice President of the Erie Railroad, testified that George F. Brownell, general counsel for the Erie, introduced Judge Archbald to him in the Summer of 1911, and that Judge Archbald either said he was interested or had friends who had an interest in the Katydid culm. He told the Judge he would inquire into the situation, but could not remember any more of the conference.

Tom Howell Jones of Scranton, Penn., a coal operator and culm bank dealer, told of his connection with E. J. Williams in the Katydid culm bank deal. He said the negotiations were carried on in Judge Archbald's office.

Representative Webb brought out a new phase of the case when he drew from Jones the admission that he was a partner with Judge Archbald in an effort to close a deal with the Girard estate of Philadelphia for a coal dump of the Lehigh Valley Railroad. Jones said he knew nothing of what developed after he signed the incorporation papers, but turned everything over to Judge Archbald, and had not talked with the Judge about it since. This transaction took place six months ago, Jones said.

FINDS $12,000 IN GEMS.

Workman's Shovel Uncovers Plunder Buried by Thief Near Boston.

BOSTON, May 29.—Jewelry valued at $12,000, which was stolen from the Monument Beach Summer homes of George P. Gardner and James Jackson of Boston and Fred P. Field of Brockton, has been found by a workman. While digging a post hole on the John Parkinson estate at Monument Beach the workman's shovel uncovered a large pail containing the plunder.

Mr. Gardner identified many of the gems as his, and brought them to this city to-day.

The robbery occurred last September, and it is thought it was the plan of the thief to leave the jewelry buried until he found a favorable opportunity to sell it.

KINGS DELEGATION TO STICK TO TAFT

Woodruff Has Promises from 14 and Barnes Promises 80 of State's 90 Votes.

PRESIDENT ON FIRST BALLOT

State Chairman Insists on This, and Says Delegates Favor Root for Temporary Chairman.

Despite all reports to the contrary, the Republican delegation from Kings County to the Republican National Convention will remain loyal to President Taft. This was demonstrated yesterday, when Timothy L. Woodruff, the Republican leader in Kings, worried by recent reports, forsook the quietude of his Adirondack camp in order to canvass the situation in his political bailiwick.

The fact that Mr. Woodruff had as his guest in the Adirondacks National Committeeman William L. Ward, leader of the Roosevelt forces in this State, lent color to a report that the Brooklyn leader himself was on the point of flopping to Col. Roosevelt, and lent emphasis to the eulogistic terms recently employed by him in discussing Roosevelt's character and achievements. But Mr. Woodruff last night gave the lie to all and any reports that he was weakening in his loyalty to President Taft.

After a talk with the Brooklyn delegates and several of his district leaders in Kings, Mr. Woodruff made a statement in which he declared that, much to his gratification, he had found that fourteen out of the sixteen delegates from Kings to the National Convention were just as strongly for the renomination of President Taft as ever.

"I found," said Mr. Woodruff, "that there had been absolutely no change in the attitude of any of the delegates. Fourteen of the sixteen gave me positive assurances that they were still for President Taft and none was wavering. They will go to Chicago as Taft men. It is needless for me to repeat that personally I am, strongly as ever, for the President, and will be with him to the end.

"With the exception of Controller Prendergast, who was known beforehand to be a Roosevelt man, all the delegates elected in the March primaries were chosen as Taft men. Some time later Jacob L. Holtzmann, one of the delegates from the Tenth Congressional District, declared for Col. Roosevelt. This left fourteen delegates for President Taft and the line-up of the delegation, I can say with positiveness, is at the present time what it was then."

Holtzmann Says Three Are Wavering

Jacob L. Holtzmann said last night that Mr. Woodruff had difficulty in holding several of the delegation in line when he talked with them in the afternoon, and insisted that three of his fellow delegates with whom he had talked during the day had expressed themselves as about ready to come out for Roosevelt, thinking that Taft was facing defeat in the convention because of the result in New Jersey. These delegates, Mr. Holtzmann said, had no wish to defy the organization, which is committed to Taft. They had hoped, however, that when Mr. Woodruff came to town he would relieve them of the necessity of doing so by having the organization take some action which would leave them free to do as they pleased. They were disappointed, Mr. Holtzmann said, because Mr. Woodruff had failed to take such steps.

It was said last night that there probably would be a special meeting of the Executive Committee within a few days. It was not considered likely, however, that if the meeting is held anything will be done toward having the organization reverse itself as to Taft and Roosevelt. The business of the meeting, one of the leaders said, would be to consider the resignation of Charles S. Devoy as Chairman.

Mr. Woodruff is of the opinion that Mr. Devoy, despite his declaration in favor of Col. Roosevelt, should be asked to reconsider his resignation. Republican State Chairman Barnes thinks otherwise, and through some of the Republicans in Kings with whom he entertains close relations he has permitted the leaders there to understand that he believes Mr. Devoy's place should be filled without delay with a man loyal to President Taft. Election Commissioner Livingston is favored by Chairman Barnes.

The State Chairman had sounded the delegates from Kings County himself and had been assured by them that they had not changed their attitude.

"A majority of the delegates," said Mr. Barnes last night, "were highly incensed at the reports circulated by the Roosevelt people to the effect that the delegation had lost its integrity. They even felt insulted that I should consider it necessary to call them up and ask them where they stood."

Barnes Sure of 80 Votes for Taft.

"Do you feel that all the New York delegates, with the exception of the seven pledged to Col. Roosevelt, will remain loyal to President Taft?" Mr. Barnes was asked.

"I am absolutely confident that eighty delegates out of the ninety from this State will be for Taft in the convention," said Mr. Barnes. "I feel confident also that President Taft will be nominated on the first ballot at Chicago. We have the votes."

There was every evidence at Republican State headquarters that it had become the centre of the National fight for President Taft and that Mr. Barnes was the de facto generalissimo of the Taft forces in the country. Mr. Barnes is in a fighting mood, too. When reference was made to the reverses suffered by the President in his own State and in New Jersey Mr. Barnes responded by declaring that every move made by the Roosevelt forces at Chicago would be hotly contested and that no quarter would be asked or given.

In fighting for President Taft Mr. Barnes is fighting for his own political life. A majority of the old leaders in the Republican organization in this State are in the same boat and may be depended upon to stand with the State Chairman to the end. Should Col. Roosevelt by any chance be nominated and elected, they realize that his very first step would be to come into his own State with an axe and smash the present Republican organization to pieces.

Mr. Barnes yesterday began laying his lines for the fight in the convention. The first measuring of strength between the Roosevelt and the anti-Roosevelt forces at Chicago will come over the selection of a Temporary Chairman. Senator Root is the choice of the National Committee, but Col. Roosevelt has announced that he will not stand for Root. Yesterday Mr. Barnes got busy to sound all the delegates throughout the country with regard to their attitude in the matter. This is the telegram he sent out:

> The National Committee has selected Senator Root of New York for Temporary Chairman of the convention at Chicago. It is reported that the Roosevelt forces will oppose the action of the committee. I am writing you in behalf of the New York delegates with the exception of a very few to ask your support for Senator Root for Temporary Chairman. We believe this contest is the most serious which has afflicted the Republican Party, and that the attempt to force the nomination of Mr. Roosevelt will lead only to disaster. The doctrines which he has advocated we declared is our platform at the Rochester Convention to be subversive of our form of government. Will

TRAINED SNAILS TO RACE.

How Paris Postal Clerks Employed Time the Public Paid For.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

PARIS, May 29.—One of the Chiefs of the French Post Office Administration, says the Matin, recently noticed that the clerks in a certain Paris district office were very lax in answering official communications, and paid a visit of inspection.

He ordered the clerks to open their desks, and they reluctantly complied, revealing a quantity of vigorous snails, which immediately crawled in all directions with "surprising speed."

Inquiry elicited the fact that the clerks had trained the snails to race each other. The report of the Committee of Inquiry ends:

"Steps should be taken to curtail the lamentable love of racing and games of chance, which appears to exist among the Post Office employes."

WILBUR WRIGHT IS BETTER.

Doctors Now Say He Has a Fighting Chance for His Life.

Special to The New York Times.

DAYTON, Ohio, May 29.—Wilbur Wright seemed to be gaining strength early to-night, and for the first time in three days his physicians are willing to concede him a chance to recover from the attack of typhoid fever which has threatened his life.

His temperature remains more than 104, but pulse and respiration both indicate a change for the better, and while no prediction of his ultimate recovery will be made by his physicians, all accord him a fighting chance.

The patient is unconscious, but the physicians were able to administer nourishment to him for the first time in several days. This afternoon, with the exception of a severe chill, the cause of which his physicians were unable to explain, no alarming symptoms developed.

DIES 'PHONING FOR AID.

Physician Arrives Too Late to Help Tuberculous Boat Watchman.

After telephoning to Gouverneur Hospital for aid, John Green, 60 years old, a watchman, was found on board the tuberculosis boat Westfield late last night by Dr. Marclay, who had hurried from the hospital to the man's assistance. In his hand was the telephone receiver, and, according to the doctor, death must have come as the man finished speaking to the hospital. The body was taken to the Morgue.

The man went to work yesterday morning as watchman on the boat, which is now moored at the foot of Jackson Street, and used by the tuberculosis patients of the hospital. Shortly before 11 o'clock the man telephoned that he had a severe pain around his heart, and that he needed aid. His address is not known.

WIFE SUES R. H. DAVIS.

Divorce Action Entered in Chicago Court Against Author.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 29.—Richard Harding Davis, author and war correspondent, was sued for divorce late this afternoon by Mrs. Cecil Clark Davis. The action was not unexpected, as Mrs. Davis arrived in Chicago several months ago, following reports of the separation of the couple. Desertion is the only charge made.

Mrs. Davis said to-night: "There will be no scandal about this divorce. No women have been mentioned in my bill, as I do not deem it necessary to drag the names of others into the courts. I have a clear case of desertion and that is all there is to it."

Richard Harding Davis and Cecil Clark, daughter of a wealthy Chicago iron manufacturer, were married at Marion, Mass., in May, 1899. The war correspondent cabled his proposal from London, and upon receipt of Miss Clark's acceptance dispatched a messenger to Chicago bearing the engagement ring. The separation took place in 1909.

NO INSULT TO TAFT.

Incident at Rutherford Meeting Gives Rise to a False Report.

A visit made by Chief Wilkie of the United States Secret Service to Rutherford, N. J., yesterday gave rise to a report that he was examining an Italian who was said to have thrown a ball of wet paper at President Taft on Saturday night last when the President was speaking in the public square on his automobile tour.

Several of those who accompanied Mr. Taft on the tour recalled last night that as the President's car was driving away after the Rutherford meeting a folded paper came flying into the auto. Nothing was thought of the matter and as far as those in the Taft party knew, no one was arrested.

Chief of Police Burnham of Rutherford would not admit yesterday that an arrest had been made. "I am not permitted to say what prisoners I have when they are being held for examination," he said.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—Secret service men here who were with President Taft on his New Jersey trip say there is no truth in the stories that a foreigner threw a ball of wet paper at President Taft in Rutherford. They recalled that a boy in the crowd, in an excess of enthusiasm, threw a newspaper up in the air. The wind blew it toward the President and it grazed his face.

'BRYAN AND O'GORMAN' BOOM

And Herman A. Metz Would Like to be Vice President.

Two Vice Presidential booms came out into the open yesterday. Ex-Controller Herman A. Metz tossed his hat into the ring himself. United States Senator James A. O'Gorman, it would appear, is in the hands of his friends.

The former Controller was sending out advertising matter in which he gave as his slogan "Back to the Constitution," and as his selection for a running mate Speaker Champ Clark. The Bryan and O'Gorman Democratic Club (address not given) started the boom for Senator O'Gorman with this unterrified declaration:

"We will sweep the country in November with Bryan and O'Gorman at the head of the Democratic ticket."

DID ROOSEVELT PLAN A LIFETIME TENURE?

Perhaps Not, but Washington Is Interested in His Phrase "Permanent During My Lifetime."

MEANT WHITE HOUSE OFFICES

He Doesn't Remember It, but Here Are Some Citations from Lincoln That Are Worth Remembering.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—"To be permanent during my lifetime."

These words were interlined by President Roosevelt seven years ago in an official communication to Congress setting forth the need for an addition to the White House.

In this document, typewritten under the order of Mr. Roosevelt, he discusses the question of permanent and temporary quarters for the executive offices, and suggests the erection of temporary quarters; but on the margin of this typewritten memorandum, after underscoring the word "temporary," he added, in his own handwriting, "to be permanent during my lifetime! T. R."

The word "my" is underscored and an exclamation point follows the word "lifetime."

The "temporary" building asked for was erected. The memorandum was never made public by the Appropriations Committee until to-day, when it was made public by Chairman Fitzgerald in a speech in the House, and photographic copies were given out. All the time the Republicans were in power it remained buried in the files of the committee.

Quotes from Abraham Lincoln.

The disclosure came under strikingly interesting circumstances. Col. Roosevelt has just swept New Jersey in the wind-up of his campaign and will speak at Gettysburg to-morrow, where Lincoln on another Memorial Day delivered his famous address. To-day Representative Fitzgerald, besides making public the marginal notation by Col. Roosevelt about the "temporary executive offices" being permanent in his lifetime, read to the House a speech delivered by Lincoln in 1837, which Mr. Fitzgerald regarded as a warning to the country against the ambitions of ex-President Roosevelt.

After he had read this Lincoln prophecy Representative Fitzgerald exclaimed:

"How prophetic these words of Lincoln were can easily be illustrated by something which happened a few years ago. Plans were initiated for the remodeling of the White House known officially as the Executive Mansion. A dispute arose between the then Executive, Mr. Roosevelt, and the Congress as to the extent to which the remodeling should go. As a result of certain differences a memorandum was prepared by the architect charged with the duty of making the changes in the White House, and the memorandum covered not only the plans for the reconstruction but the provision for the so-called executive offices which at that time were built.

"Under the head of 'temporary executive offices' the memorandum transmitted from the White House to the Capitol for the information of members of Congress has this statement:

> The problem of the erection of a permanent building for the offices of the President involves many considerations as to the amount of accommodation needed, the scope and variety of the functions to be carried on in such a building. Provision for temporary quarters for executive offices is comparatively a simple matter.
>
> A building of brick, one story high, and containing from 50 to 75 per cent. more room than the offices now occupied can be constructed in the grounds of the White House opposite the entrance of the Navy Department. The building would take the place now occupied by a brick wall which screens a number of hothouses and forcing beds for plants, functions which may well be provided elsewhere in connection with the propagating garden.

"This is the context beside which the marginal notation was written by the ex-President, apparently as an afterthought.

Representative Fitzgerald was greeted with loud outbursts of applause by the House, both when he read the "permanent during my lifetime" notation and during his reading of the extracts from the Lincoln speech.

"It seems to me," said Mr. Fitzgerald, "to have been a prophetic utterance by Mr. Lincoln, and it deserved to be reproduced at this time for the guidance of the American people. So much has been recently quoted from Abraham Lincoln to justify all sorts of vagaries in Governmental affairs that this may appeal to the sober senses of the people and make them, before it is too late, awaken to some of the dangers which confront our Government."

The Lincoln speech was delivered before the Young Men's Lyceum of Springfield, Ill., Jan. 27, 1837—twenty-three years before his first election to the Presidency. In it Mr. Lincoln said:

> All the armies of Europe, Asia, and Africa combined * * * could not by force take a drink from the Ohio, or make a track on the Blue Ridge in a trial of a thousand years. * * * At what point, then, is the approach of danger to be expected? I answer, if it ever reaches us it must spring up among us; it cannot come from abroad. If destruction be our lot, we must ourselves be its author and finisher. As a nation of free men we must live through all time or die by suicide.
>
> There is even now something of ill omen among us. I mean the increasing disregard for law which pervades the country—the growing disposition to substitute the wild and furious passions in lieu of the sober judgments of courts, and the worse than savage mobs for the executive ministers of justice.
>
> I know the American people are much attached to their Government; I know they would suffer much for its sake; I know they would endure evils long and patiently before they would ever think of exchanging it for another—yet, notwithstanding all this, if the laws be continually despised and disregarded, if their rights to be secure in their persons and property are held by no better tenure than the caprice of the mob, the alienation of their affections from the Government is a natural consequence, and to that, sooner or later, it must come.

Doctrine Against Mob Law.

Mr. Lincoln then discussed mob rule, declaring "there is no grievance that is a fit object of redress by mob law." He reviewed the deeds of the forefathers and those who had grown great by constructive statesmanship, through victorious war and by experiments, the success or failure of which meant deathless fame or oblivion respectively.

"This field of glory is harvested," the Lincoln speech goes on to say, "and the crop is already appropriated. But new reapers will arise, and they, too, will seek a field." It is to deny what the history of the world tells us is true, to suppose that men of ambition and talents will not spring up among us. And when they do, they will naturally seek the gratification of their ruling passion as others have done before them. The question then is, can that gratification be found in supporting and maintaining an edifice that has been erected by others?

"Most certainly it cannot. Many great and good men, sufficiently qualified for any task they should undertake, may ever be found whose ambition would aspire to nothing beyond a seat in Congress, a Gubernatorial or a Presidential chair, but such belong not to the family of the lion nor the tribe of the eagle. What! Think you these places would satisfy an Alexander, a Caesar or a Napoleon? Never! Towering genius despises a beaten path. It seeks regions hitherto unexplored. It seeks new distinction in adding story to story upon the monuments of fame. It scorns to tread in the footsteps of any predecessor, however illustrious.

"It thirsts and burns for distinction, and if possible it will have it, whether at the expense of emancipating slaves or enslaving free men. It is unreasonable, then, to expect that some men possessed of the loftiest genius, coupled with ambition sufficient to push it to its utmost stretch, will at some time spring up among us?

"And when such an one does it will require the people to be united with each other, attached to the Government and laws, and generally intelligent, to frustrate his designs. Distinction will be the paramount object, and, although he would willingly, perhaps more so, acquire it by doing good as harm, yet that opportunity being past and nothing left to be done in the way of building up, he will set boldly to the task of pulling down."

'PREPOSTEROUS,' SAYS COLONEL

Doesn't Remember Anything at All About White House Notes.

Col. Roosevelt was shown the dispatch containing Representative Fitzgerald's speech as he was about to board the train at the Pennsylvania station at 11:30 o'clock last night for Gettysburg. He read it over carefully and then exclaimed:

"Why, this is absolutely too preposterous for me to consider. I don't recall it at all and don't know what it is all about. It is simply preposterous; that's all I can say."

ROOSEVELT SURE HE'S WON.

Sure of Nomination Now, but Says He'll Fight On.

Col. Roosevelt let it be known yesterday that he believes that the result of the primaries in New Jersey has made certain his nomination at the Republican National Convention in Chicago next month. He said, however, that he would not let up on the fight he has waged against President Taft and his supporters and will keep on relentlessly to the end.

Last night the Colonel started for Gettysburg, Penn., where he will address the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers this afternoon. Asked what he thought of his victory in New Jersey, he replied:

"I don't see that Jersey left much for me to say." He added that he considered the sweeping victory there only another indication that the people had confidence in him and were with him in his fight.

"I have carried the State by a comfortable majority," said the Colonel, and then added with a smile, "I can afford to be conservative now."

There were reports afloat again yesterday that the Colonel might go to Chicago to direct his own fight, and one newspaper published a story to that effect. When the Colonel heard of it he wouldn't make any direct denial that such might be the case, but declared:

"The odds are about 1,000 to 1, I should say, that I won't go. I haven't even considered such a thing. I do not expect to go, and I can't imagine anything that would cause me to go to Chicago."

The Colonel was asked about dispatches from Washington printed in the newspapers yesterday morning that William Barnes, Jr., has been picked by Representative McKinley, the Taft campaign manager, to lead the fight for the renomination of the President on the floor of the convention.

Colonel Roosevelt would make no comment, but smiled and chuckled and showed by his whole demeanor that nothing would please him better. It was pointed out by several of his supporters that the Colonel would welcome the appearance of Barnes as the commander in chief of the Taft forces. It would bring out, as nothing else could, they declared, the very point the Colonel has been pounding into the minds of the voters—that he represents the people, and President Taft the bosses.

In regard to the proposed visit of the Illinois delegates to Sagamore Hill on Saturday Col. Roosevelt was also silent, except to say that he expected them up there to talk the situation over. Asked if plans would then be made to unseat National Committeeman Lowden of Illinois and put a Committeeman favorable to Roosevelt in his place, the Colonel, after a moment's thought, replied that he did not want to discuss the National Committee.

It is declared, however, on the highest authority that such an effort will be made, not only in Illinois but in Pennsylvania, Ohio, Maryland, Nebraska and other states where the Republicans expressed a preference at the primaries for Roosevelt, if after conferences, the Roosevelt supporters believe that it can be accomplished. As the situation stands at present, the Colonel's supporters are not sure whether they can unseat any of the National Committeemen opposed to him before the National Convention, despite the fact that as a result of the primaries the Colonel's supporters legally are in control in a number of States.

The early preconvention campaign, at least, Col. Roosevelt will direct from Oyster Bay where he will go Friday on his return from Gettysburg. He will make no more trips, he said last night, but will arrange to keep in close touch with his managers in all sections of the country, so that he will be ready for any emergency which may arise.

The Colonel left Oyster Bay yesterday afternoon at 4:57 o'clock on the regular Long Island train. He got to the Oyster Bay station just before the train pulled out and grabbing up a bulging suit case ran for the train.

At Jamaica where he had to wait fifteen minutes for his connection there was an incident which attracted much attention and all but resulted in his being late for a dinner engagement at the Harvard Club. As the train for New York came in an elderly and poorly clad woman grasping a big bouquet of flowers she had picked in one hand and a suitcase in the other struggled to get off. The Colonel dropping his own baggage was the first of the crowd of one hundred collected about him to assist her.

"Let's help her!" he exclaimed, and grasping the woman by the arm assisted her to the platform. Then he got her suitcase and refused to leave her until he had found a conductor who directed them to the Long Island City train which she was seeking. As a result he had to make a mad rush to get his own baggage and jumped aboard his train just in the nick of time. Every one who witnessed the incident was talking about it as the Colonel sped on toward New York. Not a few walked through the train to shake hands with him. He devoted five minutes of the ride to an animated conversation with one of the conductors.

While at Oyster Bay yesterday the Colonel was asked how soon his campaign would begin "after his nomination." Smiling at his questioner he replied:

"In the course of a long experience as a hunter, I have learned never to divide the bearskin until after the bear is dead."

When told that Gov. Wilson had 15½ of the twenty-eight New Jersey delegates, he showed a lively interest and said:

"Why, I did better than he, didn't I?"

Col. Roosevelt took a little recreation last night by going to see the Paul J. Rainey African hunt pictures at the Lyceum Theatre. During the first half of the performance he sat in the darkened auditorium, unrecognized, but when the intermission time arrived, and he had been taken back on the stage to meet George Bement, the photographer, the audience learned that he was in the house. They applauded him for about five minutes, and he arose in his seat and said that he had come only for a rest and had nothing to say. When some one asked him his opinion of New Jersey he stood up again and remarked that New York was not New Jersey and that he still had nothing to say. At the end of the performance he and his two companions, Regis H. Post and James B. Reynolds, hurried from the theatre to a waiting automobile.

ROOSEVELT'S JERSEY PLURALITY IS 16,000

Wins All 28 Delegates on a Poll of Less Than 50 Per Cent. of the Republican Vote.

COMMUTERS DISFRANCHISED

Many Lost Their Votes Through Failure to Enroll—Votes on Preference and Delegates Differed.

Col. Roosevelt captured all of the twenty-eight delegates from New Jersey to the Republican National Convention in Tuesday's primaries, a canvass of the returns disclosed yesterday, and defeated President Taft in the preferential vote by approximately 16,000.

As has been the case in every State in which Presidential preferential primaries have been held, the Rpublican vote in New Jersey was far below normal. It averaged under 50 per cent. Comparisons, however, are next to impossible, as the various county election boards have not yet completed the work of tabulating the vote cast in the different Congressional districts.

In Essex County alone did the Republican vote exceed that cast at the primaries held last September, while in the same county there was a decided falling off in the Democratic vote ordinarily polled at party primaries. The light Democratic vote in Essex is attributed to the failure of the Wilson candidates to make headway against the well-organized machine opposition. The organization was out in force, and worked zealously for the downfall of the Wilson faction. Essex County was the only county in the State to go against the Governor. The Smith-Nugent ticket of delegates in the Ninth and Tenth Districts won by a vote of three to two, while Roosevelt triumphed over President Taft and the Republican machine by a count of four to three.

The biggest surprise to the supporters of Mr. Taft was the failure of the President to win in the towns outside of Newark, in Essex County, in which the so-called commuters' vote was expected to carry the day. These towns include such suburban residential centres as Orange, Montclair, Bloomfield, and Irvington, where a large proportion of the voting population is composed of New York business men and merchants who were believed to entertain the same antagonistic attitude on the subject of the Roosevelt political propaganda as was shown at the Republican primaries in this city.

Commuters Failed to Enroll.

The light vote in these commuting centres is attributed by the Taft organization to the fact that a majority of the commuters failed to enroll for the primaries last Fall. In proof of this assertion they point to the case of A. B. Leach, Vice President of the Taft Business Men's League of New Jersey, which in Essex County is largely composed of business men from New York. Mr. Leach resides in South Orange village, and was deeply chagrined Tuesday to find that he and a score of associates could not vote.

It is significant that in the municipality of South Orange, which has a total of 1,087 registered voters, the total vote cast at the Republican and Democratic primaries combined was only 428, which was divided as follows: La Follette, 7; Roosevelt, 144; Taft, 122; Wilson, 63, and anti-Wilson, 92. This vote, the Taft supporters declared yesterday, is typical of what occurred in other commuting centres.

The following table illustrates the manner in which the "commuter" vote was registered Tuesday in Essex County:

	La Follette.	Roosevelt.	Taft.	Wilson.	Anti-Wilson.
Orange	36	745	416	530	478
East Orange	104	1,545	980	390	152

Verona	8	88	48	20	10
West Caldwell	4	28	3	13	12

Failure on the part of the Republican voters to enroll for the primaries, however, cannot be accepted as the explanation of the defeat of President Taft throughout the State. A careful survey of the returns so far as they have been tabulated reveals a remarkable apathy and indifference to the result on the part of thousands of Republicans who had duly qualified to express their preference for a Presidential candidate.

With three small districts not yet tabulated, Atlantic County shows a majority for Taft's four delegates-at-large of more than 700, while Roosevelt on preferential vote carried the county by about 200. Senator Edge and Bloomfield H. Minch, Taft's district delegates, carried Atlantic City by more than 800, the county's vote, outside the city, going for Roosevelt's district delegates by about 1,000. In spite of the showing made in Atlantic City by his candidates for district delegates, President Taft barely succeeded in carrying the city in the preference vote by a majority of 76.

For Taft, but Against His Delegates.

The discrepancy between the preferential vote throughout the State and that cast for delegates was puzzling yesterday to many residents of New Jersey. The explanation is to be found in the fact that some voters only marked the preferential section of their ballots; others merely indicated the delegates of their choice, while still another class, though indicating their preference for President voted against some or all of the delegates pledged to the candidate of their choice, either through error or because of dislike for those delegates.

In Bergen County the Taft supporters made their most determined and bitter fight, holding the Roosevelt majority to about 100. Roosevelt carried Cumberland County by 900 and the district by approximately 1,000 majority. Cape May County complete gave Rosevelt 533 plurality over Taft, Senator La Follette receiving less than fifty votes in the entire county. In Hudson County the victory of the Roosevelt forces was overwhelming.

In the Eleventh Congressional District Taft received 1,166 votes in the preferential primary, and Roosevelt 2,294. In the Twelfth District the result was even more decisive, the vote polled being Taft, 1,587, and Roosevelt, 3,263. The Colonel therefore captured the delegates from each of these Congressional districts and incidentally rolled up a tremendous plurality in Hudson County for his delegates at large, as the delegate vote followed very closely that for the heads of the tickets in the preferential primary.

In Hunterdon County President Taft proved that his strength with the rural vote was greater than that of his opponent, whom he defeated in the county by a vote of 625 to 515. In Mercer County, which is the home of United States Senator Frank O. Briggs, Chairman of the Republican State Committee and one of the most prominent Taft leaders of the State, the Roosevelt faction scored a victory by a majority of 906. In Monmouth County Col. Roosevelt and his delegates at large were successful over President Taft and his "big four" by about 800 plurality, but the contest as to the district delegates was very close, the Roosevelt men winning by less than fifty votes.

Morris County was very close in the preferential primary, the vote standing 1,790 for Roosevelt to 1,771 for President Taft. Col. Roosevelt, however, had no difficulty in winning the delegates of the Fifth Congressional District, which includes Morris and Union Counties, as he carried the latter by a plurality of approximately 1,000. As in the case of all of the agricultural counties, the vote in Middlesex was very close, the Roosevelt forces capturing it by a plurality of only 52 votes.

Passaic County showed a heavy Roosevelt vote, his plurality in the preferential primary being 1,465, and the plurality of his delegates at large being 1,170. The Roosevelt delegates in the Seventh Congressional District, which embraces most of the county, were chosen by a plurality of about 1,200. In the preferential vote in Paterson Col. Roosevelt carried every ward except one, and his delegates were successful in all but two wards. Only about 50 per cent. of the Republican vote was cast.

Taft delegates carried Somerset County by a plurality of 110, with less than half of the Republican vote cast, nearly all of the rural townships giving him majorities in the preferential vote. In Sussex County, where only 15 per cent. of the registered vote was got out, the Roosevelt delegates at large and district delegates were successful, and the Colonel received a plurality of 210 in the preferential vote. Warren County also registered its choice for Roosevelt by a plurality of 250.

Borden D. Whiting, Chairman of the Roosevelt State Campaign Committee, said last night:

"The thing which stands out most now is the fact that New Jersey has overthrown her bosses. The victory means a great deal to Col. Roosevelt. It means, first of all, the success of the progressive principles for which we have been fighting, and, secondly, it means the unequivocal defeat of the boss system which has dominated the State for years."

United States Senator Frank O. Briggs, Chairman of the Republican State Committee, yesterday was disconsolate over the defeat of President Taft, but expressed his confidence that Mr. Taft would be nominated at Chicago, notwithstanding the result in New Jersey on Tuesday. Said he:

"President Taft has 570 delegates to the Chicago Convention, and, this being so, he will receive the nomination unless the Roosevelt followers succeed in bulldozing the Republican National Committee."

WILSON IS DELIGHTED, TOO.

State Permanently Progressive, He Says—Briggs Surprised at Result.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., May 29.—Gov. Wilson was highly pleased with the returns of yesterday's primaries. He came to the State House from his home in Princeton about 10:30 o'clock, and gave out the following statement:

"I never doubted the result, but I am none the less delighted that the Democrats of this State should have stood by me so generously, and with so unmistakable a verdict. Their approval makes me very happy, because it is their judgment of the new regime in our politics in New Jersey and means that the new order is to be sustained with steadfastness and enthusiasm. New Jersey is permanently enrolled among the progressive States."

President Taft's overwhelming defeat proved a great surprise to United States Senator Frank O. Briggs, Chairman of the Republican State Committee and a Taft candidate for delegate at large. He said:

"So far as the campaign is concerned I know of nothing that could have been done that was not done in behalf of President Taft. It is perfectly apparent by yesterday's vote that the people of the State are in favor of Col. Roosevelt and his policies. The fact, however, that only 40 per cent. of the total vote was polled in the State shows that the people will not take the proper interest in the primary elections."

Like Gov. Wilson, Chairman Edward E. Grosscup of the Democratic State Committee was much pleased with the result. He said:

"The result must be taken as a most emphatic indorsement of Gov. Wilson and the progressive policies which he represents, and at the same time as a severe rebuke to those who have attempted to divide the Democratic Party in the State.

"Every effort that could be made by the disgruntled officeseekers who formed the backbone of the opposition to the Governor was used to bring out the vote against him, so that the result must be accepted as showing the full strength of that opposition. This vote, except in two districts of Essex, was absurdly small, in some places not a ballot being cast against Gov. Wilson. There can no longer be doubt that Gov. Wilson is the real leader of the Democratic Party in New Jersey."

WHITING TO SUCCEED MURPHY.

His Success in Jersey Puts Him in Line for National Committeeman.

Special to The New York Times.

EAST ORANGE, N. J., May 29.—Roosevelt's victory at the primaries yesterday will result, it is reported here, in the selection of Borden D. Whiting of this city as a member of the Republican National Committee to succeed Franklin Murphy. Whiting was State Chairman for the Roosevelt campaign, and it is admitted that he managed it well. Even his opponents are generous in their praise of him.

Whiting is regarded as the one man who can keep the party factions at peace. He has been fair in his treatment of opposing factions, and if he were named there would be no opposition. No other man, it is claimed, would be approved by all sides. He was formerly State Railroad Commissioner, and was active in the campaigns made by former State Senator Everett Colby, who is now his law partner. He is 37 years old.

NO SURRENDER, SAYS CARSON.

Ex-Attorney General Predicts Fight to the End Against Colonel.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., May 29.—Roosevelt's sweeping victory in New Jersey yesterday virtually insures the nomination for him at Chicago, in the opinion of local Republican politicians, who discussed that topic to-day to the exclusion of everything else. There was talk of a bolt among pronounced anti-Roosevelt men, but nobody would anticipate the action of the convention with any definite statement.

Former Attorney General Hampton L. Carson was one of those who declared that there should be no compromise or surrender in the opposition to Roosevelt.

"It is a question of principle," he said, "and the fight against Roosevelt should be waged to the bitter end. There can be and there will be no surrender."

On the other hand, one of the most powerful Republican leaders asserted that if Roosevelt won the nomination he would get the support of the organizations in this city and State. He said:

"The organization is composed of Republicans. They are not bolters or quitters. When organization men get licked they take their medicine and prepare for another fight. They will support Roosevelt all right if he gets the nomination."

This statement was made in response to the suggestion that in the now probable event of Roosevelt's nomination, and the nomination by the Democrats of a radical the Penrose organization in Pennsylvania and Philadelphia would support a conservative Republican on a third party ticket.

Former Gov. Pennypacker, all along a severe critic of Col. Roosevelt, was somewhat milder to-day.

"It is quite remarkable," he said, "how the Colonel has carried New Jersey and the other States. He seems to have a magnetism to attract votes that no other man has. It seems to be his personality rather than his arguments.

"I do not think there will be any trouble at Chicago. It looks now very much like Roosevelt, but, then, one can never tell. A great deal depends upon the Southern delegates, and I wouldn't be surprised if many of them deserted the President, although pledged to him."

Congressman William S. Vare, a delegate to the convention, said:

"I will decide all questions when they come before me at Chicago. I will not say now what my course there will be. The result in New Jersey and other States certainly shows a much stronger public sentiment for Roosevelt than Taft."

President Has 31 Delegates More Than Needed to Nominate, Managers Declare.

SAY COLONEL NEEDS 101

Clark Has 389, Wilson 245—22 Republican and 156 Democratic Delegates Still to be Chosen.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—The New Jersey primaries mark the practical ending of the big fight on the Republican side and fix the alignment. Only twenty-two delegates remain to be chosen. On the face of the returns tabulated by the Taft Bureau New Jersey leaves Taft with 571 votes, or 31 more than is necessary for the nomination, and Roosevelt with 439, or 101 less than necessary. The number instructed or pledged for Taft and not contested is 391; the number instructed or pledged for Roosevelt and not contested is 425.

New Jersey and Texas have increased Gov. Wilson's strength by 64 votes. Speaker Clark has 389, Gov. Wilson 245, Mr. Underwood 84, Gov. Harmon 36, and other candidates 54, with 128 uninstructed and uncertain. There are still 156 delegates to be elected.

Here are the figures:

Senator Dixon, campaign manager for Col. Roosevelt, returned to Washington from New York to-day and made the prediction that Col. Roosevelt would have more than 600 delegates on the first ballot in the Chicago convention, exclusive of contested delegates.

"I have been in New York for five days," he said. "The Republican leaders in that State no longer question Roosevelt's nomination on the first ballot. We have had positive assurances that more than thirty of the New York delegation will vote for Roosevelt on the first ballot."

The Washington headquarters of all the Republican candidates will close this week and managers and their assistants will establish themselves in Chicago on Monday.

The attitude of the Taft managers here indicate that they will lend their full support to Chairman Harry S. New in the effort to seat Senator Elihu Root of New York as Temporary Chairman of the convention.

Senator Dixon predicted that Gov. Hadley of Missouri would be the Roosevelt choice for Temporary Chairman of the convention.

"That is, of course, subject to change if conditions change," said the Senator. "I believe, however, that Gov. Hadley's name will be proposed for the place, and that William R. Prendergast of New York, despite recent illness, will make the speech placing Col. Roosevelt in nomination."

President Taft's belief that he has enough delegates pledged and instructed for him to control the convention was not shaken by the victory of Col. Roosevelt in the New Jersey primaries. White House officials made no official statement, but Taft leaders who saw the President today would not recede from the President's own figures, made public in several of his New Jersey speeches, which he said gave him thirty more than necessary to nominate.

It was positively stated that the President's name would be presented to the convention, no matter what happened. He is interested now particularly in the platform, it is said, and in the selection of a man to present his name to the convention.

Work has been done on a tentative platform by several Senators, but, it is said, is not yet completed.

Mr. Taft worked in the White House study signing mail and glancing over important documents and the returns from New Jersey until 2 o'clock this morning, and was at his desk in the executive offices before 9 o'clock. Although he showed the effects of his hard travel for the last five weeks, he was smiling and did not mention New Jersey to his early visitors.

Several of the President's supporters dropped in, including Attorney General Wickersham, Senator Crane of Massachusetts, and Secretary MacVeagh. The President had a long conference with his secretary, Mr. Hilles, and Senator Crane.

A Few More Delegates for Clark.

ST. PAUL, Minn., May 29.—The Ramsey County delegation to the Democratic State Convention was instructed for Champ Clark by the county convention here to-day. Former Mayor D. W. Lawler was indorsed for delegate-at-large. Ramsey County, with 95 delegates out of 111, will control the Fourth District convention, which will be held in Duluth on the same day as the State meeting.

Arizona Goes for Speaker Clark.

PHOENIX, Ariz., May 29.—Speaker Clark carried Arizona in to-day's Democratic Presidential primary by a vote at least of 3 to 1 over Gov. Wilson, according to returns early to-night.

ly became an incendiary, so that twelve of the sixteen waiters were called out at 11:45 o'clock. Two agitators had also been in there early yesterday morning. They collected in front of the place, drawing a crowd of 5,000 strikers in no time and making it necessary to call out the reserves. The manager and the head waiter were not above donning aprons, some of the busses were put at the task of serving meals, and some friends of the manager who dropped in for their lunch as usual caught the spirit of the occasion and began to pass the water and make themselves useful. A number of Greeks from a near-by agency were also pressed into service and Drake's flourished.

Regan Fights On Alone.

Mr. Regan of the Knickerbocker resigned from the Hotel Men's Association, dissatisfied with his fellow members' idea of the meaning of standing by one another. He said he did not propose to play the martyr's part. He had proposed that the proprietors who had not been hit should lend him of their waiters, and that they should discharge all who refused to serve him. They one and all voted him down and he departed. They had originally offered the Knickerbocker a detachment from their joint collection of strikebreakers, but he did not care for their appearance, although Mr. Boldt and others assured him that they would "look all right with their dickies on."

The Knickerbocker opened its two main dining rooms last evening for the first time since the walkout on Monday, although breakfast was served there yesterday and the day before. The grillroom, which would close shortly for hot weather, anyway, was not

TITANIC SURVIVORS HONOR CAPT. ROSTRON

They Present Silver Loving Cup to Him and Medals to His Officers and Men.

GIVES CREDIT TO HIS CREW

Modest Skipper Praises and Thanks His Men for Their Loyalty and Committee for Its Gifts.

When the Cunarder Carpathia arrived at her pier yesterday from Naples, her first return to this port since she landed the survivors from the Titanic, she was boarded by a committee of those survivors bearing a silver loving cup, and gold, silver, and bronze medals for Capt. Arthur Henry Rostron and his officers and crew. The committee was headed by Frederick K. Seward, and included Mrs. J. J. Brown of Denver, Lieut. H. B. Stefanson of the Swedish Army, F. O. Spedden, Karl Behr, the tennis player; I. G. Frauenthal, and George A. Harder.

When the passengers had left the ship with their baggage Capt. Rostron, at the request of the committee, issued orders for all hands to muster in the first-class dining saloon at 10:30 A. M. Of the 320 members of the crew that were in the ship's last voyage seventy had left at Fiume, according to Purser Brown, with whom they had left their addresses. Their places had been taken by other hands, who remained on duty while the 250 members of the old crew lined up in the saloon in two long lines. The officers and engineers stood at the head of the lines near the Captain, who stood by Mr. Seward, the Chairman.

It was a striking picture, that of the brawny, weatherbeaten old bo'sun and the quartermasters and sailors in their blue uniforms mingling with the soot-begrimed firemen and coal passers who had come direct from the stokehole. In addition to the gold-laced uniforms of the officers and engineers, the cooks, in their white caps and aprons, were there with a big array of stewards. At the head of the table, beside cases of medals, was the silver loving cup, standing fifteen inches high, on an ebony base and bearing the following inscription:

Presented to Capt. A. H. Rostron, R. N. R., commander of the R. M. S. Carpathia.

In grateful recognition and appreciation of his heroism and efficient service in the rescue of the survivors of the Titanic on April 15, 1912, and of the generous and sympathetic treatment he accorded us on his ship.

FROM SURVIVORS OF THE TITANIC.

In addition a framed set of resolutions from the women survivors that were proposed in the saloon on the night of April 17, before they reached this port, which included thanks to the entire crew of the Carpathia, was placed beside the loving cup.

In making the presentation Mr. Seward spoke in glowing terms of the high regard all the survivors felt for Capt. Rostron, and also eulogized him for the way in which he went full speed in a dangerous sea to their rescue directly he got the news of the disaster, and said that but for his heroism they might not be alive to-day.

For a moment or two after the applause accompanying the presentation had ceased, Capt. Rostron seemed overcome, and simply said, "I thank you." Then he gained a little more courage, and in the manly tones he used on the bridge he said:

"I do not know how to express my thanks for this tribute, for the honor you have accorded me, for the many compliments you have paid me, and for the kind things you have said in presenting me with this cup of good fellowship. All I can say is that, first, I tried to do my duty as a sailor; second, I tried to do it toward suffering humanity.

"But I will not take the credit for the achievement of that night when we went to the aid of the people of the Titanic. I do not deserve this credit. My crew does deserve it, and to them I want to give my heartfelt thanks for their loyalty, valor, and fidelity to the trust that was imposed. I cannot think of them too highly for they have brought this honor to me and to themselves, and I feel humbly proud of what has been done for me through their valor.

"I offer you the thanks of myself, my wife, and my family, and for generations to come this moment will be spoken of proudly by my descendants."

As he turned to his crew and thanked them Capt. Rostron's voice showed the emotion he felt.

Chairman Seward then spoke to the crew, saying, in part:

"The eyes of the world are upon you and were upon you when you came to us on the open ocean, when we saw the Carpathia coming to us out of the dawn, and to all of you we wish to give our heartfelt thanks. For your hospitality, for your devotion, for your unselfishness, and for all that was done for us we never can be adequately grateful, and as a slight token of that appreciation we wish you to accept the medals that we have had struck for every man and woman of this ship."

The medals bore in bas relief a copy of the Carpathia at full speed going to the rescue of the Titanic's victims, while the reverse side bore the following inscription:

Presented to the Captain and crew of the R. M. S. Carpathia in recognition of their gallant and heroic services, from the survivors of the S. S. Titanic, April 15, 1912.

There were six gold medals, one each for Capt. Rostron, Chief Engineer Johnson, Surgeon Frank B. McGee, E. G. F. Brown, R. N. R., purser; Chief Steward E. H. Hughes, and Second Engineer Marshall. Then, at the request of the committee, Capt. Rostron handed a medal to each member of the crew as they responded to their names as the roll was called by Purser Brown, each man saluting the commander as he received his decoration while his shipmates cheered. The junior officers received silver medals, while the members of the crew had bronze.

In speaking of the honor that had been accorded to him by the United States Government, Capt. Rostron said that he was proud for himself, the officers and crew of the Carpathia, and for the Cunard Line, and that he believed the whole mercantile marine of the world would feel honored by it.

Asked about the delay in the arrival of the news of the disaster on Monday, April 15, the captain said that he had no idea that the dispatches had not been forwarded until he got Capt. Haddock's message at 4 in the afternoon, and then he sent for Operator Cottam, who said that he had not been able to get into touch with any other steamers that could relay them through.

Capt. Rostron, his officers, and the entire crew of the Carpathia have been invited to attend the memorial band concert to the musicians of the Titanic, to be held next Sunday evening at the Moulin Rouge, formerly the New York Theatre, Broadway and Forty-fifth Street. The bands that have volunteered for this concert are Arthur Pryor's Band, Gustav D'Aquin's Madison Square Garden Band, Lacalle's Concert Band, New York Letter Carriers' Band, Hebrew Orphan Asylum Band, Catholic Protectory Band, Goller and her male band, United States Army bands from the forts near New York, and United States Navy bands from the Brooklyn Navy Yard and the war vessels now here.

CAPT. LORD NOT DISCHARGED.

Californian's Commander Staying in England in Order to Testify.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, May 29.—While there is no official authority for the report that Capt. Lord has been relieved of the command of the Leyland liner Californian, it is taken for granted that he will not have charge of any vessel pending the result of the Mersey Commission's investigation into his conduct in connection with the Titanic disaster.

LIVERPOOL, May 29.—Capt. Stanley Lord of the Leyland Line steamship Californian, who was criticised by Senator Smith, the Chairman of the Senatorial committee which inquired into the Titanic disaster, in his report presented yesterday to the Senate, and whose command of the Californian on her present trip from Liverpool to Boston has been taken over by Capt. Masters, is now in England.

Officials of the Leyland Line state that Capt. Lord is remaining in this country in order to testify before the Board of Trade inquiry into the loss of the Titanic, the hearings of which will be resumed on June 4.

The Leyland officials add that no action whatever has yet been taken with regard to any definite change in the command of the Californian.

GAYNOR CHIEF GUEST AT O'GORMAN DINNER

Democratic Leaders Meet to Do Him Honor at Washington Harmony Dinner.

ROOSEVELT IS DENOUNCED.

Event Connected with Plan to Make Mayor Governor and O'Gorman State Leader.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—Mayor Gaynor as a National figure was brought forward to-night at a dinner, which, while described as social, was strictly political, and given by Senator O'Gorman at the New Willard in his honor. Prominent Senators and Representatives, Speaker Clark, and the New York Democratic Congressmen were present. Its purpose was to show the estimation in which the Mayor was held by the Democrats of the Nation, and in that it was successful. Among New York politicians here the dinner was considered as marking Senator O'Gorman's assumption of the titular leadership of his party in New York.

None of the guests made references in their speeches to Democratic Presidential candidacies. It was a harmony dinner at which all paid tribute to Mayor Gaynor, and it was the Mayor's first appearance in that rôle among Democratic leaders.

Sharp denunciation of Theodore Roosevelt, the man whom the Democrats must beat was the keynote of the speeches. The speakers included Mayor Gaynor, Senators Bacon and Smith of Georgia, Speaker Clark, Chairman Underwood, Senator John Sharp Williams, and Representative Fitzgerald of New York.

While designed as merely a social affair, the dinner is believed to be associated with a plan to nominate Mayor Gaynor for Governor of New York, make Senator O'Gorman State leader, and a movement among New York Democrats to cultivate Oscar Underwood as a Presidential candidate.

In order to give Mayor Gaynor the prestige that would aid his election as Governor of New York, it is planned to put his name forward nominally at the Baltimore Convention as the choice of his State for President.

ANTI-TAMMANY CANDIDATE.

Democratic League's Description of Him Suggests Gov. Wilson.

The Democratic League, composed of anti-Tammany Democrats in this State, is preparing to start a campaign for "one candidate proposed for the Presidential nomination, who meets all the requirements, and can carry New York."

The name of this candidate is not mentioned in a pamphlet which the league has sent to all the delegates from this State to the Democratic National Convention. Preferences expressed by individual members of the league and the fact that the pamphlet was sent out and its contents made public so soon after the victory of Gov. Wilson in the New Jersey primary contest have led to the conclusion that the "one candidate who meets all the requirements" is none other than Gov. Wilson.

The man whom Thomas M. Osborne, head of the league and author of the pamphlet, believes could carry New York is described as follows:

A man of ideas; not a fool or a figurehead.
Honest; not a knave or a hypocrite.
A man with a good record; not merely a colorless reputation.
A speaker; who has something to say.
A man of proved experience in administrative affairs; not a mere theorist.
A true statesman; not a mere shifty politician.

And above all, a genuine Democrat of the school of Jefferson and Lincoln; opposed to all special privilege and ready to battle for the rights of the people.

Mr. Osborne declares that the outlook for Democratic success in this State is far from favorable, "chiefly by reason of the unpopularity of the present Democratic organization." He adds that it is not hopeless because the Republican organization is unpopular too. The New York City organization, he says, does not truly represent the desires and sentiments of New York Democrats, and for that reason it is necessary to nominate a candidate who can appeal successfully to the independent vote.

"Most of those who are mentioned as candidates," Mr. Osborne says, "do not fulfill the requirements and cannot carry New York."

LA FOLLETTE MEN COMBINE.

Leaders from Different States Make Plans to Stand by Senator.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., May 29.—The La Follette men of the State and those of other States have completed plans for the adoption at a conference here on the day before the Chicago Convention opens of a programme to push the Wisconsin Senator's interests. The essentials of the programme are a union with the Roosevelt delegates to control the organization; a demand for a vote on every plank of the platform, and if possible the substitution of the La Follette platform.

If the platform as reported by the committee is essentially that of the La Follette men, it will be supported; otherwise a fight will be made on every plank. The delegation will stand by La Follette as long as he has a chance. If conditions force some change of tactics, the delegation will caucus before taking any action, and it is hoped to pledge all the La Follette delegates from all the States, to abide by caucus action.

NEW, AS CHAIRMAN, DEFIES ROOSEVELT

Declares His Committee Will Not Be Bulldozed by Colonel's Campaign Methods.

STANDS FIRMLY BY ROOT

Efforts to Break In on National Committee, He Says, Will Be Resisted to the Limit.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 29.—Col. Harry S. New, Chairman of the committee in charge of the Republican National Committee arrangements, to-day came out in open defiance of the Roosevelt supporters. Emphasizing his remarks with clenched fists, Col. New declared that his sub-committee would not be "bulldozed, browbeaten, or intimidated" by any threats from the Roosevelt forces.

He declared that the arrangements perfected by his committee, which include the selection of United States Senator Root as Temporary Chairman of the convention, would be carried out to the letter, and that any attempt to intimidate the National Committee when it takes up the contests would be met with a firm hand, and that the convention would be conducted in an orderly manner, if it took all Summer to do it.

Col. New, making no effort to conceal his anger, said that the talk of sending newly elected National Committeemen here to take their seats before the convention is held and thus pass on the contests was outrageous. He said plainly that no such proceedings would be permitted by the members of the National Committee.

Col. New's anger was aroused by the report from Nebraska that R. B. Howell, the new National Committeeman from that State, taking his cue from Col. Roosevelt's defiant stand, intended to come to Chicago on June 6 and demand his seat upon the National Committee, as the successor to Victor Rosewater, acting Chairman of the committee.

Must Follow Precedent.

"Such a procedure is unheard of and wholly indefensible," said Col. New with emphasis. He declared it would not be tolerated for a moment and added: "A National Committeeman is elected to serve four years, just as the President of the United States, and there is no way of changing it. The term of a member of the National Committee begins with the close of the convention held in the year of his election, and not before. He becomes a member of the National body only at the meeting held immediately after the National Convention. The custom is as old as the party. Any departure from it would be without any excuse.

"If any man other than President Taft should be elected President next November he could with equal propriety proceed to the White House as soon as the returns are in and order Mr. Taft to get out.

"The Republican Party expects an orderly convention in Chicago next month and it will have it. It is the duty of the Republican National Committee to see that the party has such a convention. Full-grown men are not going to get scared over any threats to the contrary. The committee exists for that very purpose.

"It is the duty of this committee to provide rules for the conduct of the convention, to provide its temporary officers, and to do these things in order to identify the convention with the Republican Party and to differentiate that convention from any irresponsible gathering which might attempt to constitute itself a Republican convention without authority of any kind. The members of the National Committee are men of some standing and character. They are entitled to some respect and are not to be threatened or bullied into any act except to do their duty as they see it. I am here to see that they will do their duty. No one will be bullied at this convention, you can bet your life on that."

The last day for filing contests of delegates to the Republican Convention began to-day with a rush of communications to the Secretary of the committee. Alexander R. Smith of New York, who has charge of listing the contests, and a force of clerks were kept busy tabulating the letters and telegrams notifying the committee that different delegations would be contested.

Roosevelt Leads in Contests.

No attempt was made to classify the contests beyond estimating that there would be a total of about 260 when all returns are received. Of these, the committee estimates that 225 contests are by the Roosevelt forces and 35 by the Taft men.

Of the 1,078 delegates credentials for 1,000 had been received to-day and many telegrams were received by Secretary William Hayward, notifying him that the credentials had been forwarded.

Jesse A. Tolerton of Jefferson City, Mo., an aid of Gov. Hadley, arrived at headquarters with a brief for the Roosevelt contests in Missouri. He declared that President Taft is contesting the delegates-at-large and the district delegates from the First, Third, Fifth, and Fourteenth Districts, and that Col. Roosevelt is contesting in the Seventh District.

"If a fair and impartial hearing is given by the National Committee," he said, "Col. Roosevelt will have 26 of the 86 Missouri delegates."

It was understood that about fifteen of the Illinois Republican delegates would reach Oyster Bay Saturday to confer with Col. Roosevelt in response to the invitation they received yesterday. Chauncey Dewey and R. R. McCormick are expected to head the delegation.

Secretary Hayward left to-day for New York to bring his family to Chicago for the convention. He will stay in Washington a day to attend to a matter of personal business, but denied that his visit there had any political significance.

Sergeant at Arms Stone has announced the appointment of William B. Austin, President of the Hamilton Club, as chief usher at the convention.

Tickets for the convention will be distributed through the National Committeemen of the different States on Monday, June 17. The only exception is the 2,000 tickets for the Chicagoans, who contributed to the fund of $130,000 for use in meeting the expenses of the convention. These will be distributed by Fred W. Upham, Chairman of the Chicago committee.

The demand for tickets this year is greater than ever before, according to Chairman New. He has received 10,000 requests for tickets, and they still are coming in by the hundreds with every mail.

Senator Burton of Ohio was mentioned to-day as the probable selection to make the nominating speech for President Taft.

Friends of Col. Roosevelt have insisted that the picture of their candidate be given equal prominence with that of President Taft in the convention hall decorations, but no action has been taken by the Sub-Committee on Arrangements.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—Senator Root talked with the President to-day. He said he had not changed his determination to act as temporary Chairman of the Chicago Convention if elected.

"It is on the knees of the gods," said Senator Root, when asked about the situation.

BAILEY ROUTED IN TEXAS.

Senator Loses Convention Fight for Instructions for Harmon.

Special to The New York Times.

DALLAS, Texas, May 29.—Friends of Joseph W. Bailey, junior United States Senator from Texas, are disconsolate over the political developments in the State and admit that these developments mean the repudiation of their leader and the things for which he has stood.

At the State convention in Houston, which finished its work to-day, practically every thing advocated by the Bailey adherents was defeated. Senator Bailey came to this State from Washington and took the stump in behalf of Gov. Harmon of Ohio, but Harmon was defeated by Woodrow Wilson, and this State will send a solid Wilson delegation to the convention in Baltimore. The vote was 542 to 156 in favor of Wilson.

Senator Bailey favored a plank advocating a tariff law on raw materials. This was ignored by the Platform Committee. He opposed the bill of Congressman Randell, which prohibits public servants from receiving fees or gifts from corporations. The convention adopted the gist of that bill as a part of its platform.

Senator Bailey had two friends on the Platform Committee. Every plank proposed by them was tabled. Senator Bailey's bosom friend, Col. R. M. Johnston of Houston, was retired as National Committeeman from Texas and Cato Sells, manager of the Wilson campaign in this State, was selected in his stead.

The platform declared against injecting the initiative and referendum and recall into the Presidential campaign, and avoided radical expressions on free raw materials.

It reaffirms the National platform adopted at Denver four years ago, declares for tariff revision in the interest of the masses of the people, favors nomination of Presidential candidates by direct primaries, election of Senators by direct vote, and an income tax. The so-called Aldrich monetary plan is condemned.

Resolutions were adopted favoring an inter-State canal, waterway improvement and reparation for injuries to Texas citizens hurt by bullets fired across the border at El Paso during trouble in Mexico.

STEAM ROLLER HITS WATSON.

One-Time Populist Near Fist Fight in Georgia Convention.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, Ga., May 29.—Thomas E. Watson, whose influence turned the balance in favor of Underwood in the recent primary election, will go to Baltimore as a member of the Georgia delegation, but he goes bound and gagged by the unit rule. With men whom he has denounced in control of the delegation, and with his bitterest personal and political enemy heading the body, Watson's boast that he could run the State Convention to-day proved to be a joke. As a matter of fact, the former populist candidate for President was run over.

The Underwood leaders let Watson make some motions and talk awhile and then the steam roller was put to work. Watson was hissed and jeered while he was speaking. He begged the convention not to name his enemies upon the delegation, and he mentioned Congressman Brantley, T. B. Felder of Atlanta, and C. R. Pendleton of Macon. Felder, angered by Watson's language rushed at the speaker, but was pulled back by friends.

After Watson was howled down, the slate prepared by the Underwood leaders was put through. Eight delegates at large and forty-eight district delegates were named to cast Georgia's twenty-eight votes at Baltimore and they were instructed to work for Underwood until he is nominated. The eight delegates at large are Thomas E. Watson, Thomas B. Felder, W. G. Brantley, J. Randolph Anderson, Crawford Wheatley, G. R. Hutchens, H. H. Dean, C. R. Pendleton.

Many persons believe Watson will refuse to serve on the delegation, which will reelect Clark Howell, National Committeeman.

OUSTED M'HARG AS LAWYER FOR INDIANS

Roosevelt Campaign Leader Was Made to Cancel Contract with the Choctaws.

WAS GETTING $12,000 A YEAR

Dropped by Taft Administration and Now Is Shouting for the Man He Once Denounced.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—Interest in Ormsby McHarg, the Roosevelt manager who two years ago denounced the Colonel as a "dangerous man," and announced his intention to vote for Dix as Governor of New York rather than Stimson, although he was a Republican, increases as Mr. McHarg's record is looked into.

At present Mr. McHarg, next to Senator Dixon, is the most strenuous of the managers who are trying to "let the people rule" and to advocate true progressivism. Yet Mr. McHarg, who was a Ballinger man and a Taft man until he was dropped from the Administration, has not been always so idealistic in his views.

After his let-down from his position under the Taft Administration as Assistant Secretary of the Department of Commerce and Labor he set up again in the practice of law and associated himself with the general counsel of the Choctaw Nation, McMurray & Cornish, whose large contract fees were for months discussed as one of the great scandals of the Sixty-first Congress.

McMurray & Cornish were described over and over by witnesses in the investigation that was had by the House committee as not merely lawyers, but as big lobbyists, and it was to co-operate and advise with this firm that McHarg, under the tutelage of Richard A. Ballinger, got a contract to draw $12,000 a year from the trust funds of the Choctaws for what was pronounced by the investigating committee as virtually little or nothing in the way of service.

The ex-official, not entirely satisfied with this beginning, sought a further contract with the Chickasaws for another fat salary, which was to be $5,000 a year. This contract was summarily turned down by the Secretary of the Interior. The other with the Choctaws ran a year before the facts were brought out, and the pressure of public condemnation lead to its cancellation.

The contract with the Choctaws was entered into Aug. 28, 1909, and provided that Mr. McHarg should co-operate and advise with the general attorneys of the nation in all legal matters and questions touching the affairs of the nation. He was to receive his $12,000 a year in monthly payments, and compensation for his expenses while out of the city of Washington engaged in the service of the Choctaw Nation. This contract was said to have been obtained through the influence of Secretary Ballinger and was formally approved by President Taft, as required by law.

When under the denunciation of Senator Thomas P. Gore of Oklahoma an investigation of the contracts with the Five Nations was ordered by the House of Representatives and a special committee, headed by Representative Burke of South Dakota, went into the whole matter thoroughly, the principal object being to ascertain the extent and the character of the McMurray and Cornish contracts, and the purpose of a number of speculators to force the sale of the oil and coal lands of the Indians which were said to be worth $30,000,000.

The final conclusion of the committee was that these lawyers were wholly unnecessary to the sales of the lands of the Indians, something that the general Government was entirely competent to attend. Mr. McHarg appeared before the committee and acknowledged that he had a contract with the Choctaws, and gave the details of it, and in reply to numerous questions practically admitted that his service as attorney for the Nation was practically nominal. The committee in its final report said:

In the opinion of the committee, this contract is not justified on business principles, and the fact that the compensation is paid from a trust fund under the control of the United States, as trustee, makes it more important that the contract should be just and equitable than it would be if the Government were employing an attorney on its own behalf to be paid from public funds. When it is considered that McHarg received a salary equal to that of the Attorney General of the United States and almost equal to that of the Chief Justice of the United States, the excessive compensation paid for his "co-operation and advice" in Choctaw affairs is manifest. It is the opinion of the committee that the McHarg contract can be terminated without prejudice to the interests of the Choctaws.

Following this action of the investigating committee the President in due time approved the recommendation of the Secretary of the Interior, Mr. Fisher, that the McHarg contract be canceled.

CONNECTICUT HOLDS TO TAFT

Delegates to Chicago Convention Indicate No Stampede to Roosevelt.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 29.—A canvass of members of the Connecticut delegation to the National Republican Convention to-night indicates that it is solid for Taft. Ex-Gov. Frank Weeks, ex-Lieut. Gov. Everett Lake, Senator Edwin Emmons of New Milford, National Committeeman Charles Brooker of Ansonia, Charles Hopkins Clark of Hartford, and Senator Irving Chase of Waterbury, declared that they believed that the delegation was still solid for Taft.

Mr. Emmons said he did not think that either Taft or Roosevelt could be elected if nominated, and that he did not intend to switch his vote from Taft to Roosevelt if every other delegate in the convention did.

OLLIE JAMES IS DEFEATED.

Loses Control of Kentucky Convention, Which Pledges for Clark.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 29.—Gov. James B. McCreary defeated United States Senator-elect Ollie M. James for temporary Chairman of the Democratic State Convention this afternoon, thereby swinging control of the reorganized State Committee into the hands of the administration forces and making certain the election of Rufus H. Van Sant, candidate for State Chairman.

With enough delegates pledged for Champ Clark to insure him a solid delegation of twenty-six votes from Kentucky to the National Convention, interest in to-day's meeting centred in the factional fight

ANNUAL REPORT
Exhibiting Our Relation TO PURE CANDIES
Sold in Greater New York

Loft Loft

Pursuant to our Purity Policy, one detail of which provides for Official analysis of candies, etc., selected at random from the counters of our various stores upon an unannounced date once each year by competent and disinterested authorities, attention is directed to the following important certificate issued by the principal chemical laboratory in New York.

The original of this Report is exhibited in one of the windows of our Barclay Street store, the ethics of the profession opposing the publication of the name in newspaper advertisements.

Report in the Matter of Examination of Candies Purchased at the Various Loft Stores in the City of New York. Dated April 30th, 1912. Lab. Nos. 81741-81743, etc.

Pursuant to instructions received from you, our representatives have purchased fifteen (15) different kinds of candy selected at our discretion on different dates in your various stores, which have been examined in our laboratories, and found to be pure and wholesome, and to comply in every respect with both the Federal and the local State and City Food Laws.

(Signed) * * * * * Laboratories.

The analysis above comprehends a range of candies including the very cheapest made by Loft, as well as the medium and high priced. It will also be seen that the method of analysis is more sweeping and comprehensive than that usually in practice among makers of food products.

This method of taking a dozen or more different kinds of candies selected at random and rigidly analyzing them assuredly indicates the purity of ALL THE KINDS made and sold by Loft.

The goods of many candy manufacturers vary in quality and in degrees of purity, and while most candy manufacturers are willing to have some grades of their goods analyzed by official authorities, other lines of goods would not stand any such broad and critical examination.

As before stated, EVERYTHING passed the most exacting analysis, and it is believed that the goods of no other candy manufacturer in the United States, if analyzed in this sweeping and comprehensive manner would come through the ordeal as Loft's have—100% pure.

INTERESTING DATA

It must be a matter of interest to the thousands of our customers and to other citizens in New York and vicinity to be told that the Loft Candy Factory is one of the largest in the United States, if not the very largest.

The daily sales at the five different stores average in excess of 30,000 pounds, and the total output during each year amounts to many thousand tons—enough to make several full cargoes for the largest ocean steamer afloat.

The Loft factories employ 400 men and women, whose operations are conducted under conditions of greatest sanitary advantage—plenty of light and pure air, extreme cleanliness, etc., and who are paid upon a wage scale as high as any in the candy industry, and higher than most other factories. Hence, in consequence, all of the employees are happy and contented, and contribute the best services of which they are capable.

The advertisements announcing each day's special sales may be seen upon the second page of the following newspapers of New York:

Look for these daily bargains, as these candy news items will be particularly interesting to all lovers of pure, wholesome confectionery, who, by trading at any of the Loft stores, are assured of the highest possible quality of candy at prices from one-half to one-third prevailing in the Broadway stores, and in fact every other candy store of prominence in Greater New York.

LONDON SHIPOWNERS TO FIGHT STRIKERS

Refuse to Confer with Them, Saying They Cannot Trust Any Agreement Made.

A WAR AGAINST UNIONISM

Employers Declare That In Future the Men Shall Work on Their Terms, Not They on the Men's.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, May 29.—The action of the London shipowners in declining to take part in the proposed Board of Trade conference is the outstanding feature to-day of the London transport workers' strike.

Replying to the invitation of Sydney Buxton, President of the Board of Trade, the shipowners say they fail to see what good would arise from such a conference, adding that they have no confidence and no assurance that any new negotiations would have greater reality or be more permanent than those that have gone before.

Otherwise to-day was a day of speeches, meetings, and conferences. Realizing that they could do no good by violence or by interference with the work of unloading food supplies, the strikers kept away from the docks.

There was a meeting on Tower Hill, in which the music of a band which played the "Dead March" was an important feature.

In the afternoon the Strike Committee met the President of the Board of Trade to make arrangements for Friday's proposed conference. Earlier in the day Harry Gosling, Chairman of the Transport Workers' Federation, declared that unless the employers without exception were represented at the conference the men would have nothing to do with it.

The food supply of London is now so well assured that the prices of meat fell to-day. At Smithfield Market the supply is far in excess of the demand.

LONDON, May 29.—The hopes for a speedy settlement of the dockworkers' strike were dissipated to-night by the refusal of the shipowners to accept the Government's invitation to meet the representatives of the men at a joint conference at the Board of Trade on Friday. This decision was reached by the London Shipowners' Dock Labor Committee this afternoon, and was announced in the following letter to Sydney Buxton, the President of the Board of Trade:

Last Autumn two agreements and an award were arrived at. One of the agreements was directly under the auspices of the Ministers of the Crown, and bore their signatures. The first agreement was immediately followed by cessation of work, the arbitration award was ignored, and the final agreement was only tardily accepted. All these have now been set aside, and the workers called out without notice to the employers.

The shipowners have no confidence and no assurance that any negotiations that will now take place will have any greater reality or be more permanent.

Apparently the shipowners are resolved to fight to a finish, relying upon the Government to afford protection to whatever workers are employed. This course is indicated by a resolution which was adopted at a special meeting of the London Chamber of Commerce to-day. In this resolution the right of employers to engage either non-union or union labor is affirmed and the Government is urged to afford adequate protection to all those who are willing to work.

A similar resolution was adopted by the Corn Exchange and the Baltic Mercantile and Shipping Exchange.

The main issue now dividing the two parties concerns the status of non-union labor. The employers insist that they shall be free to employ whom they please. The strike leaders are equally determined not to consent to any settlement which will compel union men to work with non-union men.

In an interview to-night Chairman Potter of the Shipping Federation said: "We are now determined that the men shall work on our terms, not we on theirs. All agreements which have been entered into have been broken by the men. We must now protect ourselves."

The situation at the London docks was practically unchanged to-day. The work was still carried on under the protection of the police. No more disorder occurred, although the strikers gathered in hundreds in the vicinity of the dock exits, where they jeered and "booed" the drivers transporting provisions to the markets under the escort of mounted and foot police.

SITUATION AT FEZ GRAVE.

But Spanish Rumor of Massacre of French Officials Is Untrue.

MADRID, May 29.—Premier Canalejas declared to-day that the Spanish Government had received no news, either official or unofficial, in regard to the latest reported attack on Fez.

The Premier added, however, that from the latest information which had reached the Government, the situation in the Moorish capital appeared to be grave.

PARIS, May 29.—A wireless dispatch from Gen. Lyautey, the French Resident Governor at Fez, which was sent from that city at 7:30 last evening, did not say anything about a massacre of Europeans, but indicated that a fresh attack by the Moors was probable.

The newspapers have received no further news concerning the reported attack by tribesmen on Fez.

It was reported last night from Madrid that a rumor was current in the lobby of the Spanish Chamber of Deputies that Fez had been stormed by the Moors and that Gen. Lyautey and Eugène Regnault, the French Minister to Morocco, and their staffs had been massacred.

DOWNTRODDEN MAN'S REVOLT

Dr. Crothers Tells Audience of Women He Thinks Man Will Win.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, May 29—The Rev. Dr. Samuel Crothers of Cambridge, Mass., predicted the ultimate victory of man in a speech at the annual meeting of the British League of Unitarian Women in London to-day.

Dealing with women's work in the churches, Dr. Crothers said a result of the educational and social work of the last fifteen years had been to make American women more intelligent than their husbands in regard to social affairs, adding:

"It has forced the poor, downtrodden husband to rebel, and among the churches there was recently formed a 'business man's movement in religion.'

"The American has determined to agitate, so that when the question of reform comes along he will be listened to as respectfully as those in the women's clubs, and I think man will win."

ETHEL BARRYMORE TO PLAY IN VAUDEVILLE

Will Appear in "The Twelve-Pound Look" for a Short Season in the West.

GETS FROHMAN'S PERMISSION

First Time He Has Ever Let a Star Go On the Vaudeville Stage—A Pet Idea of the Actress.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, May 29.—A report that Ethel Barrymore is to leave Charles Frohman's management is not true, but she is to play, with his permission, in Barrie's "The Twelve Pound Look," which Mr. Frohman owns, in America, for a limited number of weeks in vaudeville in the West only.

Miss Barrymore feels that Mr. Barrie's remarkable play with its lessons should be seen in that part of the country. She will commence her regular season in December in a new comedy that will play a full evening. In her request to Mr. Frohman she said: "I would love to have people who crowd those other theatres see a great one-act play."

Mr. Frohman has completed the all-star cast of "The Amazons," to be produced in London on June 14. Besides Marie Lohr, Phyllis Neilson Terry, and Pauline Chase, contracts have been closed with Weedon Grossmith and Ellie Jeffreys, while supporting them will be Dion Boucicault and Godfrey Tearle.

In connection with the casting of the production there was a small French part to be filled, and in a discussion of the production with Mr. Barrie the latter turned to Mr. Frohman and remarked, "I suppose Guitry plays that."

Mr. Frohman has practically arranged to take the play and players to New York in August for a season of four weeks at the Empire.

Ethel Barrymore will be the first of the important Frohman stars to try the "two-a-day" field of theatricals. Her intimate friends have known for some time that she had asked this privilege of Mr. Frohman, that he had granted it, and that she intended to make Mr. Barrie's one-act drama the vehicle of her venture, but the news did not leak out until Mr. Frohman told it in London.

Miss Barrymore first appeared in "The Twelve-Pound Look" at the Empire Theatre last season, and the play and its acting met with much success. She was not able to present it in the West, however, and the arrangements for her next season's tour do not call for her appearance in that territory in her newest play, which is to be produced next December. She has been anxious to present the Barrie piece outside the regular line of theatres since she first gave it in New York, and Mr. Frohman's consent to the arrangement she purposes making is said to be in the nature of a recognition of her hard work in past seasons. She could not be reached at her home in Mamaroneck last night, nor was there any one at the offices of the Orpheum circuit, the Western vaudeville circuit, who could say anything about the plans.

Miss Barrymore has been under the management of Charles Frohman since her first appearance on the stage, in 1895. Her first appearance as a star was in "Captain Jinks" in 1900, and she has been a star ever since, appearing in a number of plays, and mostly at the Empire Theatre. Her venture into vaudeville does not mean that she has left the Frohman management, but that she will go "on her own" for a few weeks next Autumn.

CAUSED THREAT BY KAISER.

Heller, Who Supported French Propaganda in Alsace-Lorraine, Resigns.

STRASSBURG, May 29.—Director Heller of the Grafenstadt Locomotive Works, whose support of the French propaganda in Alsace-Lorraine led to the boycotting of the works by the Government railways, has resigned.

Sharp criticism of the boycott in the Alsatian Diet evoked the Emperor's remarks at a banquet early in May, at which he is reported to have said that if the political agitation in Alsace-Lorraine continued he would "smash the constitution of that province to fragments."

SOURCE OF OROZCO'S FUNDS.

Mexican Rebel Leader Runs Seized Railroad, Annexing Receipts.

LOS ANGELES, May 29.—A great part of the funds to finance the Mexican revolution is being derived by Gen. Orozco from freight and express receipts on the Mexican National Railroad, according to E. R. Jones, Vice President of Wells Fargo & Co., who was in Los Angeles yesterday after a trip into Mexico.

"The Rebels are operating the railroad and taking, of course, all receipts from freight, passengers, and express business," said Mr. Jones. "The total amounts to about $375,000 a month.

"Orozco, in addition to the railroad receipts, recently swelled the revolutionary finances by compelling the banks to take $1,200,000 bonds. The Banco Nacional of Chihuahua took $400,000 worth of these bonds and promptly closed its doors. The Cashier of another bank who refused to buy any of the bonds was placed in jail and is there yet."

CHIHUAHUA, Mexico, May 29.—Through traffic on the Mexico Northwestern has been stopped temporarily by the burning of a bridge by Maderistas near Santa Ysabel. The last train over the bridge was fired upon, but no one was injured. Most of the mines in that district will be closed by the end of the week.

In the field there has been no material change in operations, the rebels continuing their mobilization at Bachimba and the federals the repair of bridges north of Jimenez.

MEXICO CITY, May 29.—Gen. Blanquet, in telegrams to President Madero, stated yesterday that he had defeated the rebels near Aviles, ten miles southwest of Torreon. No details were available.

CHIHUAHUA, Mex., May 29.—Gen. Orozco has protested to Marion Letcher, United States Consul, against the attitude of the American Government in permitting Mexican authorities to recruit and equip soldiers north of the international boundary. The protest, which has been ordered published widely in both Spanish and English, is directed to Madero and to the United States, and intimates that there exists between Madero and the Government at Washington some agreement regarding a huge recompense.

The rebels complain that the American Government has crippled their movements by its stringent application of the laws preventing the importation of ammunition, and they characterize this attitude as eminently unfair.

MEXICO PLACES BIG LOAN.

$10,000,000 for Increasing the Army Furnished by Speyer & Co.

MEXICO CITY, May 29.—The Mexican Department of Finance has placed the $10,000,000 gold loan recently authorized by Congress for the building up of the army with Speyer & Co. of NewYork and Speyer Brothers of London. The bonds mature one year from date. They draw 4½ per cent. interest, and were taken at 99. In a statement Minister of Finance Ernesto Madero said to-day he had received various offers from foreign bankers, and thus had been able to choose that which was the most advantageous for Mexico.

The Minister pointed to the high price paid for the bonds as an evidence of the confidence felt by foreign financiers in the future of Mexico and in the present Administration. He declared the fighting strength of the country is 46,000 men, without taking into consideration the forces of the individual States.

EYES OF EUROPE ON MEETING AT MALTA

Asquith, Churchill, Kitchener, Ian Hamilton, and Others Discussing Britain's Policy.

MAY LEAD TO AN ALLIANCE

Suggestion That Tie with France Should Be Stronger — Italian-Turkish War Considered.

VALLETTA, Malta, May 29.—A conference which will probably decide Great Britain's future policy in the Mediterranean opened here to-day.

Among those participating are Premier Asquith and First Lord of the Admiralty Churchill, who arrived on board the Admiralty yacht Enchantress after calling at Naples to consult Admiral Lord Fisher; Lord Kitchener, who came from Egypt on a warship, and Gen. Sir Ian Hamilton, Commander in Chief in the Mediterranean and Inspector General of the Oversea Forces.

The conference is a direct result of the recent action of the Admiralty in reducing the Mediterranean fleet and concentrating the vessels taken from it in the North Sea. The step has caused the keenest discussion in England and France, and has led to the suggestion that the existing Entente Cordiale between the two countries should be replaced by an alliance.

The question of strengthening the British garrisons in Egypt and other places on the route to India and the activity of the Italian fleet in the islands of the Aegean Sea, with its effect upon the British position, will also be discussed.

NEW FORCE FOR PEACE.

Exists in American Women's Federation, Says Baroness von Suttner.

PARIS, May 29.—The first general meeting of the European section of the Carnegie Foundation for International Peace, presided over by Leon Bourgeois, the Minister of Labor, was concluded to-night with a banquet at which members of the commission representing all the countries of Europe were present.

Baron d'Estournelles de Constant, who was Chairman of the banquet, announced that the Foundation had decided to concentrate its efforts upon the education of the masses of the people of all nations. This it was hoped to accomplish by more frequent lectures, the exchange of visits between representatives of the various nations, the distribution of literature, and especially by a world-wide attempt to rectify erroneous or exaggerated information tending to cause trouble and to destroy international relations.

In striving to bring about international peace, continued Baron d'Estournelles, they would avoid mixing in the internal or external politics of the nations.

Baroness Bertha von Suttner of Austria made an eloquent address, urging the women of the world to labor for the peace of the world. She said she was on her way to San Francisco to attend the congress of the Federation of American Women's Clubs, and she would ask the American women to follow up what they had accomplished for America by joining with their European sisters in a campaign for world friendship and world peace.

"I shall try to put in motion," said the Baroness, "a new and great force in uplifting to good all mankind, and that force is found in the federated American women."

BOMB IN PARLIAMENT HOUSE.

Exploded on Staircase of Budapest Building—Little Damage.

BUDAPEST, May 29.—A dynamite cartridge was exploded at a late hour last night on one of the staircases of the House of Parliament, smashing a large number of windows, but otherwise not causing any serious damage

It is believed by the authorities that the cartridge, which was of the type used for blasting purposes in mines, was placed in the building at the time of the recent labor troubles and rioting.

"ROBIN HOOD" FOR LONDON.

Hammerstein Would Revive Operetta at His Opera House.

Oscar Hammerstein has entered into negotiations by cable with Daniel V. Arthur and Reginald De Koven for a revival of "Robin Hood" in London, with a cast of grand opera stars from the London Opera House.

The De Koven and Smith operetta was very successful in England under the title of "Maid Marian" when it was produced at the Prince of Wales Theatre, London, in the early nineties, and was the first American musical piece to have a long run in London.

FRANCE TO KEEP "SALOME."

Rothschild Increases Donation to $10,000 and Others Give $30,000.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

PARIS, May 29.—Following Baron Henri de Rothschild's initiative in subscribing $6,000 to the fund to buy Henri Regnault's painting, "Salome," some $30,000 was subscribed to-day by various amateurs, and there was a meeting with the Director of the National Museums at the Georges Petit Galleries.

Later it was announced that Baron de Rothschild had increased his subscription to $10,000.

It is now certain that the picture will be bought for the Louvre. The auction sale, at which it was feared an American would carry off the painting, will be held to-morrow.

CUBAN ANNEXATION BEST, SAYS JOHNSTON

British Administrator Sees No Other Solution for Cubans and Nations Interested.

ESTENOZ ON NEGRO RISING

Rebel Leader Says Revolt Is Due to Political and Legal Discrimination Against Them.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, May 29.—Sir H. H. Johnston, the explorer-administrator, in a letter to The London Times says that careful study of Cuban problems during his stay in Cuba has convinced him that the best thing that could happen from the viewpoint of Cubans, especially negro Cubans, and that of England, Canada, Germany, France, the United States, and Spain, which have invested so much capital in the development of Cuba, would be annexation to the United States with a form of Government for some years to come of a United States Territory.

"If the United States hesitates much longer it will become directly responsible for the administration of Cuba. Cuba may experience the history of Hispaniola."

Sir Harry Hamilton Johnston, who advises the annexation of Cuba by the United States, is a member of the Royal Geographical Society and an honorary member of most of the scientific societies of international scope. He has traveled and lived for many years in Africa and has written much of his explorations. He has a high reputation as a British administrator in Africa. He was at various times Consul for the Province of Mozambique, Commissioner and Consul General of the regency of Tunis, and Special Commissioner and Commander in Chief of the Uganda protectorate. During the forming of the British Central Africa protectorate he led an expedition to the lakes of Nyassa and Tanganyika.

His works largely relate to Africa, and he has written "The Negro in the New World." He is well known in this city, and is a life member of the New York Zoological Society.

HAVANA, May 29.—Gen. Evaristo Estenoz, one of the leaders of the rebels in the Province of Oriente, in the course of an interview with a special correspondent of El Dia on the subject of the causes and progress of the negro rebellion in Cuba, says:

"The primary cause of the uprising is the failure of the Government to repeal the Morua law, which provides that there shall be no recognition of political parties on racial lines, and is offensive to negroes. Another cause is the action of the Government and the law courts in denying negroes their civil and political rights.

"The movement is not a racial one, but simply the action of certain Cuban citizens to assert their rights at all hazards. We have no hostility to the white people, and I have given strict orders that no violence shall be committed on the persons of whites under pain of death. One of our soldiers has been hanged for violating this order.

"If the Americans intervene they will recognize me and my followers as a political party. We are prepared to continue fighting, whatever happens. All the responsibilities for intervention must rest on the shoulders of President Gomez and the Government."

The rebel forces are reported to have organized a regiment in Havana.

President Gomez has issued a proclamation in which he says in part:

"A group of men belonging to the colored race have risen in arms, and although the movement started in various parts of the Republic, it now exists only in Oriente, having been crushed elsewhere, thanks to the valor and efficiency of the regulars and rurales. The rebellion now consists of a misled uprising under the direction of persons desirous of gratifying their personal political ambitions.

"That the great majority of the colored race repudiates the uprising and remains loyal to the Government is proof that it is untrue that the whites and blacks are now standing in an attitude of hostility. Many thousands of colored citizens bitterly denounce the uprising and are anxious to lend support to the Government. Among the troops now facing the enemy, blacks and whites march shoulder to shoulder like brothers.

"Reduced as the rebellion is to a small part of Oriente, the Government, backed as it is by sufficient military force and the strength of popular support, will proceed with the utmost energy to comply with its National and international obligations to completely restore order."

Twelve negro insurgents were captured to-day at Saesta, a small fruit port at the entrance to Nipe Bay, according to reports.

Traffic on the Guantanamo & Western Railroad is still interrupted.

At the Government offices it is still declared that no news has been received from the front.

SANTIAGO DE CUBA, May 29.—The cruiser Cuba, bringing Gen. Monteguado, the General Staff, and 600 troops, arrived here to-night.

The United States gunboat Nashville has sailed for Nipe Bay with thirty marines aboard.

A band of negroes last night attacked Caimanera, in the vicinity of the naval station, but were repulsed by local volunteers. Insurgents fired on a freight train coming from Manzanillo to Santiago, but did no damage.

CAIMANERA, Cuba, May 23.—The United States marines who arrived here yesterday on board the Prairie landed to-day at Deer Point, the regular marine camp site.

A few skirmishes between Cuban regular troops and the insurgents are reported to have occurred in this vicinity. The losses have been insignificant.

NORFOLK, Va., May 29.—Five torpedo boats, the Terry, Roe, Paulding, Drayton and McCall, left the Norfolk Navy Yard last night, and it is reported that they are under orders to proceed to Key West to join the fleet now assembling at that point to keep an eye on the rebellion in Cuba. The collier Mars left yesterday for Key West to supply fuel to the warships.

PRAISE FOR MARINES.

Meyer Thanks Biddle for the Prompt Embarkation of Corps.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—The Secretary of the Navy sent the following memorandum to-day to Major Gen. W. P. Biddle, commanding the Marine Corps:

"The department desires to express to you and the officers under your command its appreciation of the thorough manner in which the department's orders for the embarkation of the marines were carried out.

"The quickness and smoothness with which all matters connected with the assembling of the marines at the various points and the expedition with which their embarkation with complete equipment was accomplished entitles the Marine Corps and the efficiency of its organization to the unqualified praise of the department. "G. V. L. MEYER."

When the first detachment was ordered to embark the orders were issued to get the regiment out on Wednesday. They were issued before midnight, and the Prairie was ready to sail late on Thursday.

The orders for the second detachment came at 2 o'clock on Saturday, and the men were under way before supper time. They were on board the vessels on Sunday morning.

Doubt is expressed here that the Cuban Government will have 9,000 troops and volunteers in Oriente Province within the next few days. The report that the Government would muster that number is believed to have been confused with the fact that President Gomez has issued a large number of rifles to law-abiding citizens to protect their property against attacks from rebel bands.

It is said here that the movement is becoming worse in Oriente, with the probability that the flame of insurrection may burst out again in other provinces where the disturbances are believed to have been quelled. It is declared at the State Department that there is now no intention of increasing the American naval force in Cuban waters.

American consular officers in the disaffected district expressed the opinion that the evident determination of the rebels to avoid a pitched battle would force an extended campaign before the Government troops can accomplish definite results. The insurrectos are reported to have broken up into small, rapidly-moving bands, conducting raids of destruction. The Government leaders, instead of attempting to surround the rebels, are dividing their forces into small units to guard foreign properties.

RECEIVERSHIP SETTLED.

Judge Hough Appoints R. E. Dowling for Improved Property Holding Co.

Robert E. Dowling was appointed yesterday by Judge Hough in the Federal District Court co-receiver with Charles C. Burlingham and Joseph J. Donohue, Jr., for the Improved Property Holding Company. This settles satisfactorily to all parties concerned the question that had been raised by the appointment of Mr. Donohue as one of the receivers. He was Secretary and Treasurer of the company, as well as a Director, and the point had been brought up that in consequence of his official position he might have been sued for an accounting of the transactions of the company. The concern has been thrown into bankruptcy, though its liabilities of $12,179,756 are less than its holdings of real estate and leaseholds, which amount to $14,989,668.

It is understood that each of the three classes of bondholders, A, B, and M, will make advances to protect their interests, and during the receivership there will be no mingling of the funds collected under the separate mortgages. To take up liens that are about to fall due it will be necessary to issue receivers' certificates to the amount of $150,000 and another $250,000 to $300,000 will be necessary to carry on the business of the corporation.

$20,000 LOOT MAN HELD.

Manhattan Jury Won't Indict, but Brooklyn Trial Awaits Curtis.

The Grand Jury yesterday refused to indict Burt Curtis of 203 West 111th Street, who was arrested on May 18 for carrying burglar's tools. Curtis, who is known in police circles as "Raffles," was arrested while entering the jewelry store of Gottlieb Glaubers at 80 Lenox Avenue, and calmly said, when told he must go to Headquarters: "Gentlemen, I will do as you please."

The next day Curtis led the detectives to a saftey deposit vault in the Harlem branch of the Colonial Bank at St. Nicholas Avenue and 116th Street, and turned over to them nearly $20,000 worth of loot, $4,000 worth being identified as the property of a man in Brooklyn.

After the Grand Jury had refused to indict, Judge O'Sullivan discharged Curtis, who was then taken before the Justices of Special Sessions to answer a charge or unlawful entry. At the request of Asisstant District Attorney Delehanty this charge was also dropped, and Joseph Taner, a detective, took Curtis to Brooklyn, where he was indicted yesterday for burglary in the second degree.

PEMBROKE PITT IN CUSTODY.

Baltimore Grain Man Comes a Prisoner on the Carpathia.

Among the passengers arriving on the Cunarder Carpathia from Mediteranean ports yesterday was Pembroke W. Pitt, formerly head of the grain company in Baltimore. He was in custody of Detective Charles B. Kahler of the Baltimore police, on a charge of forging bills of lading to the amount of $250,000. The prisoner, who was acompanied by his wife, did not appear downcast, and was so carefully treated in the first cabin that no one knew until the last moment that he was under arrest.

Several well dressed men and women who had come on from Baltimore with his brother Clarence to meet him, said that it was a shame to try to treat a man like Mr. Pitt as if he was a common thief.

Kahler captured Pitt on board the French steamship, the Niger, at Naples, with the aid of Italian detectives, who came on board in a patrol boat. The detective boarded the Niger at Piraeus with Pitt and his wife, whom he had followed from Athens.

According to Kahler, his prisoner confessed to some of the irregularities with which he is charged, and said that all but $25,000 of the $250,000 had been lost in speculations. Pitt said that he was glad to get home again. He is a well-built man six feet tall, with iron gray hair and mustache.

LAND-GRABBING WAR, SAYS TURKS' FRIEND

Vahan Cardashian States Italy's Claims and Replies to Each of Them.

YOUNG TURKS ON TRIAL

Trying to Regenerate Country and Loss of Domain Would Be Serious, He Says.

Asserting that Italy's attempt to seize Tripoli is an unwarranted land-grabbing scheme, and that the rights of Turkey are not fully understood in this country, Vahan Cardashian, a lawyer, of 55 Liberty Street, has prepared for The Times a statement of the position Turkey is now striving to maintain by force of arms.

Mr. Cardashian denies that Italy has any right whatever in Tripoli, and, taking up one by one the claims set forth by King Victor Emmanuel's government, seeks to disprove them. He says Italy is actuated solely by desire for National gain and impelled by the passion of a new-born imperialism which has led her to brush aside all consideration of international ethics and comity.

"In justification of the Italian invasion of Tripoli," continues Mr. Cardashian, "a mass of unsupported emotional claims and reasons has been presented to the world's judgment. The essential features of these alleged rights that constitute the basis of the Italian diplomacy are to be found in the manifesto issued by Marchesse Disan Giuliano, the Italian Foreign Minister, a series of articles in the semi-official La Tribuna, and views and statements made by a man of the eminent position of Gabriel D'Annunzio and others.

"These are: (1) A series of excesses committed against Italian subjects in the Provinces of Tripoli, Adana, Beyrouth, and disinclination of Turkish authorities to rectify these alleged wrongs. (2) Certain obstacles put in the way of Italian enterprises in Tripoli. (3) The shorter distance that separates Rome from Tripoli than Constantinople. (4) The allegation that formerly Tripoli was a part of the Roman Empire. (5) The claim that Tripoli was snatched by the Turks "from the Knights of St. John by trickery." (6) The imperative National, political and economic exigencies.

Answers to the Charges.

"First—The official records at Constantinople do not show that any excesses against Italian subjects were committed in any of the alleged territories. These records do show that certain differences were in the course of diplomatic negotiation between the Governments of Turkey and Italy, and that the Porte had stated repeatedly that if any such wrongs have been committed against Italian subjects they would be corrected and rectified. From this attitude the Government of Turkey never deviated.

"In his manifesto, the Italian Foreign Minister compained of denial of justice on the part of the Ottoman Government. Denial of justice presupposes a trial of the point at issue. If the Ottoman Government, after inquiry, had recognied the justice of the alleged complaints and had been remiss in their correction, then a denial of justice would exist. The alleged grievances were numerous, and their scenes of occurrence far removed from the Central Government and their merits and natures unknown to the Central Government. Then, if the alleged Italian grievances are just, why should their correction necessitate a protectorate over Tripoli? If only a protectorate can effectively right wrongs of these particular classes, why should not the same line of reasoning apply to territories where a larger number of excesses or instances of injustices are alleged to have occurred?"

"Second—In the last decade Italy established certain schools, a hospital and a bank in Tripoli, and on the whole enjoyed a larger opportunity there than any other nation. If the Government of Turkey had any animosity against Italy, the institutions now there would not have been allowed. These privileges have been extended to Italy despite the fact that Italians resident in Tripoli acted and talked impudently and imprudently, that their behavior was calculated to be offensive to the natives and the authorities, that their words and manners were the unmistakable signs of a strong passion in them to replace in Tripoli the Turkish power. Tripoli was and is a Turkish dependency and the Government of Constantinople can regulate the affairs of Tripoli in the manner and fashion it considers best for the interests of its people. If Italy disliked the vigilance of the Turkish Government, she could avoid the alleged discomfort and inconvenience to herself by leaving Tripoli in the care of its master.

"Third: The claim that Italy needs Tripoli as a naval base on the Mediterranean and for the influx of her population is an ambitious one, but lacks notoriously the support of precedent and logic. I need a part of the waste land of my neighbor which I would utilize for my urgent need. Are the facts that my neighbor does not need that particular parcel, that he does not use it, or uses it wastefully, and that I would use it to produce bread and butter for my family, give me the right of invasion?

"The wrongs and mistakes of the ante-Constitutional period cannot be set up in justification of the disruption of Ottoman territories. No intelligent Turk has any apology to offer for the notorious shortcomings of Abdul Hamid's rule, which made the destruction of absolutism possible and inevitable. It was that hideous system that kept the entire country in a state of stagnation and permitted social and economic decadence and universal destitution. The Young Turkey Party is an active protest against that system. No imperial observer could say that the constitutional rule has not immeasurable advantages over the conditions of three years ago. But even the most enthusiastic supporters of the party would not claim that the inveterate evils and diseases of the past have been eliminated and cast out from the system of Turkey. There is on foot a systematic and earnest effort to actualize those civilized social and economic ideals for which the party came into power. But no party or any set of men, no matter how ambitious and earnest, can revolutionize the habits and sentiments, the customs and dispositions of the masses in three or even ten years. No Cabinet, no set of statesmen can successfully, in a high-handed and arbitrary fashion, discard the traditions and practices of the past in a decade, and replace them by imported novel principles of government and a new social system. The Young Turkey Party has set itself to the work of the regeneration of the Turkish Empire. For the party to submit to the Italian claim would mean not only the weakening of its power, but most probably the total destruction of its prestige and rôle in the affairs of the Turkish Empire. For the Sultan of Turkey to surrender an integral part of his Mohammedan territories to an alien nation would mean a severe blow to his authority as Califf throughout the Mohammedan world. These are solemn facts that no set of men in power at Constantinople can afford to ignore. But the most preeminent truth in the premises is the indisputable and patent injustice of Italian aggression, which makes the submission of Turkey impossible.

"With an unjust war on hand, opposed by an angry and embittered nation, even the Italian battleships cannot carry the day. That a nucleus of 5,000 men, supported by the natives, in one out of the thirty-six provinces of the Turkish Empire, cut off entirely from the body of the empire, should hold at bay a united Italian fleet, supported by 60,000 men, baffled all the calculations of Rome, can be surmised from the apparent indecision and helplessness of the Italian forces.

"The threatened attack by Italy on the Turkish cities on the Mediterranean will not pass beyond the stage of threat for the reason that the Turkish land forces in these regions are far superior in number, equipment, and fighting capacity to any expedition that Italy might be able to muster, and, therefore, the Italian invasion upon these territories shall not be able to go beyond the protection of her battleships. And any attempt to steam through forty-four miles of fortified heights of the Dardarnelles is regarded by the masters of stratagem as such a foolhardy project that the most desperate commander would hesitate to undertake it. But from an international point of view the more important reason that would discourage emphatically any Italian attack upon the Mediterranean ports is that all these cities have large numbers of foreign residents. In Smyrna alone there is approximately an Italian population of 8,000, several thousands of Englishmen, and over 10,000 French citizens. Beaulieu, the French economist, figures that four-fifths of the banking and industrial capital invested in Turkey is French. Of the remaining one-fifth the bulk is foreign. So that to attempt to extend her activities to these regions would prove disastrous to Italy's finance and her future prestige in the councils of nations.

"On Oct. 1, 1911, four days after the declaration of war by Italy upon Turkey, in an interview with The Times, I said: 'I very much fear that Italy will find herself confronted by a repetition of the same disastrous shipwreck she experienced in Abyssinia. Her battleships may sink a few barges and unprotected ships, and she may bombard a few places along the 700 miles of coast of Tripoli; she may anchor her battleships one or two miles off shore, land troops, transport ammunition and food supplies, but all that is simply a prelude to a military campaign, quite different from a military parade, such as she planned and hoped for. The carrying out of such a campaign is bound to strain Italy's material resources. To reduce Tripoli is a far more difficult task than she accomplished in her whole Abyssinian campaign.'"

LAY BARNARD CORNERSTONE.

New Boys' School Will Provide Ample Room for Play.

The cornerstone of the new Barnard School for Boys was laid yesterday afternoon at Fieldston, at 244th Street, west of Broadway, and about five hundred students of the Barnard allied schools, with their relatives and friends, braved the thunder, lightning, and rain to sing and cheer. The exercises were held under a large canvas canopy.

The present headquarters for the boys' school is at 721 St. Nicholas Avenue, and that neighborhood having become within the last few years a crowded residential section, it was thought best to build the new building where the boys might have the advantage of the suburban facilities. Dr. William Livingston Hazen, the President, who welcomed the students and their friends, said that he hoped the boys would not only make the new grounds their playground during the school days, but that they would come on Saturdays as well and improve the opportunity of living a life in the open.

Dr. Hamilton Wright Mable, who spoke on "The School and the Boy," said that he believed in the "unsuppressed but regulated boy."

"Play is an important factor in education," he said, "for every boy is possessed of a tremendous amount of energy, and this energy must find an outlet; if the natural, normal channels are suppressed harmful ones will take their place. At most schools only one-fourth of the boy is at school. The other three-fourths of the boy is in the park or on the street. As I understand it, the aim of this school is to have the whole boy come to school. We must learn to regulate the boy just as we regulate business, but suppression is just as harmful to boys as it is to business."

Miss Katherine H. Davis, Director of Methods of the Barnard Elementary School, assisted by Mr. Hazen, Secretary Theodore E. Lyon, and the Rev. Dr. Edgar Tilton, laid the cornerstone with a silver trowel while a large flag was raised and the senior classes of the boys' and girls' schools, accompanied by the Ladies Philharmonic Orchestra, under the leadership of Miss Ethel Whalen, sang patriotic songs. Then the girls planted ivy around the new building, where the shower proved to be of some advantage after all.

EVIDENCE NEARLY BURNED.

Papers In Government Suit Against Southern Pacific In Big Fire.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 29.—The Government data, which it proposes to use against the Southern Pacific Railroad, charging fraudulent filing on lands in Kern County, Cal., were saved from the San Francisco fire because Charles Wood Eberlein had a safe that was really fireproof. Eberlein was acting land agent for the road.

The papers on which Attorney General Wickersham bases his suit, as announced yesterday from Washington, were kept by Eberlein in his private safe, so that they might not be open to the inspection of his clerks. After the great fire they were found charred and carbonized, but still decipherable if handled with care.

$5,000,000 HANGS ON A MISSING CODICIL

Reward of $50,000 Offered for Formally Executed Copy of a Rough Draft Found.

FORTUNE SIR JOHN SCOTT'S

Left by His Will to Lady Sackville, but the Codicil Gives the Greater Part to Scott's Relatives.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, May 29.—A romantic story of a lost codicil, on which turns the disposal of a fortune of $5,000,000, is contained in an advertisement appearing in the newspapers offering a reward of £10,000 ($50,000) for the discovery of the formally executed copy.

A rough draft of the codicil was found among the papers of the late Sir John Murray Scott, who persuaded Lady Wallace to leave the Wallace collection to the nation. He left a will bequeathing practically his whole estate, of which the exact value is not yet known, but is estimated at £1,000,000, to Lady Sackville.

If a signed and witnessed copy can be found of the roughly drafted codicil the result will be to divert all the estate except the income of a legacy of £20,000 or £30,000 from Lady Sackville to Sir John Murray Scott's next of kin, D. Malcolm Scott, on whose behalf the reward is offered, and his three brothers and two sisters.

Sir John made his will in 1900. The question is whether he ever carried the draft codicil further into the form of a regularly attested amendment of his will. Since the draft of the codicil was found a most thorough search has been made in all Sir John's houses. Bureaus and desks have been ransacked, safes and dispatch boxes closely searched, and large masses of papers connected with the estate which were in the safekeeping of the testator's bankers minutely inspected, but so far no completed copy has been found of the few lines of manuscript that control the fate of a million sterling.

Sir John spent a considerable part of his time abroad, and it is thought possible that he filled out a draft of the codicil and left it for safekeeping with a foreign banker or elsewhere abroad.

The reward, which is as great as was offered for the denunciation of the Phoenix Park murderers in 1882, will be paid when the codicil is admitted to probate.

FLORIDA ALL UNDERWOOD'S.

Indications That He Has Delegates at Large Beside District Votes.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., May 29.—With a large percentage of the vote in yesterday's primary accounted for, indications are that Underwood delegates have been elected from the State at large as well as from the three districts.

Frank Clarke, present member of Congress from the Second District, is leading his opponent, S. J. Milburn, by a small margin. Claude L'Engle, editor of a weekly paper here, was elected Congressman at Large over W. R. Toomer by nearly 5,000 majority.

TRADE UNIONS MUST GO.

A trade union is a band of men who meet in secret and make rules affecting the pursuits, the children and the property of other men, then set out to enforce these rules by ruining an employer's business, destroying property, paralyzing industries, maiming and murdering.

Trade unions are kept alive to a great extent by the goody-goodys who write and talk, but fail to think.

When one mentions the evil of the unions these will say in a sickly sort of a way, "You know labor has a right to unite." Labor is "mental and physical effort." Labor is something done, and something done cannot unite. Men can unite and men have a right to unite for social, religious, craft, or for any other lawful purpose and to make such rules as seem best for those who voluntarily join these organizations. To force these rules on others is criminal; trade unions are therefore criminal organizations.

A speaker before the Young Men's Christian Association referred to the conflict between capital and labor. He was short of something for the minute to say and injected this into his speech. There can be no conflict between effort, mental or physical, and money. If there is a conflict of the kind implied, it is between the employer and the employed, but of course there is no such conflict. In most cases there is a good feeling between the employer and the employed. In most cases the employer is paying all he can afford to pay and have a fair income from his business, and in many cases with bad debts and bad times it is a desperate struggle to keep his business at all. This expression, "the conflict between capital and labor," is harmful, for it tends to encourage trade unionists in their evil deeds. Still it will continue to be used, for it sounds big and saves the trouble of thinking—desirable qualities with some speakers.

Speakers of this sort also talk of the "rights of labor." There is no such thing as "the rights of labor." There is such a thing as the rights of men and no right of men should be held more sacred than their right to join or not to join an organization as they see fit.

Men not familiar with union methods are sometimes heard to say: "I would not join a union if I did not want to." A workman said this and continued at his work. As he was going along the road two shots rang out and men carried his lifeless body to his home.

There are no crimes so hard to detect and punish as those of the trade unionists. Men are brought from afar and when the crime is committed they are spirited away and every effort is made to conceal the crime.

Trade unionists go before legislative bodies saying they represent so many thousands. This they know to be untrue; they know that most of the men in the union are there because compelled to be there to keep their families from being hounded and insulted, to keep their homes from being smashed in or to escape some other brutish treatment.

The highwayman holds up a man on the road and will not let him pass until he has given the highwayman his money. The highwayman does not own the road on which the man is passing and has no right to his money. The trade unionist says to a man: "You cannot work in this building unless you give me money." The trade unionist does not own the building and has no right to the man's money. So the bulk of all the money the trade unionists use for state and national conventions and for various other purposes is got in the same way the highwayman gets his money.

The expression, "the open and the closed shop," should never be used in connection with trade unions. A shop is open for work and closed when the work is done. The question is not the shop at all but is the freedom of a man in the pursuit of his vocation, and those interested in this freedom should never use the word capital for employer nor the word labor for the employed; nor should the word labor ever be used to designate the unions or trade unionists, for the misuse of words has wonderfully aided in keeping the unions in existence.

What are some of the rules of the unions? A boy cannot learn a trade excepting as they permit. What? their own sons? No one's son. What have they to do with another man's son? Nothing. How can they prevent a boy from learning a trade? They have many ways of enforcing this and other rules of the union, all the way up to murder; and the trade unionists have murdered thousands and brutally beaten and maimed many thousands to enforce their rules.

Let us then hear no more of the use of the word labor for the employed, nor of capital for the employer. Let us say trade union when we mean trade union and trade unionist when we mean trade unionist. In dealing with this question we must use the words that describe accurately the unions and their methods, for there is nothing more important than standing for the right of a boy to learn a trade and for the freedom of the man.

At the entrance to every place throughout the whole land where men are employed should be the words: "A man to work for this company does not need to belong to any organization nor to give money to any one." With this right maintained, trade unionism with its hideousness will remain only as a memory.

GAYNOR MAKES PLEA FOR NEW POST OFFICE

New York Civic and Art Leagues Join in Urging Passage of O'Gorman Bill.

FAVOR DOWNTOWN LOCATION

Ex-Postmaster Wilcox Would Provide Building to Accommodate Wall St. and Hudson Terminal Stations.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—A large delegation of prominent New Yorkers appeared to-day before the Senate sub-committee of the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, to urge the passage of Senator O'Gorman's bill appropriating $5,000,000 for the purchase of a new site or sites for the new postoffice and Federal court. The bill contemplates the reversion of the present site to the city under the terms of the original grant of land by the city to the Nation in 1864.

Senator O'Gorman presented Mayor Gaynor to the committee in a brief address, and Senator Root followed in support of the measure. Representatives of various civic and industrial and art leagues and associations also spoke. No opponents to the measure appeared, and the effect of the presentation upon the committee was evidently favorable.

Mayor Gaynor referred to the history of the site and spoke of the inadequacy of the present building. Henry H. Curran of the Board of Aldermen explained that he and two other aldermen—Mr. Hanna and Mr. Lieberman—had come at their own expense to favor the bill. There is great need of open space in the crowded downtown section, he argued, and the people there are fighting for every inch of park space.

Ex-Postmaster William R. Willcox discussed technical features of the present site. He said that a new building large enough to accommodate the business of the Hudson terminal station and the Wall Street station would save money to the Government. No exact site for the new structure had been selected, he said, but for physical reasons, he urged that it be somewhere near the present postoffice.

C. Grant Lafarge of the American Institute of Architects, supported the officials. He was accompanied by H. V. B. Magonigle, Egerton Swartwout, and Otis Post, all of the institute. Mr. Lafarge declared the present location of the postoffice an artistic crime. An open vista there, he said, would greatly improve lower Manhattan, and would give a view—now shut off—to one of the finest buildings in the country, the City Hall.

Technical aspects of the case were presented by Frank E. McMillan, former chief inspector of the Postoffice Department. At the present site he said street cars on the Park Row side greatly interfered with the delivery of the mails. The fact, however, that the great bulk of the city's mail comes from and goes to lower Manhattan makes it imperative that the new building be erected somewhere near the present structure. It should have, he said, at least 100,000 square feet of ground space.

Arthur Dyer of the Produce Exchange, George Neville of the Cotton Exchange, and William A. Boring supported the measure, as did Bush Brown of the National Arts Club, Cornelius J. Early and Alexander H. Spence of the Parks and Playgrounds Association and of the City Club. He said the present site would be ideal for parks of any sort. He was followed by Charles N. Lowry of the American Institute of Landscape Artists.

GERMAN FLEET VISIT PLANS.

Taft and Meyer Will Receive Officers June 4 in Hampton Roads.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—Some changes have been made in the official programme for the reception of the visiting German fleet next month. Under the new arrangement President Taft will arrive in Hampton Roads on June 3, with Secretary Meyer, to meet the visitors.

The officers of the German fleet will come to Washington on June 4, to be entertained by the President at dinner at the White House. On June 5 they will visit the Annapolis Naval Academy, and on June 6 Mount Vernon, leaving Washington for Hampton Roads that night to rejoin their ships preparatory for starting to New York.

INVENTED BOAT ASSAULT.

Exciting Story Untrue, Boy Found Adrifts Admits in Court.

William Smith, the boy who was picked up unconscious or asleep in a motor boat in the bay by Capt. Henry Enyse of the tug Neponsit on Tuesday evening, and who told of having been kidnapped by a strange man at Port Richmond, S. I., and taken out into the bay and there knocked unconscious by the stranger, lapsed into mere prosaic facts in the Children's Court yesterday, where he was presented on a charge of improper guardianship.

In the presence of Sherman Zeluff of 408 Washington Avenue, Port Richmond, owner of the boat, who said it had been stolen about noon on Monday, William admitted that he had stolen it and that the kidnapping tale was exciting but untrue. A physician from the Hudson Street Hospital, to which Willie had been hurried for an examination as to the injuries to his head, testified that those, too, were non-existent and that the head was physically all right.

Justice Mayor remanded the boy to the care of the Children's Society until to-morrow, pending an investigation of his past. According to an officer of the society, William was a hero once before, when he reported to his parents that burglars had broken into his home in their absence, and that he, single handed and alone, had repulsed them.

MAY JOINS BEAR FAMILY.

Comes from Pike County, Pennsylvania, to Central Park.

The bear family in the Central Park menagerie received a new member yesterday from Pike County, Penn. The specimen, a good-sized female black bear, was bought from a resident of Pike County who trapped the animal in the woods.

May, as the new member has been named, was put in the bear pit with Bob, a large black bear. She cuffed him twice and then retired to a corner, where she remained for several hours, studying her new surroundings.

Bob choked his former mate to death a few months ago. His new mate is five years old and a good looking specimen.

WOULD OUST FOUR DOCTORS.

Convicted Physicians Proceeded Against by County Medical Society.

The Medical Society of the County of New York applied yesterday to a special committee of the State Board of Medical Examiners for the revocation of the licenses of four physicians of this city, on the ground that they had been convicted of crime in connection with their medical practice. Three of them, it was set forth, are now serving sentences in the Federal Prison in Atlanta, Ga.

Almuth C. Vandiver, as counsel for the society, asked for the revocation of the licenses of the following: Dr. Samuel E. Hyndman, because he was sentenced to serve two years by Judge Archbold on July 25, 1911, on a charge of using the mails to defraud; Dr. Ferdinand Hartman, because he was convicted on the same charge by the same Judge on July 26, 1911, and sentenced to one year and three months and the payment of a fine of $100; Dr. John E. W. Thompson, who was sentenced on March 24, 1911, by Judge Martin, to serve four years in the Atlanta Prison for depositing non-mailable matter in the mails for delivery, and Dr. Simeon B. Minden, who, according to the medical society's counsel, was convicted in the Court of Special Sessions on March 4, 1905, and fined $500 for violation of the trademark laws, and subsequently, on Feb. 9, 1912, pleaded guilty to receiving and concealing cocaine that had been smuggled into the United States, for which he was fined $500.

Minden, the only one of the four defendants who enjoyed sufficient personal liberty to appear in answer to the proceedings brought by the County Medical Society, was represented by ex-Judge Henry W. Unger as counsel. He pleaded that he had not known at the time that the opium he bought was smuggled.

The special committee, of which Dr. G. R. Butler was Chairman, took the cases under advisement. It will report later to the State Board of Regents with recommendations.

BACK PORCH FOR LEPER.

Barred from Showing Himself at His Front Door or on the Street.

BAY CITY, Mich., May 29.—Dr. A. S. Warthin of the University of Michigan and Dr. R. L. Dixon, Secretary of the State Board of Health made an examination yesterday of Herman Hirschfield, the suspected leper, who was recently brought from Centreville, Iowa, to his home here. The physicians said his disease was typical leprosy. It has been decided by the local health authorities to permit the man to remain in his own home. He is to build a porch on the back of his house and fix up his back yard as he sees fit. He will be allowed to spend his time out of doors there, but will be required to keep off the front porch and will not be allowed on the street. Mrs. Hirschfield has decided to remain with her husband, and will be subjected to practically the same regulations.

The couple's four children will be permitted to see and talk with their parents, but cannot live at home.

Health Officer Goodwin received word yesterday that Samuel Izen, a leper, who recently escaped from quarantine at Ann Arbor, is probably on his way to his home in Russia.

SUIT OVER WILD WEST FILMS.

"Buffalo Bill" and "Pawnee Bill" Want $25,000 for Posing.

Supreme Court Justice Gerard reserved decision yesterday on an application of William F. Cody ("Buffalo Bill") and Gordon W. Lillie ("Pawnee Bill") for an injunction restraining Patrick A. Powers and Pliny P. Craft from using moving pictures that the plaintiffs posed for. They are asking $25,000 as their share of the proceeds from the pictures now in use in theatres.

According to the plaintiffs a contract was entered into between the parties now in litigation in June, 1910. Craft and Powers were to have the right to put on small moving picture plays of Western scenes in which "Buffalo Bill" and "Pawnee Bill" were to pose, and were to receive $25,000 and a percentage of the profits. As a result of a dispute over certain payments Cody and Lillie refused to act any more, and they were sued for $1,000,000. This suit was settled. Now the plaintiffs allege that contrary to a new agreement Powers and Craft have placed on the market 8,000 feet of film under the name of the Buffalo Bill and Pawnee Bill Film Company. The plaintiffs maintain that these films will lessen the demand for future pictures, and will deprive them of their profits.

VERDICT FOR AUTO BUYER.

Car Bought for New One Shown to Have Had Hard Usage.

Mrs. Delia L. Martin, the widow of John F. Martin, formerly a member of the New York Stock Exchange, obtained a verdict for $5,175 yesterday in the Supreme Court against George C. Johns, an automobile dealer, whom she accused of having cheated her in the purchase of a motor car.

Mrs. Martin, who lives at 57 West Seventy-fifth Street, said that she had agreed in 1900 to purchase of Johns a new automobile for $6,500. Instead of paying that sum in cash, she gave him her old car and $2,500 in cash. Shortly after her purchase her machine broke down, and mechanics recognized it, according to her story, as an old exhibition car which Johns had had at his establishment for many years, and which, far from being new, had run probably 20,000 miles. Mrs. Martin went to Johns's store at 1706 Broadway in a taxi and demanded her money and her old car back. This was refused, whereupon a warrant was sworn out against Johns.

$5,000 FOR SCALPED GIRL.

Jury Takes Only Fifteen Minutes to Decide After Five Days' Trial.

Matilda Civetti, the 20-year-old working girl from Danbury, Conn., who was scalped by a revolving shaft in the factory of the American Hatters and Furriers Corporation in November, 1906, was awarded $5,000 damages by a jury yesterday, in the Supreme Court, before Justice Giegerich.

Miss Civetti was wearing her hair down her back, in disregard of a rule forbidding the girls to do so. The revolving shaft became electrified, drew her hair by attraction and completely scalped the girl, injuring her face and impairing her vision and hearing, as well.

The jury, after a five-days' trial, required only fifteen minutes to arrive at a verdict.

SAY CLERK SHOT FIRST.

Virginia Outlaws Declare Court Officials Started Fight.

WYTHEVILLE, Va., May 29.—Eleven witnesses have thus far testified in defense of Claude Allen, charged with firing the shot that killed Judge Thornton L. Massie when the Allen gang killed five officers of the Hillsville court. Victor Allen, younger brother of the accused, testified that the first shot was fired from the corner of the courtroom in which Dexter Goad, the clerk, was standing.

Another witness was Floyd Allen, father of Claude and Victor, who has been convicted of murder in the first degree. He repeated his testimony given in his own trial, declaring that Goad precipitated the trouble by winking at the Sheriff and drawing his revolver.

$28,828 FOR JILTED GIRL.

Breach of Promise Plaintiff Gets Interest Added to $25,000 Judgment.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., May 29.—On a judgment for $25,000 upheld in the United States Court of Appeals, Miss Ella Bay of Menominee, Mich., has received a check for $28,828, which includes interest since the verdict was returned in her favor in the Fall of 1910 in a suit against James S. Sanborn, Puckwana, S. D., for breach of promise.

The case was bitterly fought for four years and finally carried to the United States Court of Appeals. Miss Bay was secretary of a lumber concern at Menominee, Mich., at a salary of $4,400 yearly and resigned when Sanborn asked her to marry him.

AMEND STEEL BILL TO KILL RECIPROCITY

Senate, by Party Vote, Puts Tariff of $2 per Ton on All Print Paper.

WILL EMBARRASS THE HOUSE

Action May Kill the Bill and Tends to Delay Adjournment by Reopening Debate.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—A sharp move by the Republicans in the Senate this afternoon resulted in so amending the House Steel bill that the leaders are of the opinion to-night that the bill is dead for the session. The amendment consisted of a provision repealing outright the entire Canadian Reiprocity act and substituting for its free paper clause a duty of $2 a ton on print paper from Canada and from the rest of the world. Other amendments proposed by Democrats were also accepted and they all tend to imperial the measure's fate in conference.

The amendment repealing the Reciprocity act was presented almost accidentally by Senator Gronna of North Dakota, an insurgent. But the regulars quickly perceived the tactical merits of the plan. The insurgents proposed to merely repeal the ineffective reciprocity provisions, leaving free paper still in force. Mr. Gallinger of New Hampshire, a reactionary and the Republican titular leader, at once suggested that the free-paper provision also be stricken out, thus restoring a worldwide duty on print paper of $6.75 a ton.

Mr. Gronna yielded to this suggestion, but Mr. Cummins of Iowa, another insurgent, insisted that $3.75 was too much. A rate of $2 a ton, he said, would be adequate protection, and he asked Mr. Gallinger to accept his change. Mr. Gallinger saw the way for uniting the divided Republicans for once on the tariff and accepted. The roll was then orderod, and by an almost strictly partisan vote the amendment was adopted, 37 to 27.

Three Republicans voted against the amendment and in favor of retaining the present free trade with Canada in print paper. They were Senators Bristow of Kansas, who opposed reciprocity when it first came up; Fall of New Mexico, and Poindexter, an insurgent from Washington. Four Democrats voted for the amendment—Johnson and Gardiner of Maine, where there are large paper mills; Simmons of North Carolina, where there is a large lumber industry, and Thornton of Louisiana, where lumber is also important.

Senator Penrose, Chairman of the Finance Committee, was in high feather over the manoeuvre. He said afterward that it would prove impossible now to pass any steel bill at all through the Senate without the reciprocity amendment, and he was inclined to doubt that the House would consent to the repeal of reciprocity and the restoration of a duty on paper. The bill will be permitted to pass the Senate in its present form, he said, and will go to conference. He thought that after the conferees failed to agree and the Senate several times failed to recede, the House would simply drop the measure and adjourn.

Among the Democrats, however, there is a doubt on this point. Certain that the President will veto the bill anyhow, it is suggested that they may adopt Republican tactics in the House and let the objectionable amendment remain in the bill to meet the President's veto. However that may be the feeling to-night on the score of adjournment is gloomy. It is certain that the Steel bill will be tied up in conference, and that other bills will be subject to attack in ways not heretofore intended. To-day's vote practically revives the whole subject of the tariff as a debatable question.

In some quarters the vote of the Senate Republicans is construed as another blow at President Taft. Reciprocity was one of his hobbies, and the elimination of the act from the statute books by an almost unanimous party vote is construed in some sense as repudiation of Mr. Taft following his reverses in the campaign against Col. Roosevelt. But this construction seems forced. The amendment was adopted for tactical reasons pure and simple, while the reciprocity act itself has already been nullified by Canada. As for the free paper provision that was forced on President Taft from the start.

Two other amendments were adopted by the Senate to-day, both of them being proposed by Democrats. One, offered by Mr. Hitchcock of Nebraska, reduces the duty on pig iron from the 8 per cent. rate of the House bill to 6 per cent. The other offered by Mr. Watson of West Virginia, a mine owner himself, reduces the duty on ferro-silicon from 15 per cent. to 10 per cent. The amendments offered yesterday by Hoke Smith putting farm implements on the free list, and by Mr. Pomerene of Ohio, taking machine tools from the free list and subjecting them to a duty of 20 per cent., were defeated.

The vote on Mr. Hitchcock's amendment reducing the protection on pig iron was interesting because it showed that the insurgents after their reverses of last Summer are now willing to vote for their own rates even when offered by Democrats. The Hitchcock amendment took the pig iron rate of the Cummins bill, and seven insurgent Senators voted for it. They were Borah of Idaho, Bristow of Kansas, Cummins of Iowa, Gronna of North Dakota, Jones of Washington, Poindexter of Washington, and Works of California. Last year when Mr. Cummin's bill was offered in full by Senator Bacon of Georgia all the insurgents, including Mr. Cummins himself, voted against it, and the measure was passed over their bitter protests. The Democrats voted solidly for the amendment.

NEWSPAPERS BY AEROPLANE

Farnum Fish Flies Over Wisconsin, Dropping Bundles from Machine.

Special to The New York Times.

MILWAUKEE, May 29.—Battling with a sixty-mile gale, Farnum Fish late this afternoon made a fifty-mile flight from Milwaukee to Watertown, Wis., carrying newspapers to the cities en route. It was the first use of an aeroplane in the circulating of newspapers.

Fish nearly had an accident on his first attempt, being driven slowly back by a wind which his motors could not equal. Finally he landed only fifteen feet from Lake Michigan. His second attempt saw him flying at the dangerously low height of 500 feet over the city, until he reached better air conditions five miles from the lake. He dropped bundles of newspapers at Waukesha and Oconomowoc, the cities about which are many Summer homes of Chicago and Milwaukee residents, and then went on to Watertown. To-morrow he will make the return trip.

NAMED FOR WEST POINT.

President Taft, Following Custom, Appoints Sons of Army Officers.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—President Taft has decided on a number of appointments at large for West Point, giving the coveted places mainly to sons of army officers, according to the time-honored custom which recognizes the fact that army officers, being ordered from place to place, have no abiding citizenship and no Congressman to give their West Point cadetships to their sons.

The list is as follows: A. K. King, son of Gen. Charles King, retired; H. C. Jones, son of Major W. K. Jones, Pay Department; J. M. Crane, son of Col. Crane, Ninth Infantry; W. A. Snow, son of Major W. J. Snow, Third Field Artillery; Frank C. Scofield, son of John C. Scofield, Assistant Secretary and Chief Clerk of the War Department and one of the veteran officials of that department; J. B. Bennett, son of Major J. B. Bennett, Twenty-fourth Infantry; Craigie Kraynbuhl, son of the late Col. Kraynbuhl, Third Artillery; F. G. Bonham, son of the late Lieut. W. B. Bonham; E. C. Bliss, son of Brig. Gen. Tasker H. Bliss, commanding the Eastern Division of the United States; G. J. Newgarden, son of Major G. J. Newgarden, retired; C. H. Evans, son of Major E. W. Evans, Pay Corps; K. M. Halpine, son of Lieut. A. F. Halpine, retired; J. W. Rafferty, son of Lieut. Col. Ogden Rafferty, retired.

GETTYSBURG JUBILEE FUNDS.

Senate Appropriates $150,000—Peace Memorial Plan Postponed.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—At a joint meeting to-day of the Pennsylvania Gettysburg Celebration Commission and the representatives of the States, it was decided to abandon for the present the movement for an appropriation of $500,000 or more for the erection upon the battlefield of a peace memorial. The project will be pushed at the next session of Congress. The conference ended to-day with a visit to President Taft at the White House.

The Secretary of War estimated the cost of putting the Gettysburg camp in order, erecting tents and making other provisions for the celebration, would be $285,943. The State of Pennsylvania will appropriate $150,000, making $300,000 available altogether to care for the big gathering.

The Senate to-day passed unanimously the bill appropriating $150,000 for the Government's participation in the peace jubilee at Gettysburg in 1913 on the occasion of the fiftieth anniversary of the battle. The house is expected to promptly pass the Senate resolution so that the work under the War Department's direction may begin without delay. The control of the camp and the movements of the marching bodies will be under the Secretary of War.

Will Investigate Japanese Deal.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—Negotiations of Japanese interests for land on Magdalena Bay, Mexico, were referred to-day by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to a sub-comittee for investigation to determine if any acquisitions of territory or concessions there encroach upon the Monroe Doctrine.

ATTACKS STANDARD OIL.

Counsel for Waters-Pierce Co. Tells of New Rockefeller Suits.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., May 29.—Judge H. S. Priest, chief counsel for the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, gave out the following statement to-night:

"The testimony of Mr. Rockefeller, as reported in the newspaper dispatches, is certainly not calculated to convince the ordinary American citizen of Mr. Rockefeller's ignorance of the perpetuation of the Standard Oil Trust in violation of the decree of the Supreme Court of the United States. I have not had an opportunity to read the 'verbatim' testimony, but as the reports in the various papers agree concerning the essential features of the examination, I assume that they are correct.

"The attempts at evasion employed by Mr. Rockefeller when he was confronted with direct questions concerning his knowledge of the methods employed by the Standard Oil Trust to continue its monopoly in spite of the Supreme Court decree are probably as effective in revealing to the general public the maintenance of the trust as any of the admissions which were so unwillingly dragged from him. This, too, in spite of the fact that the whole tenor of his testimony was to show that a thorough understanding exists among the big men of the Standard Oil Company in their direction of the companies which the Supreme Court ordered to be entirely divorced from the trust.

"The collusion among the moving spirits of the Standard Oil in their efforts to evade the mandates of both the Federal Courts and the Supreme Court of Missouri and absorb the Waters-Pierce Oil Company into the still existing combination can be readily seen by the most casual observer in the simultaneous attacks that are being made by Standard Oil agents against the Waters-Pierce Company in the courts at the present time. Coincidence could hardly explain the concerted movement.

"The recent action brought against the Waters-Pierce Company in the Federal courts here by H. M. Tilford, one of the Standard's trusted agents, to prevent the Waters-Pierce from building its own refineries and getting its oil from other sources than the Standard companies, is but another phase of the campaign of Mr. Rockefeller, Mr. Archbold, and their associates to draw the Waters-Pierce Company into their combination.

"There is no doubt in my mind that the close of the present litigation, forced on the Waters-Pierce by the Standard, will result in a complete revelation of the existence of the old trust and an utter defiance of the decree of dissolution handed down by the United States Supreme Court."

SHOWER CAUSE OF STABBING.

It Made Two Laborers Quarrel, and One of Them May Die.

The shower yesterday afternoon was responsible, indirectly, for a stabbing on Forty-eighth Street, between Sixth and Seventh Avenues, which may prove fatal for Andre Ambino, 18 years old, a laborer, who is in Flower Hospital with a deep wound over his heart. His assailant was Patrick Alberto, 26 years old, of 355 St. Mark's Avenue, Brooklyn, who is locked up in the West Forty-seventh Street Station charged with felonious assault.

Ambino and Alberto were working together on a street repairing job when the shower came up. Just before running for shelter there was an argument as to who should pick up a few shovels that lay on the street, and in a moment Ambino, according to Alberto, struck his opponent over the left eye with his pick handle. Alberto refused to take the blow good naturedly and drew out a pocket knife, with which he stabbed his assailant.

LOUISIANA THANKS CITY FOR FLOOD FUND

Day's Gifts for the Mississippi River Sufferers Reach a Total of $3,230.

$14,510 NOW IN THE FUND

Workers Here Believe the Public Is Waking Up to the Urgent Need for Money.

The fund for the Southern flood sufferers was further augmented yesterday by contributions received by the Mayor's Relief Committee at the Mayor's office, the Red Cross office, and the office of William D. Buckner, Treasurer of the Southern Society. The total amount received yesterday showed a considerable increase over the total contributions for the preceding day, and the members of the various sub-committees expressed their encouragement, and further their belief that the public is at last waking up to the urgent need of assistance for the hundreds of thousands of people along the Mississippi who have been left destitute by the flood.

The total contributions given over to the Mayor's Committee yesterday amounted to $2,905, with the addition of $325 which was received through the Stock Exchange, making $3,230. This amount, added to the contributions previously received, $11,280.18, results in a grand total to date of $14,510.18. The New York Cotton Exchange has contributed the sum of $5,470, which was sent direct to the President of the Memphis Cotton Exchange for distribution.

Robert Adamson received a letter yesterday from Gov. Hall of Louisiana, saying: "I thank you, the Mayor of New York, and other citizens of your great city, for the interest you are manifesting in our suffering people."

Another intimate account of the distressing conditions among the flood sufferers is given by Ernest P. Bicknell, a National Red Cros director, who writes from Vicksburg, Miss., to John M. Glenn of the Russell Sage Foundation, at 105 East Twenty-second Street:

"The intensity of the situation in the flooded district is well illustrated by the experiences of the relief steamers which traverse the region. Hundreds of houses are so deeply submerged that they are on the point of floating away. They are so lightly poised that the waves caused by steamers are likely to start them moving. Occupants of these houses are constantly in fear, and when a steamer is seen approaching they set up a shout of warning. All steamboat men understand and reduce speed to a minimum. In some instances, when steamers seem careless, householders bring out their guns and threaten to shoot the pilot. This generally has the desired effect.

"Rescuing the animals is difficult and dramatic. After standing cramped and rigid on a narrow platform for days, a horse or a cow often cannot walk. It cannot be induced to step from its scaffold to a barge. Accordingly a rope is fastened about its horns or neck, several men seize the rope, and with a mighty pull drag the frightened creature into the water. It is then drawn struggling to the side of the barge, and hoisted, half drowned, to safety, amid a great splashing and kicking. The work is exhausting and dangerous.

"Frequently frightened women and children clinging piteously to roofs fear to try to enter the boats, and must be seized and lifted by the rescuers. A boat on which the writer spent some time one night between midnight and daylight rescued from housetops and scaffolds ninety-three persons and over twenty mules, cows and pigs. In the flickering light of lanterns and the mysterious shadows and with the dying children, the strange cries of terror of the animals, the splashing of water and the shouting of the men, the scene was one never to be forgotten. The grief of the refugees over their losses and the leaving of their houses and all the accumulation of years gave a touch of pathos and tragedy to the work of rescue which saddened and subdued all witnesses."

HASTY MARRIAGE STANDS.

Justice Goff Refuses to Annul One Entered Into on Threat.

A girl who marries for a lark or on a threat must bear the consequences, according to Justice Goff's decision yesterday in the annulment case of Mrs. Lucy Warschauer Fried.

Mrs. Fried alleged that she had gone to Jersey City with Samuel Fried, to witness the marriage of her sister, Hattie, who eloped. After that ceremony, according to Mrs. Fried's story, Fried declared his love, and persuaded her to follow her sister's example. She, at the time, was engaged to a man in California. Mrs. Fried told the court that she had never lived with her husband.

"The law cannot give relief for the consequences of a romantic escapade or whimsical notions," said the Justice.

Mrs. Fried had testified that her husband threatened to shoot her, if she did not marry him.

"Did you take his threat seriously?" was asked of her.

"No," came the reluctant answer.

DROP COUNTESS STAVRA SUIT

Two Trials of Dey's Claim Against Estate Brought No Result.

When the suit brought by Richard Dey, the California mining capitalist, to recover an alleged loan of $14,650 from the estate of the late Countess Stavra, was called for its third trial yesterday before Supreme Court Justice Greenbaum, counsel announced that the suit had been discontinued. The two juries that have already considered Mr. Dey's contention that he loaned the Countess Stavra $14,000 in Paris to help her pay off a mortgage on some London property failed to agree.

No reason was given for the discontinuance of the suit.

The question of strength in different foods and make some personal tests.

Some persons believe that to become strong they must eat meat.

Dietetic science and practical athletic trainers have discovered the error of this old theory.

A strong body and powerful mind are more surely and permanently gained from the use of cereal food.

Grape-Nuts

made of whole wheat and barley, contains the elements that go to build up brain and body cells—including the Phosphate of Potash (grown in the grains) which Nature requires for perfect cell nourishment.

Ever try omitting chops or steak for breakfast and replace them with Grape-Nuts and cream—eaten slowly?

NOT ON MEAT
Man Couldn't Regain Strength Until He Changed to Grape-Nuts.

It's a common joke to say "He eats so much it makes him poor to carry it around," when speaking of some thin, scrawny fellow who eats as much as a horse, but it is frequently true if the food is not the kind the body calls for.

A German woman of Chicago gives an instance in her own family. It's briefly told, but the truth is there: "My husband lost his left hand in an accident and lost a large amount of blood. He kept getting weaker for five months, and finally got a severe cough. He would eat big meals of meat and potatoes to get well, but didn't get any good from them. Finally I persuaded him to try Grape-Nuts food, and from a skeleton of 83 pounds he soon regained his normal weight of 207 pounds and is strong and well and declares he wants no other food for the main part of his meals.

"As for myself, my flesh was flabby, I tired so easily and my memory was so poor I could keep nothing in my head, but after three months of the Grape-Nuts diet I gained 12 pounds, my flesh is hard and firm, I am stronger and my memory has improved wonderfully. I keep a candy store, but I sell Grape-Nuts, too, for I think it is the best thing to give the children." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

SETS ASIDE DIVORCE OBTAINED AT 74

Court Finds Reason to Doubt That Mrs. Dye Was Ever Legally Married to the Colonel.

CEREMONY WAS IN 1867

And Witnesses Now Are Found to Prove That Col. Dye Had a Wife Then Living.

On the ground that newly presented evidence cast doubt on the validity of Mrs. Susan Elson Dye's marriage to her 76-year old husband Col. Joseph E. Dye, her recently obtained divorce was set aside yesterday by Justice Greenbaum in the Supreme Court.

Mrs. Dye, who is, according to her testimony, 74, and according to her husband five years older than himself, obtained a divorce in November, 1911, on the charge that her husband whom she married in 1867, after she had been divorced by her husband William H. Dukehart, was guilty of infidelity.

Col. Dye, who is a veteran of the civil war, alleged in the trial that the present Mrs. Dye was really not his wife at all, since his first wife, Martha Spencer of Old Bridge, N. J., was alive and had not divorced him, when he married Mrs. Dukehart. The testimony to this effect was, however, not convincing to the jury.

On May 15, however, more than ten affidavits from eye witnesses of the Old Bridge wedding and from relatives of the former Mrs. Dye, were presented as bearing out Col. Dye's defense. These various affidavits, which have caused Justice Greenbaum to set aside the November verdict, tell, in the aggregate, the curious romance of Col. Dye.

In 1863, just prior to his departure to join the Army of the Potomac, Dye traveled to Old Bridge, N. J., and married Martha Spencer. During his absence in the war he confided his young wife to his mother, who lived at Stapleton, S. I. In 1865 he returned for her, and took her to New York, where they stopped at a West Twenty-sixth Street boarding house owned by Mrs. Van Valkenberg.

Here Dye met Mrs. Dukehart, who at that time was a young woman of about 30. He became infatuated with her, Mrs. Dye's anger was aroused and she abandoned her husband, returning to her old home in Old Bridge, N. J. And here the difficulty of identity arose. For Mrs. Dye left off her old name and was known for the remaining years of her life as Martha Spencer. On her tombstone her brother caused her name to be inscribed as Martha Spencer, and in her duly probated will no mention of her husband's name is made.

In 1883, the affidavit says, Mrs. Spencer Dye was killed in a train accident. No notice of her death was sent to Col. Dye who had no word of her, since she left him in 1865. Now, during the two years ensuing Mrs. Dye's defection, Mrs. Dukehart was, according to Col. Dye's statement, divorced.

"In 1867," he alleges, "Mrs. Dukehart asked me to marry her. I told her it was impossible, since I had no word of my wife being dead. She told me that the law permitted me to marry again, since I had not heard of my wife in two years. Now, I was entirely under the influence of this woman at this time, and so, against my will, I consented to the ceremony of marriage, although my conscience was uncertain all the time."

In presenting his affadivits, Mr. Tower explained that he was striving throughout the trial to reach the long-lived inhabitants who, he surmised, still lived at Old Bridge, to tell the tale of Col. Dye's wedding at the half-forgotten Old Bridge Hotel. As they recall it, a dashing young officer burst in upon the sleepy town, met Martha Spencer, married her and bore her off, all within the span of a week.

Justice Greenbaum has set the re-trial of the case for next week.

President Connolly Made Haste Lest More Legal Obstacles Should Come.

Records went to smash in Queens Borough yesterday when Borough President Maurice E. Connolly left his breakfast half finished, jumped into an automobile and was taken post haste to the Borough Hall in Long Island city where he placed his signature on eight contracts for road improvements at the rate of more than one a minute. In about ten minutes after the President's arrival at his office a confidential messenger was started for the Controller's office with the contracts where they will be registered. It is expected that this will take a week or more and than the contractors will be put to work.

The total of the contracts thus signed was over $825,000 and in the number are most of the important through roads of the county, one of them being Thompson Avenue and Hoffman Boulevard which extends eastward from the Queensboro bridge in Long Island City and is the great automobile highway to eastern Long Island.

This haste was to circumvent any legal obstacle that might hold up the contracts. On Tuesday an opinion was received from Corporation Counsel Watson by President Connolly to the effect that an amendment passed at the last Legislature would require all the work thus far done on road contracts in Queens to be done over again. All bids thus far received would have to be thrown out. This opinion was like a bombshell in the President's office.

President Connolly immediately had a session with the Corporation Counsel with the result that another opinion was forthcoming yesterday morning saying the eight contracts would be allowed to go through. To prevent any hitch President Connolly lost no time in signing the contracts and thus cinching them.

DIVORCE SEQUEL TO SHOTS.

Court Frees Herbert Mason Clapp, Wealthy Philadelphian.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, May 29.—Herbert Mason Clapp to-day obtained a decree of divorce from his wife on statutory grounds. The marital troubles of Mr. and Mrs. Clapp attracted unusual attention in December, 1910, when he accused her of having shot him in their apartments.

Shortly after the shooting, while Clapp was awaiting trial on charges of assault and battery with intent to kill brought by his wife, Mrs. Clapp obtained from Judge Staples in the Desertion Court an order of $25 a week for her support. Some time ago Clapp had this order revoked and began proceedings for divorce.

Before her marriage Mrs. Clapp was Miss Marie C. Lakeer of West Philadelphia. She was arrested and held in bail after the shooting, while Clapp lay for some weeks near death in St. Joseph's Hospital. In telling of the shooting at the time Mrs. Clapp said she had been treated brutally by her husband, and that the pistol went off accidentally during an altercation with him while she was trying to defend herself.

Clapp is a grandson of Mason, the "Shoe Blacking King," and through his mother inherited a fortune. His income is said to be about $35,000 a year. He was married before to Miss Mary Post of New York, but she obtained an absolute divorce about four years ago with custody of the children and allmony of $3,500 a year.

THEFT AFFECTS HER MIND.

Woman Whose Wedding Presents Were Stolen Is Under Alienist's Care.

Abraham Ridder, whose home at 161 West Eightieth Street was entered by burglars on May 13, decided yesterday to offer a reward of $250 for the return of any two of the 200 pieces of jewelry and silverware carried away by the burglars.

Mr. Ridder said that the reason he was offering the reward was that his wife was distracted by the loss of her silverware. Most of the pieces were wedding presents. Mrs. Ridder has been under the care of physicians for several days, and a mental breakdown is feared unless he can be assured that the silverware and jewels have been recovered.

"If I can only show her some of the stolen articles," Mr. Ridder said yesterday, "it may restore her mental poise. I have had to call in an alienist. I have ordered duplicates of every article of which we had a record."

JURORS PRAISE O'SULLIVAN.

Commend Judge's Fairness and His Application of Suspended Sentences.

Before Judge O'Sullivan in General Sessions discharged the talesmen who served in the May term yesterday one of them handed him this resolution signed by all:

As citizens of the City of New York we most heartily concur in the expressions of admiration for the judicial ability displayed by Judge O'Sullivan, and commend in very way the fairness with which justice was dispensed by him. In every instance where sentence was suspended such action has our hearty commendation.

"Gentlemen, I can hardly tell you how thoroughly I appreciate your courtesy toward the court," said the Judge. "You have witnessed for a month the administration of criminal law in this court. You know the difficulties which surround it. But I want to say to you that the administration of justice is rendered comparatively easy when the court has the assistance of men of character and judgment in the jury box."

Before Judge Crain adjourned court for the May term John W. Harmon, a cousin of Gov. Harmon of Ohio, who was one of the talesmen in his court, arose, and after announcing that he spoke for the others, congratulated Judge Crain and Assistant District Attorneys Wasservogel, Wellman, and Coglan upon the speedy manner in which they had disposed of 106 cases, despite the fact that several trials took over five days to try. Mr. Harmon ended by stating that in every case where sentence had been suspended the talesmen believed that justice had been done.

WINIFRED ANKERS QUICKLY ACQUITTED

CONFESSION LEFT TO JURY

Woman to be Released in $2,000 Bail —Second Murder Indictment May Be Dismissed.

After a trial lasting a little more than a week Winifred Ankers, the maid of all work at the Brooklyn Nursery and Infants' Hospital, accused of causing the death of ten babies at that institution by placing oxalic acid in their milk bottles, was acquitted yesterday by a jury before Justice Scudder in the Supreme Court, Brooklyn. Some of the spectators in the rear of the courtroom started a demonstration as soon as the foreman of the jury announced the verdict, but Justice Scudder rapped his gavel loudly a few times and quickly caused the commotion to subside.

All eyes were centred on the jury as the Clerk of the Court asked the foreman for the verdict. Miss Ankers, pale faced, forgot her baby for a moment. Ferdinand, or "Johnny Bull" as she calls him, lay peacefullly on his mother's lap. As soon as she heard the verdict she broke down and wept.

May Dismiss Second Indictment.

As there is another indictment against the woman for murder in the first degree growing out of the deaths of the babies at the hospital, Assistant District Attorney Voss, who conducted the prosecution, asked the court to commit her to jail on that charge. Edward J. Reilly, her counsel, objected to this, as the evidence to be offered in the event of a trial on the second indictment would be practically the same as presented at the trial just ended. Justice Scudder finally consented to release her in $2,000 bail. Mr. Reilly said he would arrange to procure this bail as soon as possible, and intimated that his client would be released probably to-day or to-morrow. He also said he would then move for the dismissal of the other indictment. The general impression prevails among those concerned in the case that the second indictment will be dropped.

Contending that the State had not made out a case against the prisoner, Attorney Reilly offered no defense. Justice Scudder began his charge to the jury at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The jury retired an hour later, and was out an hour and a quarter. The charge of the court was regarded as very favorable to the prisoner.

Justice Scudder intimated the day before that he would order the alleged confession of the prisoner stricken out of the testimony, as he was of the opinion that it had been obtained from her by force. When he took the bench yesterday he announced that he had decided to let the jury determine whether or not the confession was wrung from the prisoner by threats from the police to take her baby away from her.

After the jury was discharged, several women in the courtroom crowded around the prisoner, but court attendants soon cleared the courtroom. It was learned, however, from Mrs. William F. Haigh of 180 South Oxford Street, that she will take the prisoner and her baby to her home as soon as she is released. Miss Ankers will remain there until a home and employment is found for her in the country.

Miss Ankers was employed at the home of Mrs. Haigh a year ago, and the latter said she would willingly give her a recommendation as to character. It was also learned that Mrs. L. von Bayer of 45 Pinehurst Avenue, the Bronx, who has been the accused woman's benefactor and friend during her trial, has promised to find a home for her.

NATHAN STRAUS RETURNS.

Found Hatred Among Different Religions in Palestine.

After being detained at anchor in the fog off Sandy Hook for several hours yesterday, the Cunard liner Caronia arrived at her pier last night with 380 cabin and 548 steerage passengers from Liverpool via Queenstown.

Among her passengers were Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Straus, who have been for a long tour in the Holy Land and a visit to Rome, where Mr. Straus was ill in bed at the time his brother was lost, with his wife, on the Titanic. Mr. Straus requested the Cunard Line to keep his name off the passenger list. When asked for an interview he gave out the following brief statement:

"There is such a shadow of sorrow hanging over my heart that I am not in a condition to talk. But I want to take this opportunity to express my heartfelt thanks for the overwhelming tokens of sympathy which have poured forth from all parts of the world.

"The one gleam of consolation I find in the darkness is the thought that it was a Jew and a Jewess who gave to the world this example of self-sacrifice, heroism, and mutual love.

"I have always heard a good deal of Christian love, but it is too often found wanting.

"I thought that by going to Palestine, to the fountain head, I should surely find it. I return more bewildered than ever at the mutual hatred of the believers in the various creeds.

"Turkish soldiers of the Moslem faith guard the Holy Sepulchre to keep the peace between the Greek Church and Roman; while these same Christians unite in persecuting the race from which their Saviour sprang. 'Love one another' went forth the mandate from Jerusalem, and how pitifully has it been forgotten. Will it ever be thus?

"In the Titanic tragedy all creeds were at least united in the brotherhood of death.

"If one could only hope for a brotherhood of life!

"Why wait for death to teach us the lesson of human fraternity?"

During his stay in Rome Mr. Straus attended the International Tuberculosis Congress as he representative of the United States.

TELLS OF LOCKWOOD BRIBERY

Franklin Fails to Connect Darrow with Use of Money in McNamara Case.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 29.—Bert H. Franklin, former chief detective for the McNamara defense, entered into the details of the alleged bribery of George N. Lockwood by himself at to-day's session of the trial of Clarence S. Darrow. Franklin was still under examination when the trial was continued until Friday morning.

Just prior to adjournment Franklin testified that he met Darrow at a local cafe, and Darrow took from his pocket what purported to be a list of the ninth McNamara jury venire.

"He called my attention to two names on the list," said Franklin, "and said, 'That looks better than the other.'"

"One of the names was Lockwood," said the witness. He was not asked the other. Darrow, he said, told him to take the list and compare it with his list of prospective jurors and get busy investigating the list.

Franklin said that he had discussed the list of all prospective jurors with Darrow the day after he had obtained a list which Darrow said had been given him by Judge Bordwell, the presiding Judge in the McNamara case.

"He asked me about those on the list whom I knew personally," said Franklin. "I told him there were about twenty-five I knew and could talk with personally."

The witness said he told Darrow that Lockwood was one of the men he could see personally. "I told Darrow that I could talk to Lockwood," said Franklin. "I told him that he was a man I had the utmost confidence in; that he was a man of character and sterling integrity, and that our friendship was such that if he could not accept it it would go no further."

No effort was made to ascertain what the witness meant by "it."

Insanity Proceedings Begun Against New York Linen Merchant.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—Henry W. A. Page, the New York linen merchant, who was convicted in Criminal Court No. 2 yesterday of libeling the members of the House Judiciary Committee, was sentenced to-day by Justice Barnard to the maximum penalty, five years in the penitentiary and $1,000 fine.

Justice Barnard then suspended sentence and placed Page on probation for three years with directions to report in person or by letter to Probation Officer Porter during that period. Page thanked the Court for its leniency and promised to desist from his objectionable writings. He expected to sail for Europe on Wednesday, but he will not go. Immediately after the conclusion of the libel trial insanity proceedings were instituted against him in the District Supreme Court. They were based on affidavits by Dr. D. Percy Hickling and Dr. George H. Schwinn, who were in court yesterday and observed Page's spectacular manner of testifying.

The Department of Justice did not take kindly to the action of Justice Barnard in placing Page on probation, and dispatched Assistant Attorney General Adkins with a message to the Court to obtain, if possible, a revision of that feature of the sentence imposed by the Court.

Justice Barnard said he had refused the request, because he considered that Page, having been placed by him in the custody of the Probation Officer, the Court had lost jurisdiction over him until Page should violate the terms of his parole.

Page was convicted yesterday afternoon of libeling Representative Clayton and other members of the Judiciary Committee of the House of Representatives. He sent a scurrilous pamphlet through the mails calling them "crooks" and "perjurers," because they declined to present to Congress a memorial by Page, entitled "The Death of Liberty," in which he requested impeachment proceedings against certain Judges of the New York State courts, who had granted alimony to his wife and given her the custody of their three children.

HONOR MGR. BRANN, 50 YEARS A PRIEST

Friends of St. Agnes's Rector Throng Opera House at His Golden Jubilee.

PURSE OF $13,000 FOR HIM

And a Rising "Vote" of Enthusiastic Admiration—Depew Praises His Public Spirit.

Friends of Mgr. Henry A. Brann, rector of St. Agnes's Catholic Church, first through a few picked speakers and then by a tumultuous rising vote, told him last night how much they revered and loved him at the jubilee celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood. They crowded to the doors the Lexington Opera House in East Fifty-eighth Street. Incidentally, too, they gave him more material tokens of their love and reverence, in the form of a great golden memorial book descriptive of his long pastorate, and a check for $13,000.

But it wasn't this that made the eyes of the little white-haired priest blink and glisten, and his lips quiver and twitch suspiciously again and again, as, sitting there in the midst of his admiring friends and flock on the stage, he listened to the words of praise uttered by men who had known him for the greater part of his long and faithful pastorate.

Maybe it was the great, dazzling sign of red, white, and blue electric letters strung across the top of the stage that made Mgr. Brann's eyes glisten so, and maybe it wasn't. The sign read:

"Vivat Pastor Bonus, 1862-1912," which means "Long Live the Good Pastor, 1862-1912," and that means Father Brann. His picture hung beneath the bright letters.

The great hall was hung with long streamers and festoons of white and yellow, the Papal colors, and along the centre hung clusters of American flags intertwined with the same colors. The curtain rose, displaying Father Brann, with Chauncey M. Depew at his left and Bourke Cockran at his right and a host of other friends around him. Back of him rose the gold-lettered green flag of "County Meath Men," for Mgr. Brann was born in County Meath and a Meath man he will remain forever.

After several musical selections by the St. Agnes Quartet and Irish songs by Miss Nora Conway, Father Murphy, assistant rector of St. Agnes's, introduced ex-Senator Depew to tell Mgr. Brann what his friends thought of him as a citizen. The former Senator reminded the audience that, as between Mgr. Brann and himself "the Monsignor was a kid," because Mr. Depew, who recently celebrated his seventy-fifth birthday, was 4 years old and enjoying all the rights of an Americatn citizen to that age appertaining when Mgr. Brann was born. But his friend, he said, had caught up, and he wished to say, after an acquaintance of 30 years, that the pastor of St. Agnes's was one of the most patriotic and public-spirited and faithful of American citizens.

Father Brann's Long Service.

"We have had twenty-seven Presidents of the United States," said Mr. Depew, "and Dr. Brann has been carrying on his work under twelve of them, or nearly half. He had on his desk the morning after it was delivered that gem of American oratory, Lincoln's Gettysburg speech. His prayers ascended for the watchful care of the Almighty over the life and official acts of President Grant. His petitions were among the most fervent offered for the preservation of life after the attempt to assassinate President Garfield.

"He has preserved the even tenor of his way and pursued without interruption his duties to his Church and as a citizen even during the strenuous times of President Roosevelt. Even now, with the sound of battle coming to us to-day from all over the country and the whole land gasping with wonder as to what's coming next, because of this most original and titanic force in our public life that there has been in these fifty years, the Doctor, smiling here on this stage, has still unabated faith that whatever happens is for His own wise purposes under the motto: 'God doeth all things well.'"

Mgr. Brann has the distinction of being the first alumnus of the American College of Rome, Mr. Depew declared.

Bourke Cockran's Praise.

W. Bourke Cockran, who also has known Mgr. Brann for more than a quarter of a century, praised him as a priest of priests.

"Last January we celebrated the bestowal of the supreme gift of the Holy Father on the Archbishop of this diocese," he said. "To-night we are celebrating the priestly efficiency on which episcopal efficiency must always depend. The success of the Cardinal could not have been achieved without the extraordinary priesthood of which he had been the head for more than ten years.

"Fifty years a Catholic priest! I doubt if many realize the significance of that expression. Fifty years of unceasing, unswerving, unremitting labor, not to win fortune for himself that is perishable, but to do service for others that is eternal; to dedicate churches to divine worship, schools to prepare the youth for the business of life, convents whose inmates care for the afflicted and sorrowing—in short, service that makes us to-night prefer to call him Father, the title won from our affection, rather than Monsignor, the title from the Pope."

John D. Kernan of Utica, N. Y., who was one of Dr. Brann's first pupils when fifty years ago he became Vice President of Seton Hall College, made the presentation of the evening. He told how when Dr. Brann first came to Seton Hall College to teach philosophy to the boys there he was "a handsome and attractive young man with that exceedingly nobby necktie you see in the picture on the front page of your programme," but how, presently, all had come to respect and love him not for his looks, "but as a priest and as a manly man, and to love him for these qualities of heart and mind that have made him beloved to all who have had the honor of his acquaintance since.

"And so we have decided to present you with this testimonial of our esteem and love," he said, "in the shape of a great memorial book, telling the history of your long and faithful priesthood and containing also your pictures at various stages thereof, as well as the pictures of all the Popes under whom you have served, and the Apostolic Delegates and Archbishops and Cardinals.

"It seemed, however, that you should get also pictures of the Presidents and Treasurers of the United States in all that time. So we have inclosed with the book a check for $13,000, for which you can get at the Lincoln National Bank to-morrow 13,000 greenback pictures of those Presidents and Treasurers of the United States. I will now put this matter to one of those new-fangled referendum votes which Senator Depew and his friends are so fond of. All in favor of presenting this book and check to Dr. Brann, with expressions of love and deepest reverence, please rise and say 'Aye.'"

Mgr. Brann's Speech.

The audience did, straightway, loud and with a will. Mr. Kernan announced that the ayes seemed to have it, and also assured those present that Dr. Brann had heard the vote distinctly.

Dr. Brann replied in a few words of thanks, thanking first of all the three orators of the evening—Mr. Depew as the man whom he had always considered to have a voice like the bugle of the Archangel Michael summoning the forces of righteousness to battle against the wrong. Mr. Cockran as the great man of eloquence by verdict of this country and the eloquent Emerald Isle, and Mr. Kernan as "My dear old boy, who called me Doctor to-night but thinks of me always as Doc; he was the brightest fellow in the college, the best singer, the best orator, the best fighter.

"Finally," he said, "I thank you all. Why should I speak long. You are tired of me. You have heard me speak to you in every note of the gamut for twenty-two years, sometimes chiding, sometimes in praise, sometimes gently, sometimes sternly, but always with love for you all. As I stood here to-night I have thought also of the dead. How many I miss to-night! I wish I could summon back to life the spirits of all the dear ones I have loved in St Agnes's. And yet, why should I bring them back? There is not one that ever lived in St. Agues's but went to Heaven."

$10,000,000 FOR STEEL MILLS

Edgar Thompson Works to be Biggest Producer of the Corporation.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., May 29.—Official confirmation was given by the Carnegie Steel Company this afternoon to the report that the United States Steel Corporation will spend $8,000,000 to $10,000,000 in making extensive improvements at the Edgar Thompson Steel Works in Braddock.

It was officially stated that the company will give employment to 3,000 additional men at once. The improvements are so extensive in scope and of so diversified a character that artisans of all kinds will be needed.

The contemplated improvements include the erection of fourteen open-hearth furnaces of modern design and the construction and remodeling of the rail mills to meet all requirements.

Work was started to-day and it is expected that it will require at least fifteen months to complete the changes. The Edgar Thompson Steel Works will then be the greatest steel-producing subsidiary of the United States Steel Corporation.

SEEKS COAL INVESTIGATION.

Representative Difenderfer Calls for Inquiry Into Anthracite Prices.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—Representative Difenderfer of Pennsylvania (Democrat) introduced a resolution to-day calling for a thorough investigation of the anthracite coal trade. He said the operators were using as an excuse for exorbitant prices the fact that recently they were compelled to increase wages of their operatives. This increase, Mr. Difenderfer contends, amounted to approximately $5,000,000, while the increased charge to customers already had reached more than $15,000,000.

The resolution directs the Secretary of Commerce and Labor through the bureau of labor to obtain "full information concerning the different elements of cost and profit incidental to the present high price of anthracite coal."

RAMMED IN THE BAY SHIP RACES TO PIER

BERWIND'S BOW SMASHED

Some Blunder in Navigation Causes Freighters' Collision Off Robbins Reef.

Through some blunder in navigation the New York and Porto Rico freighter Berwind, outbound, rammed the French Line freighter Hudson, coming in from Bordeaux with eighteen cabin and sixty-five steerage passengers and a general cargo, yesterday morning off Robbins Reef, in the Upper Bay. The weather was comparatively clear. For a few minutes, until they were reassured by the ship's officers, there was considerable excitement among the passengers on the Hudson.

The Berwind had her bows stove in by striking the hull of the French steamer, and immediately whistled for tugs to come to the rescue. Capt. David of the Hudson saw that the water was pouring into the side of his ship through four big holes, and rang full speed ahead and headed for the Brooklyn shore, while the Chief Officer had the hands on deck stand by the lifeboats, ready to lower away in case of emergency.

The Hudson ran into the pier at the foot of Sixty-fifth Street, carried away ten feet of its bulkhead, and opened up another hole in her side, but she was safely beached, with her bow on shore and the stern floating in deep water.

In the meantime Capt. Christopher of the Berwind saw that his ship was taking in water through her crumpled-in bow plates, and managed to get back to his pier at Hamilton Ferry, Brooklyn, and make fast. The tug John Nicholls assisted in getting the French liner to the pier at the foot of Sixty-fifth Street, South Brooklyn, whence the sixty-five steerage passengers were taken to Ellis Island in a tug, and later the eighteen cabin passengers, with their baggage, were landed at the French Line pier, at the foot of West Forty-fourth Street.

The Merritt-Chapman Wrecking Company began discharging the cargo of the Hudson yesterday afternoon, and it is expected that she will be towed to drydock to-day or to-morrow. Alonzo Beebe, the pilot in charge of the Hudson, said:

"We had not yet passed the bell buoy on the flats when I saw the Berwind heading for us. I gave one whistle, and the Berwind answered correctly with one whistle. We ported, but the Berwind kept on starboard, and I again blew one whistle and stopped the engines. I saw then that the Berwind made no move, one way or the other, and I ordered full speed astern, blowing three whistles. There was no answer, and then the crash came."

One of the officials of the New York and Porto Rico Company said that there was no pilot on the Berwind, as she was a coastwise boat and did not have to carry one. There was no statement to give out until it had been investigated, he said. Paul Faguet, agent of the French Line, said that he had no comment to make on the collision except to say that the Hudson was on her proper course for her pier, at the foot of West Forty-fourth Street.

The Hudson is 390 feet long, 50 feet beam, and 28 feet deep, with 3,519 gross tonnage. The Berwind is 288 feet long, 39 feet beam, 22 feet depth of hold, and 2,850 gross tonnage.

STEAMSHIP MOLTKE AGROUND

Hamburg Liner Caught In Ambrose Channel and Held Fast Four Hours.

The Hamburg-American liner Moltke, which left her pier at Hoboken at 10 o'clock yesterday morning with 165 first, 202 second cabin, and a large number of third class passengers bound for Naples, was feeling her way cautiously through the Ambrose channel at noon, when she went aground on the bank near buoy No. 5. It was dead low water and the Moltke remained there until 4 P. M., when she was hauled off by tugs. She proceeded through the fog slowly on her way to the Mediterranean. She was uninjured.

SUICIDE FROM FERRYBOAT.

Lost Man Believed to be John Galvin, Member of Typographical Union 6.

As the Municipal ferry boat Richmond was passing the Statue of Liberty yesterday morning on her way to St. George's landing a man about 35 years old rushed to the edge of the steamboat on the upper deck and jumped overboard. Capt. Chambers stopped the boat while the mate and two of the deck hands lowered the dingy and pulled away. The suicide came to the surface once only and then sank before the rescuers reached him.

From letters found, floating, it is believed that he was John Galvin, a printer, belonging to typographical Union No. 6. Another card found in an envelope with the union card was a ticket for admission to a hospital for tuberculosis, outside New York. The body was not recovered.

SUBWAY BILL FOR CONGRESS.

To Facilitate Building of Tube Under Post Office Building Here.

Chairman Wilcox of the Public Service Commission has requested Senator O'Gorman to introduce in Congress a bill for facilitating the construction and operation of the new subway under the Post Office Building. The route laid out by the commission for the Interborough East River tunnel calls for the building of a subway from Park Place and Seventh Avenue across City Hall Park to Beekman Street. It will run under Mail Street and may affect the Post Office building itself, so that it will be necessary to receive the permission of the Federal authorities for its construction.

At the present time, however, the Secretary of the Treasury has no power to grant for such a purpose more than a revocable permit to the city. The present subway as it touches the Post Office has only this kind of authorization, and it is held that although to all intents and purposes it may be considered a permanent franchise, it is natural for the private capital which is to embark in the new subway construction to wish to obtain an absolute right to the route the subway will follow.

If the bill is enacted, this right may be granted. The bill authorizes the Secretary of the Treasury to give the city the temporary or permanent right, as he may consider best. He has also the discretion to determine the consideration to be paid by the city and may charge if he pleases merely a nominal sum and he may lay down the conditions and limitations under which the grant is made.

The lines mentioned in the bill are two: First, there is a two-track subway running from Park Place to Beekman Street, which may be placed either in one tunnel not more than forty feet wide, or in two tunnels running parallel within twenty feet of each other, each of which will not be more than twenty-five feet wide, and then there is a one-track spur connecting the new subway with the present subway loop in City Hall Park, which is not more than twenty-five feet wide. The Park Place to Beekman Street route must be not less than thirty-five feet below the surface of the street and the spur under City Hall Park to the subway loop is to be no tiess than fifteen feet below the street level.

$600,000 to Yale Scientific School.

MADISON, Conn., May 29.—By the will of Mrs. Mary Hotchkiss of Deep River, filed for probate here to-day, her estate, estimated at about $600,000, is left to the Sheffield Scientific School, Yale, subject to a life use by a daughter, Miss Marie Oakes Hotchkiss. The money is to be used by Yale as a fund toward increasing the salaries of the professors of the Sheffield School.

EXCHANGES HOLD MEETINGS.

Cotton Exchange President and Produce Exchange President Report.

Both the Cotton Exchange and the Produce Exchange held annual meetings on Tuesday, at which the Presidents submitted their reports for the year.

President Edward R. Carhart of the Produce Exchange laid particular stress on the effect of the reduction in the rail rate on "ex-lake" export grain from Buffalo in increasing the cash grain business at this port. During the year fifty-nine certificates of membership were purchased and cancelled at a cost of $27,270, which wiped out a liability under the gratuity fund provisions amounting to $179,524. The net surplus for the year was $69,904, which was $6,915 less than in the previous year.

President George W. Neville, in his report to the Cotton Exchange, pointed out the economic service the Exchange had performed in marketing the bumper cotton crop of 16,000,000 bales, and reviewed the various conferences which have been held between the Exchange officials and spinning, and other cotton interests, with a view to increasing the commercial value of the Exchange's operations.

The financial results of the year showed an improvement over the previous period, combined surplus amounting to $10,643. The trustees of the gratuity fund reported assets of $83,329 and liabilities of $14,122.

The Abbott gives him luxury without ostentation; ample power without waste; reliability and comfort under all riding conditions; perfect simplicity of operation; and easy access to every vital part.

In addition, he has the Abbott Service Department. The Abbott-Detroit is as nearly trouble-proof as it is humanly possible for a machine to be. But troubles do sometimes happen. We do not claim infallibility. And when they do, we are here, glad and ready to correct them. That's all part of the famous Abbott "Guarantee For All Time," you know.

Built on two chassis—the "44" with a 7-passenger touring body at $1,800; a 4 or 5-passenger demi-tonneau at $1,775 and a fore-door limousine at $3,000. And the "30"—a little lighter, the same wonderful car value, in a 5-passenger touring at $1,350; a fore-door roadster, at $1,250; and a Colonial Coupe at $2,150.

Home run—Murphy. Sacrifice hit—Collins. Sacrifice fly—Murphy. Stolen bases—Collins, Daniels, Gardner, and Hartzell. First base on errors—Philadelphia, 4; New York, 1. Left on bases—Philadelphia, 3; New York, 4. Double plays—Barry and McInnes, Chase and Ford. Struck out—By Coombs, 5; by Ford, 2. Bases on balls—Off Coombs, 3; off Ford, 2. Umpires—Messrs. Evans and Egan. Time of game—One hour and fifteen minutes.

His royal dampness the rain wandered into the double-header on the Hilltop yesterday about the sixth inning of the first tilt between the Yankees and the Athletics, and when Billy Evans decided that the sprinkle was wet, the game was called off, with the score 7 to 4, the 7 being the property of the world's champions. Yes, and the Yanks were getting to Jack Coombs and catching up in nice shape. But we must have weather, whether or no, so there's no use finding fault.

Note the details of the horrible devastation which followed in the storm's wake. That aigrette on Gladys's purple straw was ruined, Clarice's new Colonial pumps got awfully damp, Muriel's new taffeta frock was a sight, and you ought to have seen that lampshade parasol of Marie's when the green dye began to run. The baseball management has something to answer for for this wholesale destruction of feminine finery.

The tale now shifts to a new subject. There was a fire, a little fire completely surrounded by excitement. Somebody was smoking a stogie in the front of the grandstand, and, becoming sick and unconscious, the Pittsburgh fumigator dropped it into some paper. First those in the vicinity thought that it was the smoke from Jack Coombs's curves. Picking up a handful of flame, one man discovered that it was real, so Harry Stevens's Vamps were rushed into action.

Half a dozen glasses of lemonade and eight bottles of pop were pumped into the conflagration. The Vamps dropped their baskets of peanuts and taffy and, forming a bucket brigade, poured several glasses of water on the devouring flames. In every crisis a born leader comes to the fore. And thus it was yesterday, when a man took a bottle of seltzer from his inside pocket and shot a stream of carbonic into the furnace which put the tongues of fire to rout. Brave fellow! But what was he doing with a bottle of seltzer in his pocket? Somebody asked him, and he said he carried it to wash pickles around with him. About two square inches of the floor of the stand was scorched. The blaze stopped the game for a while, but not as long as the rain did.

The Yankees got a good start in the first inning. Daniels didn't because he whiffed. Zinn was safe when McInnes fumbled his grounder. Chase hit a single to left and Cree fanned. Gardner banged a slam to left, scoring Zinn, while a ripper to right by Hartzell sent Chase home. Stump was tossed out by the agile Barry. These Athletics ain't so much.

Trouble brewing. With two out in the second, Gardner fumbled Barry's grasser and made a bad toss to Chase. Lapp poked a drive between centre and right and it popped out of Daniels's hands. Barry scoring. You can't blame that on Russ Ford. Very active, the Athletics in the third. Strunk singled and Oldring strolled. Collins sent them along a base with a sacrifice, and Mr. Baker, the well-known friend of Mathewson and Marquard, poled a single to centre which sent in two runs.

Cast your flirting blue eye on old Dan Murphy. Laboriously he pushed a terrific drive into centre field over Zinn's roof and it bounded into the centre field bleachers for a home run, sending Baker on ahead. Great little ball team, but they can't hit.

Collins singled in the fifth and Baker ditto, Murphy's short sacrifice fly back of second scored Collins. The decision at the plate was close, very. When Chase dropped Stump's throw at first, Baker scored. The sky darkened and the rain, by report, had reached Seventy-second Street and was coming north fast. Hurry the game.

Cree opened the sixth by rolling out, Coombs to first. Gardner cashed a single to centre. Oh, the Iron Man is weakening. Hurry up, it's sprinkling. Hartzell walked. Stump banked a single to short centre, loading the bases. Sweeney grassed to Barry, who forced Stump at second, while Gardner scored. It's raining hard, now. Kill it, Ford. Not yet; he struck out.

Say, let's take your umbrella? No, but here's a watch.

Red Sox Score 33 Runs in a Day.

BOSTON, May 29.—Boston was twice a winner over Washington to-day in a double-header which produced a total of more than fifty runs and more than that number of hits. It was a record for the season. The Red Sox piled up 21 runs to the Senators' 8 in the first game, and in the second game their dozen tallies was one more than Washington scored. The second game was called in the eighth inning on account of darkness. The scores:

SADDLE HORSE SHOW IN HEAVY SHOWER

Men and Women Riders Compete for Honors of Turf and Field Club.

A heavy downpour of rain marred what would have otherwise been an interesting competition devoted exclusively to saddle horses at the initial exhibition of the Turf and Field Club yesterday at Belmont Park, L. I. It was the first day's competition of the two days' show, which the organization has instituted for the saddle horse alone, and, judging from the quality of entries and the enthusiasm shown, the event will be a prominent yearly fixture in the future.

The classes were arranged so as to bring into competition every type of saddle horse, from ponies to the thoroughbred. The majority of the classes was devoted to hunters, jumpers, and saddle horses, with several special features in the nature of military classes and those for ladies to ride.

Sergt. Leonard B. Smith was seriously injured while competing in the second event, the military jumping class. Sergt. Smith was mounted on his chestnut mare Easter Sunday. After the horse cleared the first obstacle, a hedge fence, it tripped in landing, and both rider and mount went tumbling to earth. In trying to free himself the rider got tangled in the stirrups and fell before the horse, which kicked him in the thigh. Sergt. Smith dislocated a knee, which has happened previously on two occasions.

The crowd, although not a large one, was representative of the Long Island society folk, with only the dyed-in-the-wool followers of the horse present.

Miss H. D. Atterbury was a conspicuous exhibitor and captured the horsewoman supremacy with her champion saddle horse, Kildare. In the class for saddle horses over 15.2 hands Miss Atterbury vied with expert horsemen and finally won the blue rosette with her mount. Only two women riders were seen in the class, and Kildare performed unusually well, winning the award. Mrs. James B. McKay's chestnut mare, Lady Debonair, ridden by James Schweiger, was second.

In the class for ladies' saddle horses, ladies to ride, ten entries contested for the honors. As the horses entered the ring it began to rain in torrents, and the event taxed the skill of the feminine riders. The ground was slippery and many of the horses were hard to handle under the conditions. The majority of the riders were clad in raincoats, and Mrs. W. A. McGibbon, with a Panama hat pulled close down over her eyes and wearing a flowing waterproof, piloted her entry, Rosabel, to victory. Miss Cynthia Kearney, on the chestnut gelding Dixie, took the second, while Miss Vera Cravath, on Gloribird, and Miss Louise Van Wyck, on Mark Hanna, were placed third and fourth, respectively.

Lieut. S. W. Winfree carried off the lion's share of the ribbons for the military events with his bay gelding Grant. In the jumping class in which Sergt. Smith was injured Lieut. Winfree came in for the judges' selection, after having only one opponent, Allen S. Blodgett, who rode the bay gelding Justice. In the class for military chargers and military mounts Grant was also picked to carry the blue.

The most attractive class of the programme was that for pairs of saddle horses, man and woman to ride. Three pairs were nominated, Miss Atterbury capturing the coveted blue. She was up on her favorite Kildare, and was assisted by W. A. McGibbon, who rode Patricia. Paul D. Cravath's entry, Gloribird, ridden by a groom, and Mrs. James B. McKay, on Lady Debonair, came in for second choice, and August Belmont's chestnut mare Olive, ridden by Raymond Belmont, and chestnut gelding, Saracen, with Miss Beavor-Webb up, was placed third.

Among those seen about the grounds were Mrs. Payne Whitney, Mr. and Mrs. A. Scott Burden, Mr. and Mrs. Paul D. Cravath, Louis Haight, Miss Vera Cravath, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Burton, J. B. Thomas, August Belmont, the Misses Celestine and Helen Hitchcock, Miss Celestine Eustis, Mr. and Mrs. J. Watson Webb, Philip B. Thompson, Mrs. Richard Trimble, J. E. S. Luck with Princeton Tigers.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., May 29.—Luck was with Princeton to-day, and Lafayette was defeated, 3 to 2 in eleven innings. With Shaw on first base, running for Sam White in the eighth inning, Worthington's grounder to Dannehower carromed off his glove and went over the fence opposite right field. It was a technical home run and the score was tied at 2 to 2. Reed's two-bagger, Shaw's third sacrifice, and Capt. Sterrett's sacrifice fly made the winning tally possible. Heath, substituting in the Princeton outfield, made a spectacular catch in the tenth inning of Fager's terrific drive labeled for the circuit. The score:

THE LAST FIGHT.

Whoever has attentively studied the habits and the temperament of the rhinoceros must have been struck by the close resemblance of that pachyderm to Col. ROOSEVELT. They use the same tactics. With each the charge, the headstrong, furious, irresistible onrush, overthrowing every obstacle and leaving a broad track of death and devastation, is the main reliance. The one charges through the tent of the sleeping hunter, as the other charges through a great State in a primary campaign. The rhinoceros tosses his foes on his horn, Mr. ROOSEVELT stands them on their heads, or knocks them over the ropes.

The English hunters of big game have taught us to regard the rhinoceros as a most fearsome beast. In Mr. RUDYARD KIPLING'S stories he appears as one of the most dangerous of all the animals sought by the African hunter. He will smell a man a mile and charge down upon him in a bee line. There is no safety save in being well provided with powerful rifles carrying a very large calibre bullet. And even then the hunter often pays for his temerity with his life. Mr. BUFFALO JONES of this Republic did not share the English opinion about the rhinoceros. He went to Africa and caught one with his hands. We believe he used a lasso or something of the kind, but he roped his quarry and, after looking him over, poking him in the ribs, and good naturedly thumping him until he was thoroughly humiliated, he turned him loose to wallow again in his favorite pools.

The teaching of Mr. JONES'S exploit is here cited for its direct bearing upon the conduct of the Republican leaders at Chicago. Mr. ROOSEVELT, in his braggart way, has told what he is going to do—he will make the platform, he will nominate the candidate, himself, he will run the convention. Of course he will do all these things if the Republicans lie down and shiver and whine while he sets his foot on their necks. But suppose they fight. The Republicans of the olden day had the fighting quality. Has it wholly fled from them? If Mr. ROOSEVELT wants to fight, why not let him have his fill of fighting?

The policy of fighting calls, first of all, for courage. It calls for headwork, for determined action. In most of the primary States the Republicans have made no fight at all. They have been willing to let Mr. TAFT fight his battle almost unaided. It was a most disagreeable and humiliating necessity that forced him into the field. Is it possible that the example of his courage, his ceaseless toil, and his sacrifice can fail to inspire the men of his party to show what is in them at Chicago? Mr. BARNES and Mr. ROOT, it appears, are willing to lead the fight. Will the other Republican leaders leave them unaided in the battle, or will they put in their blows as becomes men who are the heritors of the Republican traditions, upon whom now devolves the duty of defending the party against a selfish and ruthless adventurer who has planned its destruction?

TOO BLACK FOR WHITEWASH.

Our British friends find Senator SMITH'S report and remarks very American—that is to say, they condemn his "bombastic bosh." For our part, we find the remarks of our British friends very British, and we wonder what they are going to do about it. Will they deny the facts, and on what evidence? Will they admit the facts by not denying them, and give a clean character to those responsible for them? We will not assume, in advance of the necessity, that the British Board of Trade and its Board of Inquiry will expose the character of Englishmen to further reproach. To extenuate the disclosures is to give a license to their repetition. Can England endure that? Is it not to the greater interest of England that such conditions in its mercantile marine shall be remedied, cost what it may, and injure whom it may? More to our liking than the London chorus of denunciation of Senator SMITH is the candid and commendable utterance of The London News:

> Some of its (the committee's) conclusions are irresistible, and they are very disturbing. We cannot believe the Titanic alone of British ships had these defects. They are probably very general among the liners, and if that be so one of the proudest of British institutions needs very considerable overhauling.

Any comment essentially different from that puts on defense all Englishmen who defend Englishmen and English institutions because they are English, regardless of facts. Such a course puts on trial before the world the British character for fair play, as well as the British marine for its lack of seamanship. It would be in vain for Lord MERSEY to acquit the Board of Trade, and to declare that the Titanic was sailed admirably, unless he disproves the charges of Senator SMITH and his committee made on evidence cited. Such a report as that would incite every passenger who had an alternative to patronize any vessel except a British ship, because the British Government would be made to seem an accomplice in manslaughter by bad seamanship. Whatever the defects of Senator SMITH'S style of oratory, and however he may be lacking in seamanship, he has made it impossible for England's representatives to take the course which it is now necessary to believe that otherwise they would have taken.

TEAR DOWN THE ARSENAL—YES.

The Arsenal in Central Park should go, but neither the Lenox Library nor any other building should be erected in its place for private or public offices. Mr. HENRY C. FRICK, who offers the fine Lenox Library building to the city on this condition, is generous, but he could hardly have persuaded RICHARD M. HUNT, its architect, that any place in Central Park would be available for its preservation. The old Arsenal is an eyesore, a bad house for the Park Department, fetid with the smell of the stables and the nearby menagerie. The sooner they are cleared away and green space replaces these monstrosities, the better.

Commissioner STOVER and the Art Commission should bear in mind that the Park was not designed to hold any buildings. That some have been placed there has been made the occasion for innumerable further assaults upon its integrity, the latest being the senseless proposal to erect a monument to the sunken Titanic at its lower entrance. We hope there will be many obstacles to the acceptance of Mr. FRICK'S offer, and that they will effect a delay which will cause him to reconsider and alter its terms. It would never do to put the Lenox Library in the depression occupied by the Arsenal, and a site on higher ground, the Arsenal being razed, would take space yet more highly prized for park purposes. Ex-Commissioner WILLCOX of the Park Department tried to get more convenient offices for his staff downtown near City Hall. Ex-Superintendent MURPHY has suggested that the department be housed in the new administrative building on Tryon Row. Its location in Central Park was only a temporary measure. The city should buy land to accommodate elsewhere Mr. FRICK'S splendid gift.

FRANCE IN MOROCCO.

The renewed attack of the tribesmen on the city of Fez, after the severe repression of the recent mutiny of the Sultan's troops, is a disagreeable experience for the French. The original disturbance took the French entirely by surprise, a fact that is the more disquieting because it is now evident that it was a premature outbreak of an insurrectionary movement of serious importance, aiming at nothing less than the seizure of the Sultan and of M. REGNAULT, the French Minister. The plan was widely extended, and had formidable support among the Sheriffian troops. Following immediately on the acceptance by the Sultan of the treaty creating the French protectorate it boded ill for the operation of the new system. That the French authorities should have been unable to detect the progress of such a movement, and that it was revealed by an accidental outbreak in the city of Fez, indicates that the French have a more difficult and complex task before them than they had expected. The new assault by the tribesmen would show that the situation has not materially improved. Its most significant feature is the demonstration of the untrustworthiness of the Sultan's troops, on whom a good deal of reliance had been placed.

Meanwhile the attitude of the Sultan, MULAI-HAFID, is exciting a certain amount of apprehension. This hitherto enterprising and rather cruel warrior, who overthrew his brother, ABD-EL-AZIZ, with surprising energy and dispatch a few years since, seems suddenly to have become weary of his post and to long for a safe and lazy life in the pleasure resorts of the Continent. Previous to the signing of the protectorate treaty, it appears that he stipulated that he might make a journey to Paris, and intimated that he might not care to return. Whether he finds the remnant of power left to him an insufficient offset to the peril of his life, which he feels to be constant, or whether he wished simply to spread that impression among his people to the encouragement of discontent, it is not easy to say. The French Minister gave his consent to the journey, but it was interrupted by the outbreak in Fez, and then it was ascertained that the original purpose of the revolt was to seize the Sultan en route, and to "free" him from French control. Naturally he is not any more happy in his peculiar position now that this fact is known.

In a recent interview with an editor of Matin, the Sultan in a very polite and ingenious fashion, but with a good deal of feeling, explained why he could not be held accountable for the troubles in Fez. He declared that he had been practically supplanted as ruler of the country, that he no longer had any direct control of his army, and that all reports from the provinces and tribes were withheld from him. "The Sultan's seal," he said, "had been replaced by a French stamp." He knew nothing of what was going on, and could not influence the course of events. "Why," he asked naïvely, "when you bind me hand and foot "and throw me in the water, should "you blame me if I get wet?" Evidently Gen. LYAUTEY, the new Resident General and Governor of Morocco, is to have his own difficulties in dealing with the Sultan. Undoubtedly he is well equipped for his task. He has been for some years engaged on the frontier between Algeria and Morocco, and there, as in Madagascar, he won an excellent reputation as a military commander, administrator, and pacifier. If he is allowed a free hand, as he doubtless will be, by the present Government, he will give a good account of himself.

DR. MURRAY ON OUR COLLEGES.

Naturally, it was but a general impression, hastily expressed, that the famous Greek scholar, Dr. GILBERT MURRAY, gave to an English interviewer inquiring as to American higher education, but it was a very sane impression. It is perfectly true that "deep decay has eaten into the study of the classics in America," and equally true that "a time has come "which demands deeper, more solid, "and, therefore, slower education."

But it is to be noted that the forces that tended to induce the relative abandonment of general training in the classics will in the long run tend to secure for the youth of the country who need and can use it the more solid and slower education. Classics were in part given up as the main element in education beyond the elementary schools because they did not serve the greatest good of the greatest number, a fact recognized by Dr. MURRAY himself. Since their practical surrender we have labored slowly but faithfully to find and provide a kind of schooling suited to the general needs. We have only measurably succeeded, but we have had a measure of success, and the aim is being steadily pursued all over the country with energy, with persistence, and with intelligence.

Meanwhile there has grown up in our new society a class, not relatively large but numerically considerable and intellectually important, whose need for a deeper education, largely resting on the classics, is strongly felt by themselves, and this need will in due time get itself satisfied. Its satisfaction may not seriously modify the general scheme of education, and it is probable that, for a long time, it will not much affect the education provided by the State. But it will be an inspiration to many.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Why Should Thefts Be Concealed?

News of two big robberies, one committed on the 13th and the other on the 23d of this month, has just come out. As usual, the victims of these crimes were half persuaded, half ordered, by the police to conceal their losses. They were assured that silence on their part would assist the detectives in capturing the thieves and in recovering the stolen goods, and it was only when failure to justify these assurances had exhausted their patience that they spoke.

Now the police, like other specialists, have a right to say in what conditions their work is best performed, and their opinions on that subject should be respected. They are under obligation, however, to give comprehensible reasons for what they do, and this obligation is particularly strong when the thing done is seemingly wrong or unwise, and when the results of doing it are in themselves far from sufficiently brilliant to supply a justification otherwise lacking. And that is the case in regard to this policy of secrecy and suppression.

The only defenses of it we have ever heard given on police authority are, first, that publicity puts the thieves on their guard, and, second, that to reveal the commission of a theft before the arrest of the thief can be announced is an invitation to other thieves to come here and steal. Both of these explanations are so obviously absurd—so obviously inferior to the explanation that the police want to cover up their failures and advertise their successes—that they can be dismissed without comment.

In a few cases of the kind called "inside jobs," when the thief thinks that what he is doing is unknown, there is some sense in letting him deceive himself until he can be caught. Only in the very rarest instances, as when an untenanted house has been robbed, can a burglar cherish the illusion that his achievement is unknown and that the police are not after him.

With the few exceptions indicated, we firmly believe that robberies should be made known as promptly and as widely as possible, and that the police advice to follow a contrary policy should be both ignored and resented. The foolishness of the advice and of the arguments made in its behalf becomes instantly apparent when one applies it and them in a case when the crime committed is murder.

His Conduct Beyond Explanation.

What has always been and remains the most mysterious—the one wholly myasterious—feature or episode of the Titanic disaster was and is the failure of the Californian's master to give more than brief and careless attention to the signals of distress he so plainly saw.

However harshly one may judge the Captain of the Titanic for ignoring the warnings he received of ice ahead; his subordinate officers, for sending off the all too few lifeboats before they had been much more than half filled; the managing company, for the haste with which it sent the ship on her maiden voyage, or the British Board of Trade and its Inspectors, for their negligences and laches, the errors of them all are more or less comprehensible—are errors such as men all around us are committing every day. To explain the conduct of Capt. LORD—his apparent refusal to interest himself in what he had sufficient reason to believe was a steamship in desperate distress only a few miles away—one must invade the domain of the almost-impossible.

In other words, for anything that is yet known—and it is to be remembered that Capt. LORD has had, not one day, but two, in court, and therefore a double opportunity to defend and exculpate himself if he could—he showed a stupidity incompatible with his experience and his position or he exhibited a cold insensibility to the needs and perils of others that sets him apart from human beings as we know them, and especially far from the men of his own profession. While on the stand in Washington and London he did not seem to be either unintelligent or brutal. He apparently felt exactly as other men would feel if by clear implication they found themselves charged with letting 1,500 people drown, all or most of whom a ROSTRON in Capt. LORD'S place could and would have saved.

That Capt. LORD is a monster need not—cannot—be believed, and yet all the circumstances indicate that he is one. His labored explanations of his conduct made it only the more inexplicable. Even the supposition of temporary madness does not lighten the mystery, for his officers showed much the same peculiarities, and they simply couldn't have been all insane together.

These Judges Needn't Be Recalled.

Columbia's Student Board of Representatives reported the facts in regard to the recent invasion of dormitories by the sophomore class, and fixed the punishment of the invaders, in a way most brilliantly to demonstrate the possibilities of undergraduate self-rule.

The investigation of the sad episode seems to have been at once just and thorough. Doubtless the investigators were glad to find that though the affair was characterized by the very worst of manners, only a trace, if that, of actual viciousness was displayed by these "wise fools." Their judges had the good sense—sometimes lacking when inquisitors are of Faculty rank—not to extort from their testifying defendants the confession of any except their own misdeeds. This made it possible to get the story in all its details, and there was no collision with the stone wall of that illogical but instinctive "honor" which forbids a decent boy to betray his fellows, no matter what they have done.

But it was in making the penalty fit the crime that this Board of Representatives gave magnificent proof of its competence and discretion. It did not use its giant power like a giant and advise a lot of expulsions, or even a lot of suspensions. Instead, it decided that, as the offenders had shown themselves to be unlicked cubs, unworthy to participate in social joys, they should not be permitted to hold the usual junior functions of balls and teas and theatre parties.

Some may think that not the severest of punishments, but not they who see in it the pronouncement that boys who did what these boys did are for at least a year unfit for gentler companionship than their own. That will out deep, and the fellow-students of the culprits can be trusted to see to it that the wound does not soon heal.

As the Student Board did its work so well, any criticism of it may seem ungracious, but we would like to know how its members defend their use of the word "inmates" in referring to the inhabitants of the dormitories. Etymologically, of course, the word is all right, but usage has restricted its application to those housed by institutions—well, somewhat different from universities. An entirely satisfactory substitute for "inmates" might be a little hard to find, but the Columbia library is well stocked with dictionaries, and a hunt through those precious volumes is never a waste of time.

CANADA'S RESPECT FOR LAW.

Accounted for as Enforced by People, Not by Judges.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I read with some surprise your editorial regarding the powers of the Supreme Court of Canada. You neglected to state that all the powers of that court proceed from a statute of the Dominion Parliament and not from the British North America act—the positions of American and Canadian courts thus being fundamentally different. It should also be noted that constitutional questions are very seldom raised in Canada, and that they attract very little attention. Here in New York when the Legislature, acting in its usual character, passed a sinister election law, the people looked to the courts to invent constitutional reasons for throwing out the objectionable features of the law; in Canada the voters would throw out the objectionable legislators.

Nowhere in the British North America act will you be able to find those guarantees of life, liberty, and property which have been construed in such strange fashion by American courts. Life, liberty, and property are safe in Canada because their preservation is intrusted absolutely to the people themselves. This is self-government; the people look after their own affairs instead of shifting responsibility. Our own system is government by judiciary. You admire the respect for the law which prevails in Canada. Perhaps it is significant that in seven of the nine Provinces the law is made by single-chambered Legislatures, and that the provisions of the British North America act are of such a kind as to make the raising of constitutional questions in the courts exceedingly rare. E. M. S.

[The guarantees mentioned by our correspondent are not included in the British North America act, but they are an essential part of Magna Charta and the unwritten Constitution of the British Empire.]—Editor THE TIMES.

Unmasking Socialist Pretensions.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I want to congratulate THE TIMES on its able criticisms of four recent Socialist publications. The Socialist Party has captured so many of the book reviewers in papers and magazines that it is almost an anomaly when a book is reviewed from the anti-Socialist standpoint. The reviews in THE NEW YORK TIMES of the recent publications of Walling, Spargo, and Scudder go to the core of the matter and are unanswerable. The reviewer removes the mask from the Socialist pretensions to be reformers and shows them to be destructive revolutionists. As Keir Hardie said yesterday in outlining the object of the Independent Labor Party, which is simply another name for the Socialist Party in England:

> The Independent Labor Party is not a reform organization. It is revolutionary in the fullest sense of the word. The party does not exist to patch up the existing order of society and make it a little more tolerable, but to overthrow the existing order and build up a Socialist State. ANTI-SOCIALIST.

Contemporary Praises The Times.

From The New Haven Journal-Courier.

The recent celebration by THE NEW YORK TIMES of its sixtieth anniversary is appropriately being taken advantage of by many of its contemporaries to extend it the greetings of the hour and to wish it continued prosperity. The position THE TIMES occupies in the newspaper world of this country is a dignified one, and if newspapers in general would deal more in imitation and less in compliment it would be a good thing. THE TIMES has demonstrated that the great City of New York is ready to support a newspaper which deliberately ignores sensational methods of manufacture, insists upon having its own views and clinging to them, while opening its columns to contrary views, and steers by the chart of acknowledged responsibility.

TAFT? NO! ROOSEVELT? NO!

Who Shall Lead the Republicans on the Tariff Issue?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

There is but one vital issue before the country—that is the tariff. When Col. Roosevelt was elected in 1904, there was a general feeling that the tariff should be reduced. It was also felt, however, that the Republican Party was the only party of progress and of constructive statesmanship, and that in this, as in all other important questions of the day, the Republican Party was the one to trust.

The feeling in 1908 in favor of revision was stronger, and President Taft took office with the definite agreement to lower the tariff. Col. Roosevelt, when President, persistently looked the other way whenever the tariff was mentioned. It remained for President Taft deliberately to give the community a higher tariff than it had before, and to try to read out of the party those who claimed that the Republicans should keep faith. For a commentary on his entire tariff course, no better could be found than in the editorial columns of THE NEW YORK TIMES a year or two back.

Judging from its record in Presidential elections, this country is strongly Republican. However, until the opening of this most interesting campaign between the Colonel and Mr. Taft, it seemed that the country had about decided to undergo the unpleasantness and uncertainties of a Democratic administration and to submit to four years of Democratic misrule entirely for the purpose of obtaining what it could apparently get in no other way—namely, a reduction of the tariff.

The present feeling of the country it is difficult to determine. However, it is not hard to believe that this would be its decision as soon as the delirium of the present primary contest is over, if the Democratic Party would put up a man who is in any way possible. According to present indications, and according to the record of the party, it is doubtful if one can reasonably hope for such a result from the Democrats. This, however, is secondary.

THE NEW YORK TIMES has always held the interests of the country as the matter of first importance. Its duty in regard to the Republican nomination is plain. The good of the country demands that the Republicans nominate a man who is safe, who is sane, who realizes the needs of the country in regard to the tariff, and who can be elected. President Taft is not such a man. In many ways he is safe and sane. He is entirely lacking in all sense of the needs of the country in regard to a low tariff and in strength of personality to carry through his ideas if they should be contrary to the desires of the machine. Finally, he cannot be elected.

Col. Roosevelt is in all ways impossible. The present most enjoyable primary contest has had one very beneficial effect. It has effectually weakened President Taft's chance of renomination. It is now, I think, the duty of THE TIMES and of all good citizens to urge for presentation some one who is qualified, some one who is safe, who is sane, who knows what the country needs, and who possesses the country's confidence.

Justice Hughes is probably the one best fitted for the nomination. If you can suggest any other one as well or better fitted for the position, there is strong reason for hope that such a one would be elected. J. N. DODD.

MATTHEW C. D. BORDEN.

John D. Crimmins Recalls His Services as Park Commissioner.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In the obituary notices of the death of Matthew C. D. Borden, I find no mention of his services as Park Commissioner, to which office he was appointed by the late Mayor William R. Grace on May 1, 1885, for a term of five years. I was associated with Mr. Borden during my term as Park Commissioner, and can speak of his attention to the duties of the office and the active and intelligent aid he lent to the administration of the parks at that period and to the administration of the affairs of the Borough of the Bronx, which was then under the jurisdiction of the Department of Parks.

During Mr. Borden's term the legislation was completed that caused the depression of the railroad tracks north of the Harlem River to Fordham. It was through his good offices that the understanding was arrived at between the Directors of the Harlem River Railroad and the Park Department, representing the city. It was a very important improvement, in which the city bore no part of the expense. The operation of the Harlem Railroad over the surface had been a menace to the residents of that part of our city. There were several important questions involved, and many previous attempts to bring about this improvement had failed.

Mr. Borden was associated with the late Judge Henry R. Beekman and myself in determining the location of the Grant Monument, completing the understanding with the family, and the preparations for the interment in the vault. He joined with his associates in entertaining the large number of guests representing the different States, the army and navy, as well as the famous Southern Generals, then living, who were our guests. Mr. Borden was a remarkable man, self-confident and generous. With the working people he was sympathetic and responsive.

JOHN D. CRIMMINS.

The "Dutch Neck" Prohibition.

I have read your news article headed "Dutch Necks Forbidden. Western Union Orders Girls to Wear Collars and Long Sleeves."

Do the Western Union people realize that it is mostly a matter of economy that working girls wear collarless and sleeveless waists? Are they aware that the collars and necks of waists are soiled long before the body of the waist is? It costs energy, to say nothing of the expense, to keep white gowns clean, and poor working girls certainly cannot afford the expense and are too tired to exert themselves in the evening.

How much better it would be for the Western Union to issue an order that their girls must not come to their offices with low-necked gowns. But collarless gowns and three-quarter sleeves are certainly a godsend to the working class and look comfortable in hot weather, and also enable the girls to work better.

Imperfect Life-Saving Requirements.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The answer of Mr. H. O. Nickerson to my letter regarding the life-saving equipment of boats running on Long Island Sound, informs us that the vessel to which I referred

> "has an excess of 76 per cent. over and above the Government requirements."

He further states that at the beginning of the season this boat's complement was reduced to 1,500. As my estimated lifeboat and liferaft capacity of 720 is not denied, it would be interesting to know how the 76 per cent. margin of safety is figured, for in case of sudden emergency it would still appear that 780 persons out of 1,500 could not be cared for either in boats or upon rafts. If this condition satisfies the Government requirements, an immediate change in the requirements would seem advisable. FREDERICK S. GREENE.

A NEW FREUNDSCHAFT CLUB.

Site Bought at the Northwest Corner of Seventh Ave. and 54th Street.

The Freundschaft Club, which has occupied its present home at Park Avenue and Seventy-second Street for more than a quarter of a century, has decided to move further downtown, and has bought for its new clubhouse a large plot on the northwest corner of Seventh Avenue and Fifty-fourth Street. The immediate vicinity has lately been improved with several tall apartment houses, being among the best structures of their class south of Fifty-ninth Street.

The property, which is to be the new home of the oldest German club in the city, having been founded in 1879, has a frontage of 50 feet in Seventh Avenue and 100 feet in Fifty-fourth Street. The old Carteret apartment and another building now cover the plot, which was sold last year by Col. F. M. Lawrence, President of the Union League Club, to a syndicate composed of L. & A. Pincus and Joseph L. Graf, who at first intended to put up an apartment house. They gave an option on the site to President Max D. Brill and the Building Committee of the Freundschaft Club some time ago, and the members have just ratified the decision of the committee to buy the property.

Plans for the new clubhouse, which will be a ten-story structure, are now being prepared by the architects, George and Edward Blum, and the house is to be ready for occupancy by May, 1913. With the land the entire cost will be about $500,000.

The cost of the new house is practically equal to the price for which the Freundschaft Club sold its present building on the southeast corner of Park Avenue and Seventy-second Street, a plot 102 by 130, last October to a syndicate headed by Edgar A. Levy. The present clubhouse, a five-story brick building, was erected in 1886 when the club was incorporated.

TO DISCUSS RITUAL LATER.

Methodists Appoint Commission to Report at 1916 Conference.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., May 29.—With the pronouncing of the benediction shortly after 3 o'clock by the venerable Bishop Henry W. Warren the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church closed. It was Bishop Warren's last appearance as presiding officer. He has been retired by the conference, having reached the age limit.

During to-day's session measure after measure was rushed through by the delegates, the one question which caused a delay at the session last night—that referring to a revision of the Church ritual—being avoided, the conference authorizing a commission, which will prepare a report to be presented to the 1916 General Conference within the first ten days of its existence.

The last act of the conference was the approval of the amendment to the constitution of "the Bishop of races" clause. It was favored by the Episcopacy Committee, and after long debate, participated in principally by the negro delegates of the South, was adopted by a vote of 520 to 43. This was not a two-thirds vote of the entire conference, but was sufficient, it was decided, to refer the question for approval to the annual and lay conferences of the next four years and to bring it up at the 1916 General Conference for final action.

Opposition to the amendment developed among some of the negro delegates, who declared that such action might be construed as race discrimination. J. Harvey Smith of Jacksonville, Fla., advising against permitting the chance of selection of a "jim crow" Bishop. It was explained, however, that the admendment to the constitution was not intended specifically for the negroes of the South, but also for the natives of Japan, China, India, and German and Scandinavian countries.

BAPTISTS CHOOSE DETROIT.

The Rev. Mr. Woelfkin Urges Broader Missionary Work.

DES MOINES, Ia., May 29.—Detroit was unanimously awarded the next annual Northern Baptist Convention at the closing session of the Baptists here to-day.

"Jesus Christ is not going to play the oratorio of the redemption on a drum and fife, but on the combined instruments of the combined orchestra of the East and of the West," said the Rev. Cornelius Woelfkin of New York, in addressing the convention to-day. In speaking on foreign missions he declared it was the duty of missionaries to prepare the field for the service.

"True religion must rejuvenate itself with every generation," he said. "I have no sympathy for the sentiment of simply applauding the work which has been done. We should carry out the work of those who have gone before," he said.

Twenty young men and women, newly appointed foreign missionaries, stood upon the platform and told why they are going into the foreign fields. Five of the young women are financees of young men who are going into far countries.

Frank L. Minor of Des Moines was chosen Treasurer of the convention.

EDWARD F. BROWNING'S WILL.

Residuary Estate Divided Between His Son and Daughter.

The will of Edward F. Browning, formerly a member of the firm of Browning, King & Co., President of the Alabama & Georgia Railway, and Director of the American Surety Company, who died at his home, 18 West Seventy-fifth Street, on May 15, was filed yesterday for probate. He leaves real estate of unestimated value and personalty of more than $10,000.

According to the terms of the will, the residuary estate is divided between Edward West Browning, his son, and Florence Biggs, wife of George P. Biggs, his daughter, and $10,000 each is left to George P. Biggs and George B. Biggs, his grandson. Among the personal effects left to his daughter is a large picture painted by himself when he was 12 years old.

Anagrams on Roosevelt.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Perhaps this twisting of the letters in Theodore Roosevelt's name may appeal to your correspondent, Nicholas E. Crosby, who turns it into "Vote Loser:" "Old Hero T. R.! O. see vote!" G. S. L.

New York, May 28, 1912.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

By giving it a different twist, it becomes "resolve to," and we know of course, that what T. R. resolves to do is, in his opinion, already as good as done. Is there any reasonable way of accounting for such a candidacy but by Teddy's "resolve to run?"

May 28, 1912. "MUGWUMP."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Roosevelt may also be anagrammised into "Sole Voter," which might have been deduced from "L'Etat, cest moi."

MODEST C. TIZEN.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I humbly submit the following oracle, composed of the nine letters of the former President's patronymic: "E. O. loves T. R." The translation of this is based on the returns that are coming in from the primaries these days: "Every one loves Theodore Roosevelt." If this anagram is not literally true, it is easily as true as Mr. Crosby's, for Mr. Roosevelt has never been conspicuous as a "vote loser," to date. JOEL B. SLOCUM.

WOULD NOT REBUILD ON ARSENAL SITE

Stover Would Place Lenox Library to the North of Sixty-fifth Street.

DE FOREST FOR FRICK OFFER

But a Fight Is Expected from the Opponents of Park Buildings of Every Kind.

Both Park Commissioner Charles B. Stover and Robert W. De Forest, President of the Municipal Art Commission, want the city to accept the offer of Henry C. Frick to give the city the old Lenox Library Building, to be erected in Central Park in place of the old Arsenal Building, as the permanent home of the Park administration offices. Mr. Stover is especially anxious to have the Arsenal Building pulled down because he says it is structurally unsafe, inflammable, and an unfit place for storing the valuable records of the Park Department. Mr. De Forest, while less enthusiastic, says that the offer is a splendid one, and that it ought to be accepted.

Mr. Stover said yesterday that he supposed there would be some opposition to the plan to substitute the Library Building for the old Arsenal Building, but he failed to see how there could be any justice in the opposition. He also knew, he said, that many persons were in favor of removing the menagerie from Central Park to Bronx Park, but he thought this proposal was too sweeping to be just.

There is also considerable opposition to keeping the present police station in the Park. Mr. Stover said that Mayor Gaynor is considering the advisability of restoring the gray-coat policemen of ante-consolidation days, because he believes they would serve the people better. The bluecoats are trained to look after a different class of lawbreakers than those who visit the parks, and what would appear to a "graycoat" as a very grave offense would be passed over by a "bluecoat" as of no consequence.

Opposition Expected.

A little later, when the offer of Mr. Frick comes up for definite action, a good deal of opposition, it was said, would probably come from those who favor a park as free of business buildings as possible, and who fear that any encroachment on the park grounds would lead to continued encroachments. At any rate, the discussion will bring out some plans for park work that have so far not been made public. Mr. Stover said yesterday that he believed the sole objection anybody could have to the acceptance of Mr. Frick's offer was on the ground that the building would occupy park space that ought to be held for park purposes, and not for business purposes, even though it is confined to public business.

Mr. Stover said that instead of encroaching on the park ground, the acceptance of Mr. Frick's offer would increase the actual park area.

"The dimensions of the Arsenal Building," he said, "are 200 by 125 feet, just the same size as the Library Building.

"It is not the idea to place the Library Building exactly on the present site of the Arsenal, but to locate it just north of the transverse road at Sixty-fifth Street. Then we could demolish the Arsenal Building. It is old and ramshackle, with a bad roof, and is structurally unsafe."

Asked what Park records were kept there, Mr. Stover said that part of them consisted of the original plans of the Park that were made about seventy-five years ago. About three years later the Arsenal was built as a storage house for ammunition.

"There is nothing interesting about the building," said Mr. Stover, "and nothing of any historic value."

The plan, as outlined by Mr. Stover, is to restore the site of the Arsenal to the Park area, but to keep the entrance at Sixty-fourth Street and build a road leading directly to the library building, with a tunnel or bridge across the transverse road. The building used by the restaurant could be torn down, and possibly some of the animals sent to the Bronx Zoo.

Would Be Rid of Some Animals.

Mr. Stover doesn't want the monkeys, the coyotes, and wolves in Central Park. But he does want the fallow deer, the lions and tigers, and the hippopotamuses, because he thinks they interest the people.

"It was the original intention," he said, "to locate the menagerie in the North Meadow. While there is no zoological garden in Central Park any more than the book cases we have here make this building a library, the animals are as necessary as the books. Our Bengal tiger is visited by crowds, and we want to keep him here for the pleasure of the people. The hippopotamuses we have here are the progenitors of their kind in America."

Mr. Stover said that the old Lenox Library building is admirably adapted for the purposes of Park administration. It consists of three main floors and is made of granite and not of marble, as many people think. It was built about 1873.

Mr. Stover said that the public ought to understand Mr. Frick's offer thoroughly before any opposition is made. He thinks that if the offer is accepted that it will lead to further improvements in the public parks.

"We ought to have proper office facilities," he said, "and there will be no room in the new municipal building for us. I think this is a splendid solution of the problem."

Mr. de Forest said:

"The offer of Mr. Frick is exceedingly generous and public spirited. It offers an opportunity for the city to get a dignified headquarters for the Park offices. I think the city should accept the offer."

Mr. de Forest would not say anything further about it. He thought the matter should rest until it is taken up by the city authorities.

PARK CONCERT ON SUNDAY.

Bigger Appropriation Adds Two Months to Season This Year.

Park Commissioner Stover announced yesterday that there would be plenty of music this Summer in the parks of Manhattan and Richmond. In Central Park, in July and August, an orchestra under Franz Kaltenborn and Arnold Volpe will give concerts daily. The regular Saturday and Sunday concerts will begin this Sunday at 4 o'clock, one month earlier than last year. They will continue until Sunday, June 30, when the daily concerts will begin, and will continue for nine weeks until Aug. 31, when the regular Saturday and Sunday schedule will again be taken up, to continue until the last concert, on Sept. 29, one month later than last year.

The additional music is possible because of the increased appropriation of $40,000. Last year the Commissioner got $35,000 to spend for the park music. The Saturday and Sunday afternoon concerts will start at 4 o'clock, and the daily concerts are scheduled for 8 o'clock in the evening.

First-class bands have been engaged for the regular Saturday and Sunday concerts in the other parks of Manhattan, and also for the parks of Richmond. These concerts will start on July 4.

"EQUAL PAY" IN THE COURTS

Woman Teacher, Who Demands $1,500 Salary, Gets a Mandamus.

Supreme Court Justice Erlanger granted an alternative writ of mandamus on the Board of Education to Miss Emma Wustlich, a teacher, yesterday. She declares that she should receive a salary of $1,500 under the equal pay law.

Miss Wustlich has been a teacher in the public schools for 22 years. When she applied for the $1,500 salary to the Board of Education her application was refused on the ground that the provision that she was "fit and meritorious" had never been voted.

Alfred J. Talley, her attorney, maintains that the mere fact that she was retained as a teacher twenty-two years assumes the fact that Miss Wustlich was considered fit and meritorious.

The case will come to trial before a jury in October.

DENY MRS. STORY IS TO WED.

Report That She Is to Marry Stanley Forde Said to be Premature.

The report circulated yesterday that Mrs. Helen Hilton Story, formerly the wife of Allen Lawrence Story, would be married to Stanley Forde, the actor, who was named in the suit for divorce which Mr. Story brought against his wife last March, on June 5 in Jersey City, and that the couple would depart for Europe the next day was not only denied yesterday but declared somewhat premature.

The final divorce decree will not be entered until the last week of June, and, of course, Mrs. Story could not be married before that time. According to William M. Sullivan, who is Mrs. Story's attorney, she will sail for Europe soon after the decree is entered and will remain abroad for an indefinite period. She will be accompanied abroad by a chaperone.

In September of this year Mrs. Story will become of age, James H. Hickey now being her guardian, and will come into a great deal of money left by the late Judge Henry Hilton, said to be several millions of dollars. It is quite likely that she may be obliged to return from abroad in the Fall to settle her affairs.

Friends of both Mrs. Story and Mr. Forde declared yesterday that they have always been good friends, and that the divorce proceedings naturally brought them in closer friendly relationship, but that there has been no hint of a forthcoming marriage. Mrs. Story is at present visiting friends in Westchester County.

Mrs. Story was Miss Helen Hilton, daughter of Col. Albert B. Hilton, and she was married to Mr. Story in September, 1907, in Baltimore, Md., where the couple had gone to be married unbeknown to their family or friends. Their domestic troubles started last Summer when Mrs. Story took a cottage at Navesink Beach, N. J., where Mr. Forde, who was a friend of both Mr. and Mrs. Story, called frequently. Mr. Story later brought suit and obtained a decree of divorce on March 2 last.

Lane of San Francisco, Prof. George Holland of Berzeley, Cal., and Rex Beach.

The original title of the musical comedy is "Du Lieber Augustin," and the music is by Leo Fall, composer of "The Dollar Princess." Lee Shubert expects to make his Spring visit to London in company with Mr. Bernard.

The management of "The Rose Maid" will give souvenir matinees all through the month of June, beginning next Wednesday, when every woman in the audience will receive American Beauty roses. Brides' roses will be distributed at the second matinee, and suitable souvenirs on the other matinees.

General Theological Seminary Also Confers Two Degrees of Doctor of Divinity.

CLERGYMAN'S WORK PRAISED

Bishop Greer Puts the Voice of the Young Preacher Above the Voice of the Mystic.

Twenty-two students were graduated yesterday from the General Theological Seminary at Ninth Avenue and Twenty-first Street. Two degrees of Doctor of Divinity, and twnety degrees of Bachelor of Divinity were also conferred.

Bishop G. H. Kinsolving of Texas presided at the exercises, making the principal address and presenting the diplomas. His son, Walter Ovid Kinsolving, was one of the twenty-two graduates and one of the class's three essayists. It was in Dr. Kinsolving's little church in Loudoun County, Virginia, that Bishop Greer of this diocese, who was another of the speakers at yesterday's exercises, preached his first sermon after being ordained to the priesthood.

The commencement exercises were held in the Chapel of the Good Shepard on the Seminary's campus; and the graduates, led by Bishops Kinsolving, Greer and J. M. Francis of Indianapolis, and followed by their relatives and guests marched into the Chapel singing the processional, "Ancient of Days." After the reading of Psalm LXVIII., and the lesson and the saying of the Nicene Creed, essays were read by three members of the graduating class. William Hugh Ferrar Binns, B. A., of Hobart College and the Diocese of North Dakota, chose the subject, "The Value of Mystical Experience;" Walter Ovid Kinsolving, M. A., of the University of Texas, "Practical Ideals for the Worship of this Church;" Benjamin Martin Washburn, B. A., of Dartmouth College and the Diocese of Vermont, "God's Prophets."

"I am impressed with these young men's assurance of the correctness of their ideas," said Bishop Greer, after the essays had been read.

Bishop Kinsolving in his address told the graduates that, although he had always been anxious for his son, their classmate, to become a clergyman, he had never made any suggestion to that effect except once when the boy was about ten years of age.

"President McKinley was visiting our town," he said, "and my son and I went to hear him speak. When we came home, I said that President McKinley, being virtually the ruler of an empire of 70,000,000 people, held the highest position in the entire world.

"But there is one position which is more enviable," I added, "that of a Christian minister."

Bishop Kinsolving told how a prominent Ohio politican many years ago came with a younger man, to hear him preach in Cincinnati.

"I thought that night that I was preaching one of my poorest sermons," said Dr. Kinsolving modestly, "but I learned afterward that, as the politician and the young man walked away from the church after the service the politician said that, although he had held every political position in this country except that of President, he would sooner have preached that sermon than to have had all his honors. As a result of the conversation which he had with the young man, the latter gave up a clerkship and went to a theological seminary. He is now a missionary bishop."

Bishop Kinsolving said that this should encourage young clergymen who while preaching feared they were not at their best.

Bishop Greer surprised everyone by referring to Bishop Kinsolving as his "Big Brother." Then he told about having preached his first sermon after having entered the priesthood in Dr. Kinsolving's humble country church.

"Bishop Kinsolving held this position for many years and humble as he was, he came to be known and respected for miles around. We want more men like him in the Church—men who are not seeking their own comfort, but who have the spirit of true soldiers. The voice of the young clergyman at some humble inconspicuous post means more to me than the voice of the prophet or the mystic."

Several of the young men who were graduated from the Seminary will take places as assistant pastors in this city. Irwin St. George Tucker of Louisiana, will become an assistant in St. Marks Church on the Bowery. Morton C. Stone, from Connecticut, will go to St. Michael's in upper Amsterdam Avenue. Benjamin M. Washburn, one of the three essayists, who comes from Vermont, will study East Side conditions at Grace Chapel. John F. Virgin of Tennessee, will accept a position at Christ Church, Elizabeth, N. J. Percy M. V. Binnington of this city will become an assistant at Christ Church, Brooklyn. Gerald H. Lewis, also of this city, has been appointed to a position with St. Paul's Church, New Rochelle and Samuel H. Wood will do missionary work under the new archdeacon in Westchester County.

The twenty-two graduates from the Seminary yesterday were:

Percy Major Vincent Binnington, William High Ferrar Binns, B. A.; Theodore John Dewees, Edward Gabler, Frederick Alexander Eastburn, B. A.; John Edward Gerstenberg, B. S.; Robert Emmet Gribbin, B. A., B. S.; Seth Canfield Hawley, Edmund Talma Jillson, B. A.; George Phillip Jung, Walter Ovid Kinsolving, M. A.; Gerald Horton Lewis, B. A.; William Christy Patterson, B. A.; Mark Rifenburk, B. A.; Francis Henry Smith, Morton Charnleigh Stone, B. A.; Carl Alexander Herbert Stridsberg, B. A.; Irwin St. John Tucker, John Fredrik Virgin, Benjamin Martin Washburn, B. A.; Samuel Hamill Wood, George Gilbert Walker.

The degree of Doctor in Divinity was conferred on Very Rev. Wilford Lash Robbins, D. D., LL. D., and on Rev. Charles Norman Shepard, A. M., B. D.

The degree of Bachelor in Divinity was conferred on Revs. Eugene de Forest Heald, A. M.; Carroll Healy Stanton, Andrew Yu Yue Teu, A. M.; Albert Lamrieu Longley, Edward Washington Daniel, Walker Gwynne, Henry Sherman Smart, Floarder Howard, Edmund Selden Lane, Ph. B.; Leicester Crosby Lewis, A. M.; Wallace Fawcett Thompson, A. B.; George Thomas le Boutillier, A. M.; Walter Dorsey McClane, A. B.; Harold Lyman Smith Johns, William Leopold Essex, A. B.; Gordon Douglas Hoxsey, A. B.; Jacob Albert Weagle, A. B.; Emanuel Aaron le Moine, A. B.; Herbert Webb Hopkins, A. B.; Robert Frederick Lau, A. M.

According to acting Dean Denslow, five students at the seminary baptized and confirmed as Catholics are now enrolled in the Protestant seminary and studying for the Protestant ministry. Three students left the seminary a fortnight ago to study for the Catholic priesthood.

COOPER UNION GRADUATION.

J. P. Morgan, Jr., Succeeds George W. Rives as Trustee.

Two hundred and ninety-six young men and women, students in the various courses in Cooper Union, received their diplomas last night in the Cooper Union auditorium. The greatest honor went to Arthur R. Jensen, valedictorian, who delivered an oration on "The Development of the Motor Vehicle." Other orations were delivered by Isabelle M. Coles on "The Course in Decorative Design," and Clement B. Johnson on "The Disposal of Municipal Waste."

An important announcement made by John E. Parsons, President of Cooper Union Institute, was that the vacancy caused by the resignation as member of the Board of Trustees of George W. Rives had been filled by J. Pierpont Morgan, Jr., who, Mr. Parsons said, "bears his father's honored name and who therefore is a great friend of Cooper Union."

E. R. Hewitt, Treasurer, announced in his annual report to the Board of Trustees that the expenditures for the past year had been $161,000, leaving a balance to date in the Treasury of $20,000. Following this report President Parsons gave a detailed statement of the needs of Cooper Union. He said that the new Hewitt addition, which is being erected at a cost of $372,000, would require interior equipments which would cost $70,000 additional, and that $40,000 of this amount was still lacking.

"Cooper Union appeals with all confidence," Mr. Parsons said, "to its past history, to its present record, and it continues to cherish the hope that some generous donor will put at the disposition of the Trustees a sum adequate to complete the construction of the Hewitt addition, and to constitute an invested fund, the income of which will meet the institution's constantly increasing expenses."

Others on the speakers' platform were Peter Cooper Hewitt, Mrs. Lloyd Bryce, wife of the United States Minister to the Netherlands and a granddaughter of Peter Cooper; her daughter, Miss Bryce; Miss Eleanor G. Hewitt, and Dr. George F. Kunz.

Kate Douglas Wiggin Returns.

Kate Douglas Wiggin, the author and playwright, returned last night on the Cunard liner Caronia from a holiday in Europe. She said that her principal object in going abroad had been to arrange for the production of "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm" in London, which would be put on at one of Charles Frohman's theatres. Mrs. Wiggin is now going to her Summer home in Maine to commence work on her new book which will be a continuation of "Mother Carey's Chickens." Her husband, G. C. Riggs, accompanied her.

GREAT NAVAL MEN RECALLED BY KANE

Chaplain with Famous Fighters Will Take Part in Decoration Day Memorial.

THINKS FARRAGUT GREATEST

Places Him Above Nelson—Sampson One of the Cleverest Men in Our Naval History.

When the veterans of the civil war assemble to do honor to the Nation's dead one of those who will take part in the Memorial Day observances is Chaplain James J. Kane, Rear Admiral U. S. N., retired. More than thirty-five years in active service in the navy, he has served at one time or another under most of the men who rose to prominence and high rank by fighting the naval battles of the country. He was with such men as Farragut, Porter, Dewey, Sampson, and Schley. During his career in the navy, besides acting as chaplain, he at one time commanded a gunboat.

When a young man Chaplain Kane made up his mind to enter the ministry, but he had always had a liking for the sea, so when an opportunity came to embark with a merchant vessel he quickly embraced it. He visited foreign ports, and later went to the Far North on a whaling cruise.

He entered the navy as Master's Mate on Aug. 8, 1861, and was ordered for duty on the United States frigate Potomac, and was appointed Acting Chaplain of the vessel. Both Sampson and Schley at the time were with him on the Potomac.

The frigate was sent to the Gulf Squadron to join Admiral Farragut's blockading fleet. Chaplain Kane for fourteen months performed all the religious duties of the ship. In 1862 he was given command of the armed schooner Charlotte. He was later promoted by Admiral Farragut to the grade of Ensign in the Volunteer Navy, and ordered as Watch and Divisional Officer to the U. S. S. Tennessee. Admiral Farragut complimented him for the way he had performed his duties as a chaplain and as a line officer. In February, 1868, he was made Executive Officer of the U. S. S. Sam Houston, a gunboat which was stationed at the Navy Yard at Pensacola to protect it from attack by the Confederate forces. The Confederates made a determined effort to take the yard, but were repulsed by the naval pickets from the schooner.

"Admiral Farragut," said Chaplain Kane, "was to my mind the greatest Admiral our navy has known. He was like Nelson, but greater, I believe. Admiral Farragut was absolutely fearless, and when there was fighting he liked to be in the midst of it.

"Porter, too, was a great Admiral. Sampson was one of the cleverest men the navy ever had. He designed many guns used on our battleships. I was with Dewey for two years when I was a Captain, and after the battle of Manila I told him my preaching had helped to make him a victor."

Chaplain Kane took part in both battles of Fort Fisher. He was wounded in the first engagement by the explosion of a 100-pound shell from the fort.

Chaplain Kane also told of a daring plan to blow up a Confederate ship that came near the close of the war. It happened while the North Atlantic Squadron, under Admiral Porter, was at anchor in the James River at City Point, Va. Admiral Porter wanted to get rid of the Confederate fleet, which blocked the harbor, cutting off the Union forces from Richmond.

"Admiral Porter sent for me," said Chaplain Kane, "and informed me he had a mission for me. He wanted me to destroy the Confederate ironclad Virginia, the flagship of Admiral Semmes, who formerly commanded the famous

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Break in Prices on Increased Trading; Bear Pressure Exerted—The Political Factor.

Some, and perhaps an important part, of the selling which caused prices to decline on the Stock Exchange yesterday represented the operations of bearishly inclined traders, who felt that the extreme dullness into which the market had fallen on Tuesday offered them an opportunity to force a decline in prices. Added to this selling was some which represented the liquidation of a disappointed long interest in certain stocks in which the speculatively inclined had recently put rather high hopes. The traders who moved against the market had to help them, besides the liquidation of the character just referred to, the poor Reading statement for the month of April, the sentimental effect of the rather sharp break in the Rock Island securities extending to the collateral trust bonds, as well as to the stocks of the holding company, and also the results of Tuesday's Presidential primaries in New Jersey. This latter, doubtless, exerted some influence, but the attitude of the Stock Exchange and of a large section of the rest of the financial community toward the political situation makes it altogether reasonable to suppose that even without the news of Mr. Roosevelt's success in New Jersey, which was even greater than had generally been expected, the stock market might have acted much as it did yesterday. Buying back in the afternoon of stocks which had been sold early in the day helped to confirm the impression that a good deal of the early pressure upon prices had been short selling. The effect upon prices was to reduce most of the day's declines to fractions, while in a few instances among the active shares the recovery was sufficient to bring net gains for the day. Conspicuous among the stocks which showed larger losses were the Rock Island shares and Reading and Lehigh Valley. Reading's poor showing for April and the same may be said of the Erie's statement for that month given out yesterday was in keeping with the known facts in respect to the curtailment of revenue, because of the suspension of anthracite mining. It hardly deserved to be made as much a market factor as it was, inasmuch as practically all of the business lost during April, and during the greater part of May as a result of the closing of the mines, will be probably regained by the hard coal roads now that mining has been resumed. Incidentally, the anthracite coal interests have seen to it that the settlement with their miners and the coincident change in the price of coal assures them even larger profits than those heretofore realized. It was probably recognition of this fact which found reflection in the two-point net gain in Delaware & Hudson, which yesterday followed a course the direct opposite of that followed by the two anthracite stocks which were favored in recent speculation.

If Wall Street were to recall now some of the things which it was saying regarding Mr. Roosevelt and his policies during his second term in the White House, a different story would be written of the effect upon financial sentiment of his success in New Jersey and in other States whose recent preferential votes have so greatly strengthened Mr. Roosevelt's effort to obtain the nomination at Chicago. The fact is that a large part of the financial community, accepting the onward sweep of the Roosevelt campaign, chooses to forget what so many people in Wall Street believed and expressed regarding Mr. Roosevelt's policies and methods while he was in the White House. Some there are, and included among them are some leaders of financial opinion, who still hope that out of the turmoil into which the Presidential campaign has been thrown will come forward some standard bearer who can command the support of conservative opinion, but the majority seem to be contenting themselves with the argument that the most radical of candidates, if nominated and elected, will in office set aside radicalism and administer the affairs of the Nation with calm judgment and even-handed wisdom. The transformation which they picture may assign too great a task to the sense of responsibility which should go with election to the Presidency. It is very plain from the present drift of discussion in the financial district regarding affairs political that much importance is being attached to assurances which certain financial interests believe have been given regarding the stand which Mr. Roosevelt will take in the event that he is nominated regarding the corporations and business affairs generally. To regard these assurances, if really they have been given, as meaning much, Wall Street must surely shorten its memory of past events. It is apparently engaged at that task at present.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Subway Offer Still Open.

It is planned to receive subscriptions for the $170,000,000 Interborough Rapid Transit bonds until next Tuesday, at which time the syndicate for handling the big issue will be formed. The interruption caused by the Memorial Day holiday this week was partly responsible for keeping the books open longer than had originally been intended. While most of the bonds will probably be allotted in large blocks, it was learned yesterday that in several instances bankers had made individual offers to take part of the issue for their own investment purposes.

Would Spare Mr. Pujo.

Perhaps some of the banks which have declined to fill out Chairman Pujo's long information blanks have withheld them from a praiseworthy desire to spare the Money Trust investigator a lot of useless labor. In framing the inquiries the Chairman evidently went on the principle that if a lot of unnecessary data were returned it could be thrown away, while if he neglected to ask about specific points no information on those subjects would be vouchsafed him. It is known that the committee's counsel is not in sympathy with the attempt to get all the banks in the country on record, believing that it would be a hopeless task to connect a one-man bank in Tuskaloosa with the operations of Wall Street.

***

One Bank's Suggestion.

The American National Bank of San Francisco is one of those institutions which have refused to become greatly agitated over the inquiry, although not in sympathy with it. "While there is no desire on the part of the banks to withhold needed information from the committee," says a communication from the bank, "it is felt that the method of seeking it is cumbersome and unnecessary, as most of the data sought is in the hands of the Controller of the Currency or the banking departments of the various States, and could be made available to the committee without the slightest objection from the banks. If all the 30,000 banks in the United States file reports as requested, the committee will acquire an enormous and mainly useless mass of assorted information which will take months to analyze, arrange, and classify. If the committee were sincerely searching for light on needed banking legislation, there would be no need of going further than the admirable publications of the National Monetary Commission."

Market Picks Up.

Yesterday's transactions aggregating 539,000 shares showed a volume of business greater than the two previous days of the week and Saturday's short session combined. In the early trading there were a number of new low records made for the year, notably in the railroads of the Southwest, whose business has been affected by the floods. New York Air Brake, which sold up to 61, was the one issue to show a high record. There were eleven low records in all.

***

Record Capital Output.

Since Jan. 1 more new securities have been put out by railroad and industrials corporations than in any similar period. According to the compilations made by The Journal of Commerce the new security issues in that period have amounted to $548,634,899 compared with $273,256,050 in 1911, an increase of $275,428,849. In 1906 the total was $1,637,013,350 and last year, which holds the record for twelve months, the total was $1,739,487,720. There is to be considered, however, that this year a large proportion of the new issues represented refunding operations. The largest increases are in stocks, industrials leading with total stock issues of $243,545,197 which is an increase of $148,092,147. Railroad stock issues, which totaled $116,872,977, a decline of $59,718,680, represented an increase of $52,594,977. Note issues by railroads were $174,691,320 against $72,001,702 by industrial corporations, which represents an increase of $40,825,702. Railroad bond issues totaling $425,574,500 were an increase of $6,488,600, while industrial bond issues increased by $86,511,000 to $233,188,000.

NEW BANK IN PROSPECT.

Merchants Organizing with the Idea of Mutual Help.

Satisfactory progress is reported in the movement to establish a mutual credit National bank in the Union Square section of the city. According to a statement made yesterday by J. Silberswelg, 338 East Fifteenth Street, who is at the head of the movement, $15,000 of the proposed half million capitalization has already been subscribed. The movement is receiving the support of several representative business men, and at a second meeting of the interested parties, which will be held shortly, an organization committee of five will be elected.

Several features of the proposed institution are rather out of the usual order, features of especial benefit to stockholders when temporary financial assistance is required being the principal points incorporated in the present plans. Among other things, a percentage of the profits will be carried as an emergency account, and out of this amount assistance will be given stockholders of two or more years' standing to tide over temporary financial difficulties. This plan, it is said, will materially reduce the necessity of calling loans, a process which often means ruin for the affected party.

Prospects of the success of the project are held to be good, and a belief was expressed yesterday that the enterprise will be an established institution before the snow flies.

FOR GRAND TRUNK EXTENSION

Of Public Benefit, Bay State Railroad Board Tells Legislature.

BOSTON, May 29.—That the extension of the Southern New England Railroad to Boston, thereby giving the Grand Trunk system a fourth seaboard outlet in New England, is in the public interest, was the opinion sent to the Legislature to-day by the Railroad Commission. In its statement the commission suggested certain amendments to make the bill conform to the Massachusetts railroad law.

The bill had passed the House and was pending in the Senate when the inquiry was made as to its public benefit. Any amendments by the Senate will require concurrent action by the House before the bill reaches the Governor.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Many Moderate Declines, with Trading in Increased Volume in the Curb Market.

Recessions were general in the Curb market yesterday, though many issues recovered before the close from the low prices of the day. Activity was substantially greater than in the sluggish markets of the two previous days. Movements in the industrial list were for the most part narrow, though there was a range of 5 points in United Cigar Stores which sold 1,200 between 225 and 230. The close at 227½ was ½ point below the opening level. In the mining list Braden Copper shared its leadership in activity with Greene-Cananea, each reporting transactions of 5,000. Braden sold between 6½ and 6¾, and closed even, with the opening at 6⅝. Greene-Cananea closed at 10, ⅛ above the opening, after having sold down to 9⅝. British Columbia declined ¼ to 5, and Kerr Lake ⅛. Nipissing advanced ½ from the opening and closed at the high level after small transactions. In the bond list there was continued activity in the copper company bonds, all of which closed even with the opening levels.

Transactions reported yesterday in the outside market, with opening, high, low, and last prices, were as follows:

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Business on the Consolidated Stock Exchange was more than four times greater than on Tuesday. This expansion was at the expense of prices in the early dealings. Before the local opening the New Jersey returns caused some Consolidated Exchange traders to sell stocks in the London market on cabled orders. The opening, however, was firm and moderately active, although the strength was merely temporary. A general selling movement soon developed which carried prices down rapidly, with the reaching of stop loss orders adding to the pressure upon the market. The shares of a few prominent railroads, whose earnings have been poor, showed special weakness from the opening and their action helped to unsettle the rest of the list.

Electric Gas and Power Companies Rolled Into One.

The Texas Power and Light Company has been incorporated to acquire electric light and power and gas properties in Texas. It will take over immediately all the properties of the Waco Electric and Gas Company, Cleburne Electric and Gas Company, Hillsborough Electric and Gas Company, Waxahachie Electric and Gas Company, Temple Electric Light Company, Sherman Electric and Gas Company, and Bonham Electric and Gas Company. These companies do the entire commercial electric light and power business in all the cities served, all the gas business in Waco and Cleburne, and the municipal electric light business in all the seven cities served except Sherman.

The purchase is being financed by the Electric Bond and Share Company in the interest of the American Power and Light Company, which already controls the Kansas Gas and Electric Company, Pacific Power and Light Company, and the Portland Gas and Coke Company.

CANE SUGAR BASIS OF BEET SUGAR PRICE

Cost of Production, Government Shows, Had Nothing to Do with the Rate.

MORE HAVEMEYER LETTERS

They Are Used by Prosecution to Refresh the Memory of Trust's Beet Sugar Agent.

The Sugar Trust, in formulating its prices for beet sugar, paid little attention to the cost of production of the beets, but followed closely the cost of cane sugar, according to the evidence brought out yesterday at the hearing of the Government's suit against the American Sugar Refining Company before Special Examiner Wilson B. Brice in the Federal Building. Chester S. Morey, President of the Northwestern Sugar Company, was again on the stand, and Assistant United States District Attorney Knapp tried to discover from him how prices were fixed.

He began by putting in evidence a letter written on Feb. 20, 1904, by Mr. Morey to H. O. Havemeyer, in which he spoke of an attempt to push the sale of beet sugar in Colorado by selling it at 10 cents less than cane sugar, and stated that he gave a 5-cent differential in favor of Missouri River points. Mr. Morey also informed Mr. Havemeyer that all the sugar shipped to the Eastern markets would in future be branded merely "Extra Fine Dry Granulated Sugar," as he had discovered that it was a mistake to put on the sacks the name of the local factory, which would show that the sacks held beet sugar.

"How did you regulate your prices?" asked Mr. Knapp.

"By the cane sugar price. We always sold some under the price, but were able at times to sell within 3 cents on the hundred of cane sugar. But I remember when there was a difference of 40 cents, and even close to 50 cents. That was in 1907, when the crop was large."

Mr. Knapp suggested that the cost of production of beet sugar had nothing to do with the price, but Mr. Morey would not allow that, though he reiterated the practice of keeping as close as possible to the cane sugar rates.

Mr. Morey could not throw any light on the process by which the price of cane sugar is reached, but he stated that the usual differential between cane and beet sugar was from 10 to 20 cents a hundred, and that they did all they could to meet the market.

"I would say," he said, "that the natural price of cane sugar in Kansas City would be the market price at New Orleans, plus the freight rate, but competition with Californian markets prevents that basis being maintained strictly. Occasionally it happens that New York prices are so much lower than New Orleans that the Kansas City rates are affected."

"Did Mr. Havemeyer urge you to follow the sugar market?" asked Mr. Knapp.

"It wasn't necessary. I saw it was the best we could do."

"But you could have sold considerably lower in many cases?"

"But it would have been poor business policy," replied Mr. Morey, and then went on to deny any knowledge of the opinion of Mr. Havemeyer on this point. Mr. Knapp retorted by putting in a letter of Mr. Havemeyer, dated Nov. 11, 1904, in which he expressed the desire that from that time forth Mr. Morey would follow the prices of the American Sugar Refining Company and pointed out that the entire independent interest at that time of year did not represent 20 per cent.

Mr. Knapp next took up the question of the devision of territories for selling purposes. Mr. Morey admitted receiving one request for such a division, but he could not remember who made it. He denied any regular agreement in 1903 whereby the Colorado companies would keep out of the Missouri River district if the California concerns kept out of Colorado. He had, he admitted, heard that some one, who it was he could not remember, had made such a suggestion.

"I regarded it," he said, "as a good business policy. Our freight rates to Chicago were the same as to the Missouri River, so it made no diffference."

Mr. Knapp then produced a letter from Mr. Havemeyer to Mr. Morey in 1903 in which he criticised such an arrangement.

"Irrespective of the advantage they may have conceded to you in Colorado and New Mexico," wrote Mr. Havemeyer, "I think you are entitled to your share of the Missouri River markets. Isn't the new idea that because some sugar has to be sold from San Francisco that they should have the nearest market, and that, to accommodate it, sugar made nearest to the market should be shipped elsewhere. However, you know better about the matter, and like all the rest I leave it to your discretion."

Mr. Morey declared that soon afterward this arrangement was given up and not renewed, though Mr. Knapp produced a letter written by Charles Boetcher, one of the Directors of the Colorado concerns in 1905, to Havemeyer in which he spoke of an arrangement with the California and Utah people not to ship to the Missouri River.

The hearing was adjourned to Monday. The Government is trying to show by its questions as to price that since a fall in the cost of production of a quarter of a cent a hundred meant large gains to the Sugar Trust, the profits from the beet industry, which did not follow the cost of production at all, must have been enormous.

TO ENJOIN STEAMSHIP LINES.

Government Suit, Involving Charge of Conspiracy, Begins Next Month.

The suit under the Sherman law brought by the Government against the Hamburg-American Packet Company and other steamship lines which are members of the North Atlantic Conference, involving the charge that there is an illegal combination for the pooling of steerage passenger traffic, will begin next month. To expedite proceedings, Assistant United States District Attorney Guiler obtained yesterday from Judge Lacombe an order to the defendants to show cause on June 5 why a Special Examiner should not be appointed to take testimony in the case.

District Attorney Wise in the Government petition asks for an injunction to restrain the vessels of the defendants from entering or clearing American ports while a combination exists. The steamship companies demurred on the ground that the Federal courts had no jurisdiction over agreements made abroad. The Circuit Court, however, held that under the Sherman law the Government had authority to seek relief, no matter where an alleged conspiracy in restraint of trade was formed.

NEW STYLES IN COLLARS.

Closed Fronts Going Out and Wings Coming In Again.

An extensive call for cut-silk ties is predicted for Fall by a prominent New York haberdasher. After several seasons of popularity, close-front collars, so largely responsible for the vogue for knitted ties, are being superceded by more open types and wing collars, and the coming mode is expected to materially benefit the tie silk industry of the country. Although a return to fashion of cut-silk ties is predicted, an absolute lack of demand for knitted ties is not expected. The better grades of the latter class, retailing at $1.50 and up, are still expected to retain a good share of their popularity, but a number of the leading shops are reported to have entirely withdrawn their cheaper lines and substantially reduced their stocks of medium-priced goods. The lack of variety offered in these lines is said to be largely responsible for the declining demand for them, this factor offsetting to a considerable degree the better wearing qualities of the knitted tie. Higher priced lines, in which it is said some excellent novelty effects are offered, are slated for a fairly active season. According to the statement made yesterday, however, the Fall purchases for one important chain of shops will be largely dominated by a preference for cut-silk cravats, and these preferences, it is predicted, will be general.

ARMY ORDERS AIR CRAFT.

Will Become Rival of Navy in Hydro-aeroplane Flying.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—Three new aeroplanes of the Wright, Curtiss, and Burgess types have just been ordered for the army by Brig. Gen. James Allen, Chief Signal Officer. With the arrival of these machines the army will become a rival of the navy in hydro-aeroplane flying. Two new aeroplanes will be established for hydro-aeroplane work, one at Washington Barracks on the Potomac River and the other either at the Signal Corps post at Fort Wood, N. Y., or at Governors Island.

These plans probably mark the beginning of a move to supply the coast defenses with hydro-aeroplanes for scouting purposes. Four of the old machines in the possession of the Signal Corps will be fitted with hydro-aero attachments. Two of these will be sent to New York and the other two to the barracks in this city, leaving nine aeroplanes at the College Park, Maryland, aviation station. The appropriation for the purchase of machines was exhausted by the latest order.

SUMMER RESORTS.

STOCKS OUT OF TOWN

Most Issues Depressed, but Sales Were on a Small Scale Yesterday.

Markets at other cities, as reported to THE NEW YORK TIMES yesterday, were heavy, although the volume of sales was small.

The market at Baltimore yesterday was dull and prices lacked firmness. Such changes as occurred were confined to small fractions.

After a fair display of strength at the opening, the Boston market showed a sagging tendency and at times actual weakness in sympathy with the decline in New York, although the news on the copper shares was all favorable.

The market was more active than it has been of late. From a price of 76¼, made shortly after the opening, Calumet and Arizona went down to 74½. Boston and Corbin went off to 7½ and Shannon to 15. Granby sold off 1½ to 53½. Butte and Superior was for sale in some quantity, the price going below 87. East Boston Land sold off on profit taking with sales at 15¾. A considerable arbitrage business in Steel and Amalgamated was done in Boston.

The market in Chicago securities was lower, and under leadership of Public Service issues and Booth Fisheries shares, each of which lost in the neighborhood of 4 points, there was a great deal of miscellaneous selling pressure. Sears-Roebuck common dropped from 184 to 180½ and closed at 183¾. Declines of a point or more were noted in People's Gas, Pacific Gas, Commonwealth Edison and American Can common. Fractional depreciations occurred in the prices of Hart, Schaffner preferred, Illinois Brick, and Union Carbide. National Biscuit common gained a point and Quaker Oats and Swift's shares were fractionally higher. The latter were the only noteworthy exceptions to the lower trend prevailing.

In the bond department, City Railway 5s and Cudahy 5s advanced slightly. Elsewhere prices ruled unchanged. Trading was small and of little importance.

Except for a moderate morning demand for Lake Superior, which lifted it a point above the previous close during the first hour, the tone of the Philadelphia market was trifle depressed in sympathy. The chief characteristic of the local list was stagnation, except for the brief period of selling of the arbitrage stocks during the second hour. Many brokers left the city to be gone over the week-end and transactions were light.

DRY GOODS TRADE GOOD.

A Little Quiet, as Usual, Before Holiday, but Satisfactory.

Although affected to a certain degree by the quietness that usually characterizes an approaching holiday, trading in the New York drygoods markets yesterday was generally satisfactory. Important local buyers were for the most part inactive, but orders from out-of-town buyers and the purchases of the smaller merchants of the city brought the aggregate business of the day to nice proportions. From all accounts, stocks of retailers have moved freely during the past week or ten days under the stimulus of a continued spell of seasonable weather, and while business done in the principal distributing centres during the remainder of the week may decline under the retarding influence of a mid-week holiday, some excellent buying of seasonable merchandise is predicted for the coming week. The conservative buying in evidence in the more staple lines at the present time is held in certain quarters of the trade to be indicative of good future business. It is held to mean a gradual depletion of retailers' stocks without a corresponding covering of needs, which, it is said, means good business to come when the retail trade recovers from the dullness that usually marks the Summer months. Immediate business prospects on seasonable goods are generally regarded to be bright, and, taken as a whole, the present situation, both on seasonable and staple lines, is far from deserving the pessimistic comments that emanate from certain quarters of the trade. That the situation would be further improved by more up-to-date merchandising methods and less commenting, is the opinion expressed by one of the most prominent factors in the market.

Yesterday's trading in washgoods was reported to have been satisfactory as a rule, the feature of the buying being the number of fabrics over which the demand was spread. White goods and silks were active, considering the season, and a fairly good day in laces and embroideries was also reported. Underwear and hosiery orders ruled individually small, but the total business done was generally satisfying.

NEW STEEL BUSINESS FAIR.

Orders Not Heavy, but Sufficient to Hold Up Unfilled Tonnage.

New business coming in to the steel mills, while not counted heavy during the last week by the leading trade journals, is still considered sufficient to prevent any considerable decline in unfilled orders ahead. The pressure of consumers in demanding deliveries is, however, taxing many of the mills to their utmost.

The Iron Age says:

Our reports from all markets refer to the fact that new buying is not heavy; at the same time it is sufficient in the case of some important producers to replace the tonnage going out of the mills. The Steel Corporation's statement, for example, is not expected to show any diminution in unfilled orders. In wire, sheets and wrought pipe its May business was greater than that of April.

July 1 will bring the expiration of a good many contracts that, when renewed, will be at higher prices. Shipments in June will naturally be large, as unspecified material will be canceled at the end of the month. Current bookings are probably averaging throughout the list of finished products $3 a ton above the prices of six months ago.

The question of deliveries by mills to car works is assuming some importance, and here and there the offerings of a premium for Summer deliveries points to the urgent need of the new cars now under contract. With the railroads the case is evidently one of getting all the rails, track supplies, and equipment possible without creating too strong an impression that they are able to buy these things.

Bridge work let by railroads in May has been larger than in months—probably 50,000 tons. New vessel building is bringing considerable business to the mills.

While the volume of fabricating contracts in May has run close to the records of 1906, when 200,000 tons was booked in one month, statements differ as to the degree of improvement in fabricating prices. In the East some sharply competitive work has brought out figures based on 1.15c. for structural steel. On smaller contracts better figures have been realized.

The Iron Trade Review says:

The mills are being severely taxed to satisfy their customers on deliveries. In the Chicago district, particularly, difficulty is being experienced in meeting delivery demands. Further price advances in finished lines appear imminent. Merchant pipe will be advanced $2 a ton in the near future, and it is probable that former announcement of $1 advance in plates will be made in the next several weeks. Shortages in semi-finished steel are common, and several of the largest steel makers are now in the market for tonnages to supplement their outputs. The Steel Corporation bookings continue heavy, although those in May were not quite up to the April tonnage. Shipments are on a heavier scale, but the May unfilled tonnage statement will show some increase.

Ritz-Carlton Decorations Are Not Sculptures—Other Decisions.

It was decided yesterday by the Board of United States General Appraisers that various mural decorations for the Ritz-Carlton Hotel in this city must stand a duty of 50 per cent. ad valorem under the Tariff act of 1909 as "manufactured articles of marble." Warren & Wetmore, the architects for the hotel, maintained in their protest that the articles should have been admitted to entry at 15 per cent. under the provision in the act for "sculptures."

The articles are described as "plaques, marble swags, and the bows underneath," intended for interior decoration. Judge Waite, who writes the decision for the board, says that no evidence was before the tribunal as to the artistic merit of the productions, or as to the professional standing of the sculptor or artist who made them. The only evidence is found in photographs of the articles taken of them in place in the walls of the hostelry. It was testified that what is called the "swag" is a festooning representing drapery placed below the plaques.

In overruling the protest the decision says:

"While these festoons are a part of the general decorations, they are not connected with the plaques or panels containing the bas-reliefs representing groups of human figures. The photographs are so small that we are unable to determine from them the question of artistic merit of the articles themselves; neither are we enabled to determine that they are the work of a professional sculptor only. The burden being upon the importers to show these necessary points in order to bring the importations within the purview of Paragraph 470, we must hold they have failed, and their contention is unsupported. The protest is, therefore, overruled."

The board took adverse action on protests filed by the Stromheyer & Arpe Company, relative to the classification of so-called "blood pudding" imported under the Tariff acts of 1897 and 1909. The commodity in controversy is composed of blood, lard, and spices, and was assessed at the rate of 25 per cent. ad valorem, as "prepared meat." The importers alleged that the pudding should be given entry at 20 per cent. as an "unenumerated manufactured article." The board decision states that the evidence submitted is not convincing, and that the product is really sausage. Collector Loeb's classification as "prepared meat" is affirmed.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Felix Isman Buys Seventh Avenue Parcel Near Times Square—$1,452,500 Paid for Hotel Marlborough —Oscar Hammerstein Sells Brooklyn Theatre Plot—West Side Deals—More Bronx Improvements.

An important deal in the Times Square district in Seventh Avenue, which will evidently lead to the rooting out of some of the old rookeries below the Hermitage Hotel; the purchase of the northwest corner of Seventh Avenue and Fifty-fourth Street, a plot 50 by 100, by the Freundschaft Club for its new home, and a big Brooklyn deal for a new theatre, in addition to an otherwise fairly diversified market, practically closed the realty month in an active manner yesterday.

Felix Isman, who has shown marked partiality for property in the Times Square vicinity, has made another investment in the section by purchasing the three old houses just south of the Hermitage Hotel, being 586, 588, and 590 Seventh Avenue, and the abutting parcel at 201 West Forty-first Street. The avenue frontage is 59.3 feet, with a depth of 100 feet, while the Forty-first Street extension has a frontage of 20 feet, the little plot being 59 feet in depth.

These houses, which are among the old timers in the vicinity, were bought from Jefferson M. and L. Napoleon Levy. Leopold Weil was the broker in the transaction, and Mr. Isman took title to the property yesterday, giving the seller a mortgage for $1,100,000. The area of the plot is about 7,100 square feet. Two similar buildings occupy the immediate Forty-first Street corner. Congressman Levy and his brother acquired the property over fifteen years ago, and they have declined several offers to sell.

It is understood that Mr. Isman will remodel the buildings, practically rebuilding them, for a luncheroom firm, which is opening several automatic lunchrooms in the city, having only the preceding day leased space in the building erected by Mr. Isman on the southeast corner of Fifth Avenue and Forty-second Street. Paul Kelly's social club had rooms for many months at 588 Seventh Avenue.

$1,452,500 for Marlborough Hotel.

Title was taken in the name of the Crosstown Realty Company to the Hotel Marlborough property on the west side of Broadway and Thirty-sixth Street, 145.6 feet and irregular, yesterday, the consideration being given as $1,452,500. The buyer acquired the property last February from the Goodridge estate. They give back a mortgage of $1,300,000 to the New York Life Insurance and Trust Company.

Oscar Hammerstein Sells Brooklyn Block Front.

Oscar Hammerstein has sold to the Bryant Improvement Company (Levy Brothers) the entire block front on Bedford Avenue, between Bergen and Dean Streets, for about $100,000.

On the site, which has a frontage of 220 feet on the avenue and 200 feet on each street, the buyers will erect a theatre to cost about $200,000, with a seating capacity of 2,250, from plans by Thomas W. Lamb.

The property, which faces Grant Square and is directly opposite the Union League Club, was purchased by Oscar Hammerstein in 1909 for about $95,000. It was his intention at that time to erect an opera house on the site, but the scheme never materialized. Mr. Hammerstein also purchased six smaller parcels of realty in the same vicinity, but disposed of them all, previous to yesterday's transaction at a fair profit.

The buyers also own the Fifth Avenue Theatre in Brooklyn. The Buckley & Horton Company negotiated all of the transactions for the seller.

$300,000 Apartment House Deal.

A. C. & L. A. Marks have sold for the Hennessey Realty Company, the White Court apartment house, at 208 West 107th Street, a nine-story apartment house on a plot 50 by 100, to a client who gives in part payment at 2,318 and 2,318 Third Avenue, two three-story buildings, north of 125th Street, on a plot 50 by 90. The deal involves about $300,000.

$750,000 Apartment for West End Av.

A $750,000 housekeeping apartment is to be erected on the northwest corner of West End Avenue and Eighty-fifth Street, resold yesterday by Harris and Maurice Mandelbaum. The entire transaction involves about $1,300,000.

The Elkan Realty Company is the buyer of the plot which has a frontage of 102.2 on the avenue and 150 feet on the street. EDUCATION NOTES.

City Supt. Maxwell has made a correction of a former statement by him to the effect that teachers' license No. 1 had not been granted to men. It appears that 76 such licenses were granted to men in January, 1910; 85 in June, 1910; 37 in January, 1911, and 65 in June, 1911. Eleven were granted in January, 1912. There are probably not more than 25 men teachers in the training schools.

At Tuesday's meeting of the special committee of the Board of Education, which is investigating the Board of Examiners, Commissioner Thomas W. Churchill asked Dr. Maxwell why he believed that the high school "superior merit" test had been of advantage to the high schools. Dr. Maxwell replied that it was a matter of common sense. Some of the high school Principals, he said, had informed him that it stimulated his teachers to better work. He could not state who the Principals were, but thought they were Dr. Felter of the Girls' High School, Brooklyn, Dr. Denbigh of the Morris High School, and Dr. Demarest of the Bryant High School.

A meeting of the Girls' Junior Debating Club of the Eastern District High School, Brooklyn, will be held to-morrow afternoon. The subject for the debate will be "Resolved, That Capital Punishment Should Be Abolished in the State of New York."

The Alumni Association of Public School 126, Brooklyn will hold an election of officers to-morrow. It will be its last meeting this term. Dr. Maxwell admits that some District Superintendents and Principals coach teachers for examination, and says that he does not see any wrong in their doing so.

District Superintendent Albert Shills, who is now in charge of evening schools, had a district in which were fifteen schools, mostly large ones, with fifty classes each. He says he found that if he inspected the work of each teacher in his district he could not devote more than fifteen minutes in a year to her. As a result he directed his attention to the new or inexperienced teachers. District Superintendent Joseph S. Taylor, who has Districts 25 and 26 in the Bronx, says all the time he can devote to each teacher in the year is twenty minutes. He also devotes most of his time to the inexperienced teachers' work. He has a district with 1,000 teachers and it is growing all the time.

The special committee which is investigating the Board of Examiners will hold another meeting on Tuesday evening. So far it has examined City Supt. Maxwell, Associate Supt. Stevens, District Supts. Bordwell, Shills, and Taylor, and Walter L. Hervey, James C. Byrnes, and George J. Smith of the Board of Examiners. It is probable that Mr. Smith will be recalled at the next meeting. Jerome A. O'Connell, the only member of the Board of Examiners who has not yet testified, will probably be called to the witness chair at the next meeting. It is said that among the rank and file of the teachers he is the most popular member of the Board of Examiners. The teacher seems to feel that he is dealing fairly toward her.

The High School Teachers' Association has now a membership of 706, which is the largest in its history.

District Supt. Shills is of the opinion that the chief defect in the average school teacher is her lack of full knowledge of the subject matter she is teaching. She knows, he says, the lesson of the day, but she has not the broader, fuller knowledge of the subject matter which in his opinion is so essential. District Supt. Taylor, on the other hand, seems to think that the chief defect is personality of the teacher, not her looks nor manner, but inability to maintain discipline and to arouse the pupils' interest in the subject taught.

It appears to be the general opinion among public school Principals that some modification of the present course of study is essential. Dr. Maxwell is authority for the statement that half of the teachers in high schools are employed for about two weeks each year on the regents' or State examinations. While they are so engaged their classes get along as best they may. The regents' examinations, he says, are not an improvement on the examinations formerly conducted by the city authorities, but they have been adopted because thereby the department receives $100,000 of the State money.

DR. KUNITZER'S CASE REVIEWED IN COURT

Evidence on Which Medical Society Expelled Him Shown in Affidavits.

NEPHEW TOLD OF A BRIBE

Said He Overheard Ewald Offer the Doctor $1,000 for His Aid in Falsifying the Records.

Justice Gerard in the Supreme Court yesterday heard argument of counsel on the motion to make permanent a temporary injunction granted to Dr. Robert Kunitzer, medical director of the Sydenham Hospital, restraining the County Medical Society, which had expelled him about a year and a half ago, from voting again upon the charges against him because the Board of Censors of the State Medical Society had sustained his protest that the vote had not been properly announced.

Dr. Kunitzer's expulsion followed charges brought by his nephew, Eggon Egghard, formerly Superintendent of the Sydenham Hospital, that he had helped in the falsification of the hospital's medical records to bear out the assertion of Dr. Louis Anton Ewald, who said he had performed Freund's operation, a rare and dangerous operation, sixty-nine times at the Sydenham and German Hospitals Many hearings on the charges were held by the censors and the Comitia Minora of the County Medical Society, and upon their report sustaining the charges the society by a vote of 392 to 38 expelled Dr. Kunitzer. A three-fourths vote is required for expulsion.

Dr. Kunitzer appealed to the Board of Censors of the State Medical Society, alleging that the number of all present at the meeting who did not vote was not counted, and adducing the testimony of several physicians there present to show that in their opinion the total number present had exceeded 600. Hence, he held, the vote was improperly counted and announced as a three-fourths majority. Almuth C. Vandiver, counsel for the County Medical Society, declared at the hearing before the State Society's Board of Censors that the testimony of the physicians brought up by Dr. Kunitzer was merely hearsay and opinion evidence, and as such required no contradiction; that it was incumbent upon Dr. Kunitzer to prove affirmatively that there were 138 present who did not vote and that the total number present was one of which 307 was not three-fourths. He therefore rested his case without answering.

The censors of the State Medical Society decided, however, that, on the evidence, the vote against Dr. Kunitzer had not been properly counted, and President Whitbeck of the State Medical Society, at the request of the Secretary of the County Medical Society, wrote urging the latter organization to vote again upon the report of its committee, making sure this time to ascertain the precise number present at the meeting. This the County Medical Society was prepared to do on Monday evening, when it found its course blocked by a temporary injunction restraining it from taking such vote.

Gerard Takes Opposite View.

In his argument to make permanent the injunction yesterday, Abraham S. Gilbert, counsel for Dr. Kunitzer, declared that his client was unwilling to have a new vote taken without a new hearing.

"In the first place, since the trial the membership of the society may have changed radically," he argued. "Men have died and men have withdrawn as members, and new men have come in. I am willing, however, to have a new trial conducted by the society to prove that my client is absolutely innocent."

"But supposing that at the first meeting the society voted to expel him and, according to your contention, did not succeed, what is to prevent them from voting again?" asked Justice Gerard. "That is the sole point to be decided."

Mr. Gilbert declared that the precedent set by impeachment cases in all legislative bodies was against subjecting a man to such a second trial after prior jeopardy.

"I am inclined to side against you on that point," replied Justice Gerard, "and to hold that in a club or society that rule does not hold unless such a second trial is expressly prevented by the by-laws of the organization."

He asked, however, that both sides submit briefs within a week.

"I admit, though," he said, "that I am inclined at present to decide against you on that point. What you are seeking, it seems, is to prevent the society from holding a perfectly legal and properly organized meeting, for you have nothing to show that it will not be properly organized to expel him again after you have obtained a ruling from the State Medical Society that the first expulsion was not legally voted."

In his affidavit in support of his argument, Mr. Vandiver, in behalf of the County Medical Society, declared:

"Dr. Kunitzer was fairly and impartially tried and full opportunity afforded him to produce any and all witnesses in aid of his defense. He was unanimously found guilty by the Board of Censors and by the Comitia Minora, the Medical Society of the County of New York, at a meeting held Dec. 27, 1910, by a vote of 392 to 38, accepting the recommendations of the Comitia Minora expelling Dr. Kunitzer from membership."

He stated further: "That upon appeal to the State Medical Society the Board of Censors thereof should have followed the well-settled practice of the common law as enunciated in the decisions of the Appellate Courts of this State and by the Supreme Court of the United States, to the effect that the majority of votes and three-fourths of votes are determined by comparison of the affirmative and negative votes, without regard to those not voting."

Accusation Against Kunitzer.

Although Dr. Kunitzer in his statement published yesterday declares that he was abroad with Isaac Guggenheim as his private physician at the time of the falsification of records charged against him, Dr. E. H. Seymour Houghton, then President of the Board of Censors of the County Medical Society, in an affidavit submitted with Mr. Vandiver's, declares that Egghard testified that early in October, 1909, "Dr. Kunitzer ordered him to permit Dr. Ewald to change the records of Suydenham Hospital in whatever respect he wished; that Dr. J. T. Travers changed the records of the cases operated on by Dr. Ewald and other physicians in order to make them appear to be real cases of cancer of the uterus; that some cases were torn from the records and new histories written by Dr. Travers according to the dictation of Dr. Ewald." The affidavit goes on to recite, quoting Egghard, that "Dr. Kunitzer was informed by Egghard of all the facts concerning the changes in the records by Dr. Travers at the dictation of Dr. Ewald; that Dr. Kunitzer gave Egghard orders to deny any knowledge concerning the matter; that Dr. Kunitzer was present during part of the time while the changes were being made by Dr. Travers and Dr. Ewald, and that Dr. Kunitzer had full knowledge of the changes and gave his consent to them, and that Dr. Kunitzer and Dr. Ewald went over all the cases both before and after they were changed."

Then, according to the affidavit reciting Egghard's testimony, "Dr. Kunitzer made certain marks on certain cases in lead-pencil, saying that he did so in order to know the good cases, because he was going to take charge of the investigation when the committee of the Medical Society of the County of New York arrived to investigate the operation and records of operations alleged to have been made by Dr. Ewald; that Dr. Kunitzer ordered Egghard to conceal the house-staff records from the committee, and, if asked, to say that they were in the safe of the hospital and that the combination was out of order and he therefore could not produce them."

First Hint of a Motive.

The first hint of motive for the alleged complicity of Dr. Kunitzer in the falsification of the records to help Dr. Ewald is given in Dr. Houghton's affidavit, where, still quoting Egghard's testimony, he says Egghard testified:

"That Egghard overheard Dr. Ewald offer Dr. Kunitzer $1,000 for his assistance in this matter; that thereafter Egghard was requested to resign as Superintendent of the Suydenham Hospital; that the minutes of the Board of Directors of the Suydenham Hospital, after an investigation of Egghard's private life, however, showed that he was dismissed because the records at the hospital had been falsified."

Dr. Houghton's affidavit further tells how Miss Silecia Breslin, one of the employes of the hospital, testified that she had seen Dr. Ewald, Egghard, Dr. Kunitzer, and Dr. Travers working in the hospital at nighttime upon the medical record book of the hospital. It recounts, also, that Dr. Kunitzer denied all Egghard's charges, and that William H. Fletcher, a Director, and Joseph P. Day, President of the hospital, speaking in Dr. Kunitzer's behalf, expressed full confidence in him, and gave him a good character. At a later meeting, Dr. Houghton testifies, Dr. Ewald denied that he had changed records or had Dr. Travers, Dr. Kunitzer, or Egghard or his own brother change them, or that he had offered money to Dr. Kunitzer. At this meeting, Dr. Ewald admitted, according to the affidavit, "that he had earlier made an affidavit, offered by Egghard in evidence, accusing Dr. Kunitzer of complicity in changing the records; but he now denied the statements in that affidavit as untrue, explaining that he was at the time afraid that Egghard was in such a frame of mind that he would commit suicide if he did not assist him; that he gave the affidavit because he never thought it would grow to such proportions; but that it was obtained under duress, namely, the great excitement of Egghard and his demands that he help Egghard out of his trouble."

SEEKS DIVORCE FROM COUNT.

Mrs. Neindorff Says She Was Like a Prisoner in Her Home.

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 29.—Mrs. Cora von Neindorff filed suit for absolute divorce from Count Paul von Neindorff to-day. She charges that the German nobleman, who has been a resident of Los Angeles for seven years and who married her six years ago, when she was 17, kept her a prisoner in his home for six years. She says that she was not permitted to leave the house except in company with her husband and was not allowed to read newspapers.

Mrs. Neindorff states that the Count insisted upon doing all her shopping, even refusing her the privilege of buying her own clothes. She says the Count told her he was 32 years old when they were married. She states in her complaint that he was then 42 years old and is now 48 to 40, a fact which she says has caused her much worry. Count von Neindorff is now in New York.

DEFEAT DIRECT INITIATIVE.

Ohio Constitutional Convention Would Lose Party Emblems, Too.

Special to The New York Times.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, May 29.—Heated debate followed the passing of a resolution by the Ohio Constitutional Convention today providing for the election of members of the General Assembly without party emblems or designations.

Many delegates saw in it a wedge for the defeat of the initiative and referendum proposal. The matter was reconsidered by a vote of 55 to 51, but when it came to the motion to table the amendment for all time it was defeated 55 to 54.

Later the advocates of the direct initiative went down to defeat when an amendment to the initiative and referendum proposal providing for direct initiative on petition of 8 per cent. of the voters was defeated 82 to 40.

POLICE CALL FOR DEMOCRATS

District of Columbia Convention Results in a Walkout.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—The District of Columbia Democratic Convention split to-day over selecting a delegation to Baltimore, and nearly half of the convention walked out.

Although the District primarics were held Monday, the central committee had failed to count the votes or issue certificates to any delegates to to-day's convention. J. Fred Kelley, Chairman of the committee, refused to call the convention to order. Walter Costello, Vice Chairman of the committee, and leader of the Clark forces, called it to order, but as soon as they attempted to proceed with business the objecting forces demanded recognition and protested against the legality of the convention.

A squad of policemen endeavored to restore order, but proceedings could not be continued until the protesting delegates voluntarily left the hall. A poll of the convention after the opposing forces had left showed 46 of the 66 delegates remaining.

The bolting delegates went to another hall and organized a separate convention, which was participated in by Chairman Kelly and National Committeeman Newman. The ballot boxes of Monday's primary were produced at this convention by Mr. Kelly. The original convention was prepared to indorse delegates for Champ Clark, while the second convention proposed to send an uninstructed delegation to Baltimore.

"The matter has not been taken up by the State Department with me," said Mr. Wickersham. "There has been no friction between Mr. Knox and myself."

FINDS WIFE IN SANITARIUM.

Portuguese Woman May Have Been Kidnapped from Train.

Special to The New York Times.

LAKE CHARLES, La., May 29.—Señora Mario Santo, who says she was kidnapped from a Southern Pacific train near here while en route from the Azores to Hanford, Cal., was identified to-day in a local sanitarium by her husband, Manuel Sillera Goularte.

The woman was found some days ago near Welsh, La. She was half crazed with fear, and at first could not talk at all. Through Interpreter J. G. Denis of the New Orleans immigration station she gave fragments of a narrative that has kept the local State and railroad officials busy ever since. She said she had been taken from the train, but could not tell anything about her abductors. She insisted that she was kept tied to a tree for ten days. Marks around her neck apparently made by ropes seem to confirm this part of the narrative.

Goularte recently left his home to invest in California lands. He is a man of small means, but well educated. He made the California investment through friends, and at once wrote his wife to come on to America. His last letter from her was dated New Orleans. Telegrams to New Orleans railroad officials finally brought to light the fact that a woman answering the general description of Señora Goularte was in a sanitarium here. Another clue was furnished by the fact that a few days later a boy arrived in Hanford with Señora Goularte's ticket. He said it belonged to a woman who had been lost from the train. The boy is being held in California as a material witness.

Señora Goularte is unable to tell even the vicinity where she was kept prisoner, and does not know how far she had gone when she was taken in charge by a small boy at Welsh, who turned her over to a local constable.

OLD MAN'S BODY IN RIVER.

Patterson Carried with Him Newspaper Telling of His Disappearance.

Four hours after they had received from Boston a notice asking them to watch for James Patterson, 83 years old, of North Andover, Mass., who had disappeared from his home, the police of the Fulton Street Station, Brooklyn, drew Patterson's body out of the bay at the foot of Dock Street.

At first the police did not know whose body they had recovered. They received word yesterday afternoon that two men in a boat had seen an old man in the water and had thrown an oar to him, which he refused, calling out to them that he wished to die. The man had gone down, according to the report, and a watch was kept in the hope that his body might be recovered.

At 10 o'clock last night the body was found close to the Dock Street wharf. Policemen who had read a description of the missing man remarked that it seemed to fit that of the drowned man very well. It was recalled that in the description was a statement to the effect that Patterson was fond of the water, and had turned longshoreman on several previous disappearances.

In the pocket of Patterson's coat a letter was found addressed to him in Brooklyn by Dr. A. E. Chelsey of Lawrence, Mass., his son-in-law. The Brooklyn address is in an Italian neighborhood, where the police could gain no trace of the man. With the letter was a copy of a Boston newspaper of last Sunday morning which contained a picture of Patterson, with a story of his disappearance.

800 JERSEY BABIES IN RAIN.

Parade Floats Don't Save Young "Taft" and "Roosevelt"

The rainstorm broke up a baby parade in Jersey City yesterday afternoon, and 800 youngsters got a severe drenching before their guardians could find shelter for them.

The parade was held under the auspices of the Business Men's Association of Jersey City, as a feature in connection with "Know Your City Week." The small paraders were assembled at Newark Avenue and Barrow Street. The little ones were clothed for the occasion in their best white frocks, and were gayly beribboned. Many of them were on decorated floats and ponies. The older children were on foot, and the infants who made up the greater part of the procession rode in go-carts pushed by their proud mothers.

The paraders were countermarching in Newark Avenue toward Warren Avenue, and had proceeded for about a quarter of a mile when the storm broke. Mothers and nurses grabbed their little ones and ran wildly about looking for shelter. Go-carts and the unroofed floats were deserted. Storekeepers along the avenue threw open their stores for the refugees, but a majority of the little ones were badly drenched.

On one float a five-year-old boy made up to represent President Taft had his silk hat and frock coat ruined. On another Col. Roosevelt, 3 years old, cried his heart out on a float until a grown-up rescued him and his hat in the ring.

EX-BANKER AGAIN INDICTED.

New Bill Against Sullivan, Former Head of Brooklyn Institution.

Another indictment was returned by the Kings County Grand Jury yesterday against David A. Sullivan, former President of the Mechanics and Traders' Bank in Brooklyn, which failed in the financial panic in 1907, and was later reorganized under the name of the Union Bank, now a defunct institution. Mr. Sullivan is charged in this indictment with grand larceny for cashing a check for $125,000 and taking the money from his bank on June 3, 1907. The money was taken in connection with the merger of the Mechanics and Traders' Bank and the Union Bank. Sullivan is accused of stealing it. He is out on bail waiting trial on other indictments charging him with forgery and grand larceny.

Sullivan appeared voluntarily before Judge Fawcett in the County Court yesterday to plead to the indictment. He pleaded not guilty. District Attorney Cropsey wanted his bail increased, but Judge Fawcett refused, saying that the bail of $21,000 under which he is released was sufficient. The court paroled him in the custody of his counsel.
